K. P. VETERANS TO RECEIVE JEWELS

Extensive plans have been made by the local Knights of Pythias, for the celebration tonight at their hall which is to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the founding of the order.

The entertainment committee promises an interesting program of music and speaking, and to make the evening one long to be remembered by five Knights, who have been faithful to the order for 25 long years. They will be presented with Veteran Jewels, as a token of appreciation of their devotion to the lodge. This ceremony will be very impressive and you can not afford to miss it.

Some of the Grand Lodge Officers will be present and take part in the ceremonies, and last but not least, will be a banquet that will appeal to even the dyspeptics.

All Knights, Esquires and Pages and their families are invited.

Not because it needed more revenue, but because the reserve stock of fuel oil in California faced depletion, the Standard Oil Co. of California has advanced the price it pays for crude oil and has made a corresponding advance in the price of fuel oil and gasoline to absorb this. It is hoped this to stimulate production of the crude and encourage conservation of the refined product.

Now it is up to some inventor to provide a means of carrying electric power on moving vehicles independent of wires. With the supply of petroleum products facing depletion, it is interesting to speculate on the time when our order to the garage attendant for a "gallon o' gas" will be changed to a "watt o' juice."

ROSS REIDER ESCAPES CLUTCHES OF REDS

(Continued from Page 1). saw what we did not had the experience that we did. The terrible sights one cannot imagine only by seeing them.

I am unable to write, seems like my nerves are shot. We traveled two months averaging ten miles a day and with the Reds right on our trail. It is sure no joke. If we had been with men that would fight it would have been different, but we were with the Polish army and they surrendered and we did not know what day they would give up. At any rate, we are here and I will be home by June 1st.

Love to all. Will see you before long.

THE CHEAPEST THING OF VALUE

The cheapest thing of value in this town is the Times.

Fifty-two times a year it tells you all of the news of the town and of the farming community adjacent.

Fifty-two times in a year it gives you many columns of choice reading matter of a general nature and of a high moral tone.

Fifty-two times in a year it places on your table, through the medium of its ads, information of value relative to the choice variety of articles for sale by our merchants.

Fifty-two times in a year, through its medium, you learn something new about your home town and community which you did not know before.

Fifty-two times in a year it raises its voice in behalf of the home community and of those things which benefit the home people.

It does all of these things, and more, and yet it costs less than two cents each time it makes its weekly visit to you—or only $1 for an entire year.

Do you know of anything in this community of greater or even equal value at less expense?

WE HAVE BOTH

A young man stood on a street corner in Beaverton, idling away a few moments of time.

Across the way, on another corner, stood another young man, similarly occupied.

A lady came down the street, neatly and tastefully dressed. She passed on.

"There goes one of the sweetest women in town," remarked the first young man to a friend.

"Say, sport, that Jane's got some figure," said the second to his friend. But it is all a matter of breeding and taste.

We have them both in this town.

Mr. Dyle is a prominent lawyer of this city, and has been most active for years in business and civic as well as social and church affairs of this community, and his acquisition as a director in this work, the intensive campaign of which opens April 25, and closes May 2, has been a matter of elation on the part of headquarters at Portland, which makes the announcement.

U. S. NAVY Barber Shop.

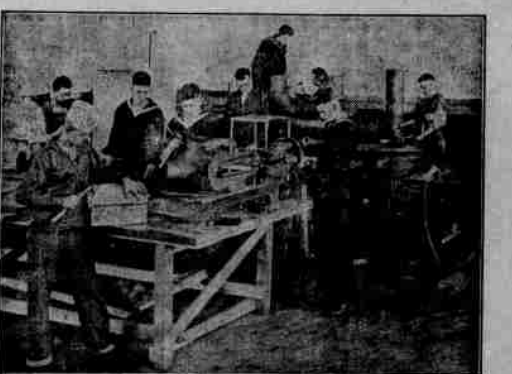

Some hotel! Everything at cost, and done with the very finest equipment. Join the Navy, and forget the tips.

Can you imagine a first class shave for a nickel, a hair cut for a dime and a massage, shampoo, and all the trimmings in proportion?

It's almost luxurious, and now that the electric potato peelers have come in, Jack finds himself with a lot more time to improve himself. He doesn't need to wash his own clothes any more either, an electric laundry will take care of them at a price which is almost ridiculous.

This view of the busy barber shop on board one of the U. S. dreadnaughts will give us all some idea of the way the men in the Navy live. Only the best is good enough for our sailors.

U. S. NAVY Tinmith School.

Some U. S. sailors are shown here making plain and fancy stovepipes at a Navy training school.

The gentle art of tinmithing as taught in the U. S. Navy schools fits a man for a rating aboard a man of war. There his work is confined to his specialty and his ability should increase throughout his enlistment.

There is no excuse for a man not becoming an expert by the end of his third or fourth year. He may then return to civil life entirely qualified in a profitable trade or continue in the service at the advanced pay allowed for re-enlistments.

Besides the tinmith school there are schools for every other trade used in the Navy. Carpenters, blacksmiths, plumbers, electricians, bakers, pharmacists, and a dozen other specialties are taught to the young recruits. If a young man has a hobby and wishes to perfect himself in some trade that he is fitted for, he may receive expert training by joining the Navy and applying for entrance to some trade school.

The U. S. Navy is the Forearm of the Nation. It is your property, your first line of defense. Know about it; read about it; see it. If possible, serve in it. It builds real men who do men's work.
