FARMERS FAVOR SCHOOL

Oregon's organized farmer folk have been quite united in support of the higher educational measure on the ballot May 21,—the measure providing one and twenty six-hundredths mills for protection of the work of the State Agricultural College, State University and State Normal School.
Pomona and subordinate Granges, farmer's unions, livestock associations, farm bureaus, and community clubs, in all parts of the state have adopted resolutions endorsing the bill and pledging support.

The resolutions as a rule express the appreciation of the country and town districts of the advantages of free and equal education for their sons and daughters, and of the benefits of extension service. They also often express approval of the improvement in farm life and home life, and in farm and orchard yields, more or less of the credit of which they give to higher education.

One set of resolutions noted the statement that it tersely sums up the case as follows:

"If a family had contained four persons in 1913, and had an income of $100 a month; and if now, in 1920, it has 10 persons and an income of only $45 a month, then its situation would be the same as that of the Agricultural College, State University, and State Normal School.

LOCAL NEWS

Police Inspector Alex Jordan and wife, of Portland, were visitors here on Sunday.

Joe Heeden, wife and family visited here during the week. Mr. Hee-den is chief clerk of the Smith-Watson Iron Works of the Rose City.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Snipes, of Reedville, were Sunday visitors at the Bendricks home.

Mother's Day was observed last Friday at school by the pupils of Miss Emmon's room. The little folks had pretty exercises, songs and recitations, which showed the careful training of Miss Emmons. The children had made white carnations and each child gave its mother a carnation when she entered the room. Quite a number of mothers attended the exercises and all thoroughly enjoyed the splendid program.

Come! smile with me a while with me, an idle hour beguile with me and cast dull care away. Be bright like me and trite like me, sit down and try to write like me, such stuff as this each week.

That a constitutional amendment should be proposed prohibiting the manufacture, sale or use of any footwear extending above the ankle, the purpose being to eliminate the bootleg.

That the fellow who is always buying feed for chickens doesn't always run a hen farm.

That to be a flea on a lion is far nobler than to be a flea on a skunk.

That the average woman don't want to vote if she can get a voter.

That there is pleasure in everything. For instance, a toothache—it feels so good when it stops.

That it takes really little to make some men happy. A good story, the affection of a cur dog, or a plain girl who kisses with her mouth half open.

That the first half of a president's term we long for his successor—the last half, for his successor.

That if dangerous means full of danger, hazardous, full of hazard, then pious must mean full of pie.

That to conduct a successful Bakery we must be young.

That a man may be Dean of a Drug Store as well as of a College.

That the following announcement, appearing in a Portland paper of recent date, must have drawn a large attendance: "The Church will hold a church sociable Wednesday night at the church parlors. The members will study Miss Saxe's outline, after which refreshments will be served."

That some men are born great, some achieve greatness, and some merely grate upon us.

That no woman ever loved a man so much that she didn't try to find out what the engagement ring cost.

That some men can talk more religion in ten minutes than they practice in ten years.

That John Dee's three Beaverton sons, John, Will and Eric, are faithful workers in daddy's interests here.

That a Hedge can adorn a Post Office as well as a well kept garden.
