SCHOOL NEWS.

Thursday afternoon High School students, under the direction of Howard Everts Weed, planted trees on the school grounds in memory of the boys who have gone from this district into the service of the nation. In addition much shrubbery was planted about the buildings and at the entrance to the grounds and an additional amount of clearing was done on the west end of the grounds.

The Methodist people are well pleased with Mr. Kamberger's installation of electric lights.

The two Methodist Sunday Schools of Beaverton and Cedar Mills have assumed the support of a native preacher in Africa. The financial part of it will be carried out easily if each scholar and teacher now giving a nickel a Sunday changes it to a dime. This will pay for all the Sunday school supplies, contribute its usual amount to the regular benevolences of the church and leave enough over to support the native preacher.

Wanted—Every citizen in town to sign the petition to have the boards torn off of the O. E. Depot windows, some fresh paint on the walls and a man in the office. The petition is at George Thyn's confectionery. With every building in town filled with tenants and business booming, it is about time to invite the Oregon Electric to open up. The war is over. People on both lines see the O. E. depot and get a wrong impression of Beaverton.

Beaverton Elks had a royal time at the big doings at McMinnville Saturday night. Some of the boys said there was fun all the way up and back, even when the special arrived home at about 3 A. M. Two of the local Elks got turned around on the "Y" and lost their bearings so they decided to get off of the train in West Beaverton when it took a siding to let a freight train pass. "We'll get off here at the starch factory so we won't have to walk back from the depot." But when they alighted the starch factory was gone! "Hello Bill!"

Ed Barry, who had a hard tussle with the flu, was up town again Saturday shaking hands with his friends.

PLANT GOOD SEED.

The quality of live stock is evidenced by its pedigree. And in a like manner the quality of the grain harvested is governed by the seed that is planted.

The best seed is "none too good" under any circumstances. Therefore the utmost care should be exercised in the quality of the seed you plant. The better the kernel the stronger the plant. And, the better its chance to withstand unfavorable conditions. You cannot afford to plant any but the best for the reason that the results are in your favor no matter what the condition may be.
