Friday, March 8, 1918.

Mrs. H. H. Hessig of Beswick, Calif., returned home the first of last week after a visit with her daughter, Mrs. Kinsley C.
Hendricks.F. S. Kelley was intown Saturday and made the Times office a pleasant call. He says the action of the Dairy League has kept the price of milk up for the small producer.Frank Oehme, vice-president of the Hudson Arms Co. of Portland, was a Beaverton caller last Friday.

The campaign recently launched against promiscuous conversation is intended as a war measure. It is probably needed as such. There are many people who are inclined to tell more than they should of the things they find out by accident. But whether it is needed as a war measure or not, the campaign can do no harm. The habit of keeping one's mouth closed is a good one to form. Every man is stronger for the power to do so. If this movement can give to the rising generation the power to keep their own counsel, it will have served its purpose well and will have been worth the effort if it serves no war purpose and is without purpose as a protection against spies and propagandists.

You can't beat this weather anywhere. Beaverton is indeed a favored spot so far as spring weather is concerned.

The opening of the starch factory is a good test of the capacity of Beaverton's business people. Those who are alive to their opportunities will have something to offer that will attract the visitors to Beaverton again.

The Third Liberty Loan will soon be offered to the people of this locality in common with the vast population of this glorious land of freedom. To say that Beaverton will do its part is but to repeat a truism that is foremost in the thoughts of all. But there will precede the offering of this loan an offer of Treasury certificates that bear four per cent interest and afford an easy way of handling the purchase of Liberty Bonds. Every person in the community who is financially able to do so owes it as a patriotic duty to the nation to purchase these Treasury certificates, which have in the past been offered to bankers only, but which will this time be available to all investors. Ask your banker for information and advice. He owns some of the former issues and he will be glad to advise you in this matter.

What is Beaverton going to do on Saturday, March 16? A number of citizens have come forward and are doing their part in a noble manner. The city council has shown its patriotism and its devotion to the interests of the town in no uncertain manner. The schools are taking their part in a way that awakens a pride in the heart of every man and woman who has a child enrolled there. But there is still plenty of room for people with civic pride to come forward and do their part. This is getting near to the last day in the afternoon. If you are going to do anything, it is about time that you decide what it is and how it is to be done. Don't be bashful! Don't wait for someone to ask you. It's your affair as much as it is anyone's else. Beaverton is a good town. Providence made it that. But it will never be a great town if we wait for Providence to do it all.

Business goes only where it is invited and stays only where it is well treated. It has been invited to Beaverton by the establishment of the starch factory. It will come as a result of that invitation. It will stay here only if Beaverton is made so attractive to it that there can be no inducement for it to go away. That depends on you. Other communities can get starch factories. They undoubtedly will do so as soon as they see that starch factories are a good thing and they will see that Saturday, March 16. But Beaverton can be the central potato market of the Northwest because of its favorable location and the establishment of the first potato starch factory of its kind in America, but it will take effort on the part of Beaverton people and that effort must be made NOW while we have the opportunity, not after the opportunity has slipped away.

ALL HAVE THEIR UNDER-DOGS

Good Reasons Why People's Sympthies Are With the Fellow Who Is Temporarily Down.

Our sympathies naturally travel the line of those—that is, the things we feel in ourselves, we feel in others. We applaud the under-dog, because we so often have been the under-dog. We like to lift the other fellow up when he is down, because we also have been down.
Sympathy starts at home—or else it isn't sympathy.

Your periodic moods of failure and disappointment are your under-dogs.
So, instead of walking past these under-dogs of yours and casting no sympathy their way, pause to give them your heart and your hope, and soon the picture and fact will be your over-dogs—your victories and your genuine achievements.

No under-dogs can possibly appeal in importance to the under-dogs of your daily experience.

Perhaps you will applaud alone the under-dogs of your personal glooms and shadows, but what of it? As Lowell says: "D-ily, with souls that cringe and just, we sinners climb and know it not." What difference, what odds, so long as over your "manhood bend the skies!"

Courageously cheer the under-dogs of your experiences and stay proudly by them until their fight becomes a factor of your kingship.—George Matthew Adams, in Good Housekeeping.

GLASS STAINED BY X-RAYS

Experiments Have Shown These Produce the Same Effect as the Light of the Sun.

It is well known that glass exposed for long to sunlight acquires a violet tint. In very old houses the windows facing south are often distinctly violet. Experiments recently made in the laboratories of the General Electric company at Schenectady with X-rays prove that these can be used to dye glass in many colors, principally an amethystine violet and an amber yellow, but also green and bright yellow.

These colors, according to Mr. Rosenthal, who conducted the experiments, are due to modifications of the physical structure of the glass and not to chemical alterations. The color can be made to penetrate to any desired depth, from a mere surface tint to complete coloration of the entire substance. And the same method can be applied to tinting porcelain, enamel and precious stones.

An interesting and important fact about this glass that has been colored by long exposure to X-rays is that it becomes impervious to the radiations that have transformed it. Thus it can be used as a protection against the glare of the sun or the snow and against the X-rays themselves.

Russia and the United States.

The old autocratic government of Russia was always particularly friendly to the United States. During the Revolutionary war Russia offered to mediate for peace and her offer was accepted by the United States but declined by Great Britain. Russia was one of the first governments to recognize the independence of the United States and continued to show her good will by making treaties of amity and commerce with the United States. Several of our early presidents in their messages referred to "the continued friendship of Russia." In 1823, Russia proposed a friendly adjustment through diplomatic channels of the boundary line between American and Russian possessions in the Northwest and President Monroe authorized the United States minister to Russia to attend to the matter. In doing so he said: "The government of the United States has been desirous by this friendly proceeding to manifest the great value which they have invariably attached to the friendship of Russia and their solicitude to cultivate the best understanding with that government."

Love in Fleishdom.

This is no "fish" story as the term is usually referred to, but it is a story about fish. Jim Foster, student of fish affairs, vouches for its authenticity.
Jim has a collection of big live fish in a small aquarium in a downtown restaurant and for 12 hours every night he watches them perform.
"The fish are very affectionate," declared the fish student. "They are good-tempered and kind toward one another. See those two largest fish?
They are married! I guess, or else in love with each other. They always kiss each other good night and nibble affectionately at each other's mouths.
The female of the two never puts her cold fin on the male one's back. And in the morning, say, it's amusing to watch them yawn and stretch themselves."—Detroit Free Press.

How Would You Tie a Camel?

Because of its peculiar awaying motion in walking the camel has been called the "ship of the desert." This title may also have some reference to the extreme stupidity and passivity of the animal, which submits to great loads, which it will often carry for days at a time without stopping for food or drink, with no more urging than a ship would require from the hands of its pilot, says the Popular Science Monthly. The manner in which the drivers hobble the camels when they stop for a rest is interesting.
They do not depend upon stakes driven in the deep, yielding sand, but simply double back and tie one of the forelegs of the animal, so that it can lie down or rise up, but cannot move from the spot.
