BEAVERTON SCHOOL PRODUCES POETS.

(Held from Last Week.)

I.

Now the war is over and the boys are coming home;
Now the heart is happy because the spring has come;
Now the flowers are blooming and the little birds do sing—
Was there ever in all history such a glorious spring?

II.

Now the winter's over, snow and sleet are gone;
Now the sun shines brightly, buds on trees have come;
Tho the war is over and the spring has come,
Many hearts are heavy and many boys are gone.

III.

Tho many are coming homeward, many arrive each day,
Many are dead or dying, many the price did pay,
Many are sick and wounded, many are maimed for life;
But this is the price they had to pay as victors in the strife.

—George L. Thompson.

A COZY PLACE.

I.

Down by the rippling waters
Down where the shade trees grow,
Where the moss covered rocks are lying
That's where the cattle go.

II.

There's where the flowers give their sweetest fragrance,
There's where the birds sing their happiest carols,
There's where the children love to play in the evening,
There's where we all love to go.

—Carrie Carlson.

HIS PART.

I.

The evening fell softly
On a little village in the west,
Where a mother's heart was mourning
For her sons who have gone to rest.

II.

The children grouped about the fire
To hear the stories told,
How he had carried the flag aloft
'Til his face was white and cold.

III.

Be proud, you mother whose black robes fall
About thy form, where beats an aching heart,
When memories sad come back to you
Remember, he did his part!

—Laura Olson.

I.

Eighteen stars of blue
Encircling two of gold.
Eighteen saw the battle through,
Two, whose names need not be told,
Were laid to rest.

II.

Twenty flag-loving boys, last fall,
Twenty boys, both strong and brave,
Answered the country's call.
Their time, their lives, their all they gave,
All, all, for the flag.

III.

Now we're planting for each a tree,
Eighteen deciduous ones,
For those we love and now can see;
But two we're planting of ever-greens,
For those who died and could not come,
No, nor ever shall.

—Thelma Pegg.

NOTICE TO MEN IN MILITARY SERVICE.

The State Council of Defense and Oregon Historical Society are making a campaign to get full and correct information for a permanent record of all men in the service. This information cannot be secured from the records of the government. The School Board and teacher in to distribute the War Record Blanks, assist in filling them out if necessary and return them to the County School Superintendent's office.

We want a blank filled out for everyone who rightfully is a resident of Washington County or was at the time of enlistment. An effort will be made to place the blanks in the hands of every family having members in the service.

If anyone is overlooked they are requested to apply to the committee of their own school district for the blanks. Anyone having had boarders, hired men or friends who would be likely to be missed will be doing these men a real service by giving their names to the committee.

Many Washington County boys enlisted in Portland, Seattle, Bremerton or other places and their own county and district gets no credit for them in the permanent records unless we get their record now.

Everyone should be interested in helping to make this a perfect record and to have no one left out.

BANK OF BEAVERTON Beaverton, Oregon.

IT IS SAFE—AND SANE

"Never again," says Bill Guff, as he walked into the postoffice with a double jointed limp in his left leg and his head done up in a plaster of Paris cast.

"Never again will you catch me out in a dark street with a pocket full of coin. I not only lost my money but the hold-up guys like to croaked me." The bank is the safest, most convenient, logical and sensible place to keep money. Don't tempt things, and risk life and limb by carrying funds on your person. Put your money in the bank, and use a check book, we do not make any charge for checking accounts, and your pass book will help you in keeping a record of your income.

TAXES?

Just two short weeks more left to pay taxes in before April 5th. If paid after that date there will be a penalty added, we will get your statement and pay them if you wish, If you have procured your statement bring it in and we will attend to paying them for you.
