REPUBLICANS NOMINATE

As might have been expected when three candidates of so nearly even strength contested for the coveted prize, neither Wood, nor Johnson, nor LeVinen will bear the standard of the republicans in the coming campaign. The Chicago convention has named a man whose own efforts have made him powerful in his own state, popular in the nation and a force to be reckoned with in the affairs of the United States Senate. For the standard of the Republican Party will be carried forward by Senator Warren G. Harding, of Ohio.

Senator Harding is a newspaperman. He began life as a doctor's son and his first ambition was to study law. But a few months in the pursuit of legal knowledge changed his mind and he became owner of a small paper in a small Ohio town. It is said that he had only 200 copies of type and a very inferior press. But he had native ability and determination and today the small Ohio town is a manufacturing city of no mean significance and the little paper is a daily of importance in the affairs of state and nation and both town and paper owe their importance in a large measure to the boy who wouldn't quit when things looked black.

The republicans have nominated a man whom every republican can conscientiously support. He is classed as a conservative, but he is not so conservative but that he can see the good of some of the things advanced by his rivals. He is not retrogressive. He does not stand in the way of progress. He is practical. His record has been one of constructive progressivism. He will not make the error of advancing radical and untried schemes. But at the same time he will not make the error of standing in the way of practical progressive ideas that have been worked out and approved as good by a majority of the men to whom have been delegated the task of making laws and formulating policies for our nation.

In the present crisis which faces the world and in which America must take an important and in many instances the leading part, Harding is just the sort of man we need.

There are times when he would not be the best man. Perhaps there have been times when he would not have been a desirable candidate. But in the present state of affairs, both national and international, there is a demand for a man who cannot be stampeded by theories. And Warren G. Harding has had just the practical training that will make him demand the proof before he rushes into any scheme.

For his running mate, Governor Calvin Coolidge, of Massachusetts, many complimentary things have been said. He is worthy of them. He is the type of man that Oregon republicans can support.

The result of the convention was not what we had hoped for. It was not what we expected. But on the whole, we do not see that a better selection could have been made.

It remains to be seen what the democratic convention at San Franisco will do next week. Upon the outcome of that convention, will, of course, hinge in a large measure the campaign that will follow. There are things that the American people want which the republican convention did not insure. It is probable that they could not promise them in good faith. It is even possible that it is better that they should not. But the same opportunity lies before the democrats. If they can assure the voters of peace, prosperity, lower living costs, punishment of profiteers, protection of laborers and curtailment of red activities without endangering our liberties in other ways that are worse than the menaces now threatening, they will be in a position to make a good race in case they are able to agree on a strong nominee.

But whatever the outcome of the other convention or the decision of the voters in November, the choice of the Republican convention looks at this time to have been very practicable.

JUNIORS CAPTURE FAMOUS "BOXER" CHINESE IDOL

A Portland paper last week carried the following dispatch from Pacific University:

The most exciting event of commencement week occurred last night after the senior play when Harold Reed, of Tacoma, as president of the senior class, announced that the Pacific University spirit, "Boxer," was hidden on the campus and any class finding him could have him. The hunt lasted all night until at 5 o'clock this morning a truce was made to last until 5 in the afternoon. However, an eagle-eyed junior had spotted Boxer sitting placidly in one of the campus oaks at 3 o'clock, so about 9 o'clock took him away in an automobile. The Freshmen had spent the previous night in the hunt also.

Boxer has been like "all Gaul" divided into three parts, head, body and tail. During the winter Tommy Fowler of Rainier stole the tail from the seniors, but the upper class has managed to retain the rest of the "dog."

This "college spirit" is over 300 years old. Until 1838 he was the household deity of a Chinese family, but when the last of the owners died he was purchased by Dr. J. E. Walker, an alumnus of 1867, who was then doing missionary work in China. Dr. Walker brought the idol to this country and gave it to the university. For several years Boxer resided in an alcove of Brighton chapel until he was mysteriously spirited away by a few students.

Since then each class has endeavored to get him. His disappearance has been the result of class scrapping over him. He is now whole once more since the juniors obtained possession of him. The graduating class received him by the "will" of the class of '19.

"THE WORLD DO MOVE"

While grading papers in the recent Eighth Grade examination, an Oregon County School Superintendent gathered the following rather startling answers to questions:

"A political platform is a place for people who are making speeches to stand on so they can see the people and the people can see them."

"A convention is sort of a campaign that takes about one-third of the candidate's salary, and is given by the candidate and his supporters."

"Paul Revere was president of France."

"Harriet Beecher Stowe went to Cuba in the Spanish-American war as a Red Cross nurse."

"Henry Clay was the chief commander in the great war."

"Daniel Webster invented the dictionary."

"Patrick Henry drove the animals out of Ireland."

AS IT SEEMS TO ME

H. B.

That if you coop a Russian wolf bound in a kennel and gorge him on meat he did not chase and fight to kill, he will die of the mange.

That if you put your mind in a self-constructed cage of belived limitations, conceit, arrogance, hot air, and feed it food it did not fight for, and it will die of mental mange.

That we should turn the old "think organ" out into the world, lean and hungry, and make it fight for its food.

That there's one advantage in being a live wire—folks won't step on you.

That—
A man resembles a kerosene lamp,
He is not especially bright,
He also smokes, got turned down,
And often goes out at night.

That if a man is at all sharp, no other man tries to sit down on him more than once.

That if a man marries a woman because she has more sense than he has, he is never allowed to lose sight of the fact.

That—
The dressmaker knows how to fashion Women's form to enchant the eye
And yet there are cranky old fogies Who insist that figures can't lie.

That woman shares man's grief, doubles his joys, and troubles his expenses.

That Edison invented the phonograph, but the first talking machine was made from a man's rib.

That justice is probably represented as a woman, because it's something a man is always after.

That it is easier to point than to plod. That's why the world is full of human guideposts.

That the man who shaker hands the hardest is always the hardest to shake.

That time may be money, but some people's time is about as valuable as confederate currency.

That the man who is always complaining of having a wife to support, usually lives upon the fruits of her labor at the wash-tub.

If Physician is Not Called, Head of Household Must Report to Municipal or County Health Officer.

The health laws of the State of Oregon require the reporting of the following contagious diseases by physicians in charge of cases:

Chicken pox, diphtheria, erysipelas, German measles, influenza (flu), measles, mumps, pneumonia, scabies (itch), scarlet fever, small pox, tuberculosis, whooping cough.

It is not incumbent upon any one to call a physician for the sake of diagnosis or treatment of these cases, under the law, but the cases must be reported to the county or municipal health officer in any event. The responsible party, if a physician is not called, is the head of the household, in which the above diseases exist. He is supposed to have the necessary intelligence to make a diagnosis, if he assumes the responsibility of the care of the diseases enumerated above, in the absence of an attending physician.

Severe penalties are imposed under the law for the violation of the health laws relating to the above diseases. It is with the belief that lack of information is the cause of most violations of the law that this bulletin is issued.

All reports made to the County Health Officer, relative to the above will be used in the interest of public health.

MAKE REPORTS WITHOUT DELAY.

DR. L. HYDE,
County Health Officer, Hillsboro, Oregon.

GASOLINE AND STREET REGULATIONS SHRINE WEEK

The Oregonian says that auto parking and auto traffic will be prohibited absolutely in the downtown district bounded by Third, Tenth, Oak and Yamhill streets during the whole of next week.

The only exceptions will be for a very limited number of machines for Shrine committee chairmen and delivery wagons for firms in the congested area.

Elsewhere on the west side, travel and parking will be permitted, unless contrary to police regulations. Sixth Street, for instance, will be kept clear for arrivals.

The family automobile may be kept home so far as being utilized as a parading grandstand for the parades. Parking at street intersections, long a favored pastime, is under the ban. Cars may be parked only along the curb and well away from the intersection.

The gasoline supply is chaotic. Each company has a different version of what portends next week.

As for the Standard: The ban will be temporarily removed next Monday morning. There will be no discrimination as to cars, for it is felt by company officials that many cars not officially designated will carry Shriners. Portland will be using Gas Portland has saved, up to about 250,000 gallons.

A very vague outline was offered by the Associated. Assistant Manager Parker asserted that rigid conservation had been practiced and that, so far as possible, Shrine cars and their regular trade would be cared for.

The Union, through V. H. Kelly, manager, promised to take care of the requirements of all Shrine cars, bearing recognized Shrine insignia or gasoline orders from the automobile committee of the Shrine.

The Shell company, Manager Storey asserted, would be unable to tell what it could do for a day or two until it checked up its gasoline on hand.

BANKS WANTS HIGHWAY

Monday night a large crowd from Banks, Manning, Buxton and surrounding country gathered in mass, with a determination to "do something" if possible, to get some attention on the road question. A Good Roads Organization was formed and each one present was much enthused over a State Highway or Market Road. Hundreds of people in this big rich territory are asking for a Highway from Forest Grove through thence to Astoria. Any other route is longer, steeper, more curves, more expensive, utterly foolish to contemplate. All these towns, this organization are working for this Banks-Buxton route NOW. It belongs here and is a necessity as soon as possible. The whole territory is aroused, up in arms, (figuratively speaking) and they intend letting their great need be known.—Banks Herald.

HILLSBORO MEASURES PASS

All proposed measures carried at the special city election held on Tuesday of last week, the opposition vote in no case being half of that cast for the measures. The traffic amendment carried by a vote of 298 to 131. This measure confers the same powers upon the city council to regulate automobiles and trucks that a former provision gave them to regulate draylines and liveries. This measure was opposed by the "jitneys," but now that it has carried the council will have full power to pass ordinances to regulate them. The curfew amendment carried by a vote of 307 to 57. The park bonds were favored by a vote of 322 to 79. Work is already under way to have the park in shape for the Fourth of July celebration.
