FEDERAL AID TO PROMOTE GOOD HEALTH IN OREGON.

Legislature Should Be Urged to Take Advantage of Rural Health Act.

The State Board of Health is in receipt of a letter from Surgeon General Blue of the United States Public Health Service advising that there has been introduced in the present session of Congress, a bill known as the "Rural Health Act." (H-14185). This act will give Federal aid to the various states by allotting money to be expended for the sanitation of rural districts contingent upon the appropriations by the States of similar sums.

The beneficent effects of the Federal aid extension principle has been fully demonstrated in the past, especially in respect to agricultural legislation and legislation for the promotion of good roads. More recently the Federal aid extension principle has been applied to the prevention, control and cure of venereal diseases.

It is hoped that the Rural Health Act will pass. It would indeed be a most fortunate National event if it did. It is thought that if State legislatures were at this time to make appropriations for rural health work contingent upon the appropriation of similar sums by the Federal Government, the chances of securing this legislation would be materially improved. Moreover, your State would be in a position to take immediate advantage of this act in the event of its passage.

The government has demonstrated the value of this work in cutting down the death rate in various districts throughout the country at a cost many times less than that occasioned by the illness and deaths previously experienced in their districts.

The present Oregon legislature should be urged to provide a contingent appropriation in order to get the benefit of this Federal aid. Oregon's allotment would be $28,702.53.

LACK OF MILK MEANS STUN- TED GROWTH.

Never was the value of milk and butter fat in the child's diet brought out more forcefully than the story of the Rhoten twins as told by the father, E. A. Rhoten, during the recent hearing on Oleomargarine before the joint legislative committee appointed to investigate the dairy industry.

Mr. Rhoten, who is advertising manager for the Pacific Homestead of Salem, and well known among the stockmen and farmers of the state told how their home was blessed six years ago with a pair of twin boys, how it became necessary to substitute cow's milk for mother's milk, and the difficulty in getting one of the boys to continue the use of milk as soon as he was old enough to take other food.

As a result of his refusal to drink milk and to eat butter Rex failed to keep pace with his brother Ray, who was at all time a glutton for milk and butter. Ray has grown into a rugged lad while Rex shows plainly the stunted effect of the absence of the vital element of nutrition found only in butter fat, fat of eggs and in leafy vegetables.

At birth they were the same weight. Today, at a few days past six years, Ray weighs 58 pounds while Rex tips the scales at 47 or 11 pounds less.

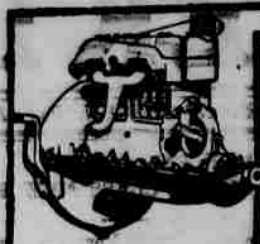

Up to the age of 5 years the general appearance of Rex showed plainly the effects of malnutrition and caused the parents no end of grief. It was then that they discovered that Rex could be induced to eat cottage cheese. This was supplied and was seasoned with cream which has resulted in a marked improvement in the boy's appearance and growth. This is in exact accord with the experiments of Dr. E. V. McCollum, the noted scientist on nutrition.

NAVAL MAN RETURNS TO BEAVERTON THIS WEEK

Ensign Reed Walworth Home From France.—Praises Work of Y. M.
C. A. And Salvation Army.

Ensign Reed Walworth, of the U. S. Navy, son-in-law of H. G. Vincent, arrived in Beaverton Wednesday night direct from France. He has been in charge of a Sea Plane base at Pauillac, France, for nearly a year where one of his duties was making trial flights in the Sea Planes before turning them over to the aviators. He was at Amiens during the hardest fighting and also in Paris and London during air raids and when the long range gun "Bertha" was firing on Paris.

Ensign Walworth says the Salvation Army and Y. M. C. A. are the finest friends the boys in France

have and that the value of their work cannot be over estimated.

HATCH CHICKS EARLY.

The old saying that the early bird catches the worm, never before applied more truly than at the present
to the poultry business.

The early hatched chicks have every advantage of those that are not hatched until hot weather retards their growth. Washington County is coming to the lead in poultry production in the state, and taking advantage of this principle is what is making the success for the leading poultry raisers of the county. The early pullets will begin laying in the fall when older hens are molting and will lay throughout the winter when prices are best. The hatching season should be closed at least by May 1st.
