PRACTICAL PATRIOTISM.

Members of the Beaverton Honor Guard were called upon for a patriotic service a little unusual for their organization, but they took up the work with all the ardor that has characterized this chapter from the first. The work is well under way and will be finished before the week is done.

The task assigned them is no less an undertaking than to secure the names of residents of this school district to the Washington County Patriotic League's loyalty pledges. This not only requires that they call at every house in the district, but that a large amount of explanation be made if many people are not to refuse to sign because of a failure to understand the purpose of the pledge.

This work is meeting with a very few refusals and Miss Mary Fitzpatrick, leader of the Honor Guard, expresses the belief that most of these few refusals are due to a failure to understand the purpose of the pledge.

There is nothing in the league pledge that any loyal citizen of America need hesitate to sign; but its wording is not the simplest and there have come instances where perfectly loyal people refused to sign because they did not regard it as necessary or did not understand its purpose. The number of questions that are asked and the kind of questions are remarkable and much honor is due the young ladies for undertaking and completing the canvass.

RECOGNIZING MERIT.

That State Treasurer Thos. B. Kay is never slow to recognize good service nor hesitates to reward it when in his power to do so, is well known, but there are few more striking examples of it than his recent action in naming the Bank of Beaverton as a State Depository. That the record of the bank fully justifies it, no one would deny, but there are many banks where the state funds would be absolutely safe. But any person who knows of the long hours, careful effort and effective management which Doy Gray gave to the Third Liberty Loan will at once approve of Mr. Kay's choice.

THE SCHOOL ELECTION.

Many troubles beset a school board in the course of a year and the only reward they get for the time they spend is the knowledge of having done their best in a duty that needed doing. But the most ungrateful chap with whom they have to deal is the fellow who never goes near the annual meeting and then kicks all year because the school isn't run to suit him. Bear this in mind Monday and let's have as near a 100 per cent vote as possible.
