AS IT SEEMS TO ME

That a woman gets more joy from suspecting her husband, than being sure.

That you should not be too certain of appearances—you sometimes get stuck on a rose.

That it is funny how the chicken-hearted "set" around hatching up excuses.

That the prize in a matrimonial lottery is often drawn in a perambulator.

That if a bass drum doesn't make good music, it at least drowns a lot of bad.

A nifty maiden fair, in Dolman cape, Amity hat of bonnet shape, A long tight skirt this maid did wear, She tried to cross the thoroughfare; But oh, alas! The maid did fall, And showed she had no socks at all!

That some men are generous to a fault, when the fault happens to be their own.

That the smaller the caliber the bigger the bore. This applies to men not firearms.

That some people are up in the social scale, simply because they are too light to bring the scale down.

That we should dream our dreams—they are the stuff the world is made of. But, make 'em come true.

Sing Ho! to 'Al Bishop's gray matter, With convolutions deep, That makes its home In his bald-headed dome, Where the thoughtlets learn to creep.

That cupid may be an excellent shot, but he bugs some mighty poor game.

That women have one advantage over men—they can wear straw hats in the winter without comment.

That Adam had his little troubles, but he never had to worry about Eve's milliner and dressmaker's bills.

That Cupid is a wise little fellow. He is always making matches, but never marries.

That if you sin, you must suffer for it; that is law. But though you sin, you may be forgiven for it; that is love.

That when potatoes are selling at ten cents a lb. everybody wants some, but when they are ten cents a bushel, they are thrown to the hogs. Thrift, Brothers!

Mistress—"You don't seem to know about finger bows, Norah. Didn't they have them at the last place you worked?"

Maid—"No, ma'am. They mostly washed themselves before they came to the table."

Merchant—"Aren't you the boy who was in here a week ago?"

Applicant—"Yes, sir."

Merchant—"I thought so. And didn't I tell you then that I wanted an older boy?"

Applicant—"Yes, sir; that's why I'm here now."

A TRIP TO STATE GRANGE AT BEND

County) potatoes, (baked) buns, coffee, with Carnation milk. There were about 500 persons present to partake of this treat, music and speaking and a huge bonfire being the other attractions. For souvenir, the Shelvinton Co., furnished a thin pine board for plates. This company has one of the largest pine mills in the Northwest. One third of Bend's population finds work at these two mills. All the delegates were invited to visit them and most of them improved the opportunity.

Thursday the Bend people again entertained the delegates by trips to the ice cave, horseshoe cave and other points, meeting centrally at the Grange Hall for ice cream and cake. We saw quite a bit of the country around a twenty mile trip and return by a different route. Thursday evening we were served a banquet of ice cream, cookies and punch. Bend surely treated us finely. Friday we attended Grange all day and past midnight.
