That Congress is to blame for the unsatisfactory census returns is the opinion of W. D. Bennett, of Portland, candidate for Public Service Commissioner on the Democratic ticket, who was here last week. He says that there was not sufficient money appropriated to hire census takers to go around, much less to pay adequately for thorough and careful work.

John E. Olden, of Hesperia, through his attorneys, Messrs. McAlister & Peters, has foreclosed a mortgage on the plant and property of the Pacific Potato Storage Company at Beaverton. Mr. Olden financed the operations of this company and as the seasons have been unfavorable for the manufacture of potato starch, he has decided to take over the affairs of the company.

The County Court has arranged its intention to complete the grading of the Tillamook Highway from Forest Grove to the Yamhill County line this season. Two crews are at work. The 4,000 feet north of the river open on the same bridge will later be filled, as will also the 1,000 feet of trestle work on the Dairy Creek bridge west of Hillsboro.

of Oregon, passed away August 10 at his home in Hillsboro, Oregon. Judge West was born in Hillsboro, Oregon, in 1854. He was also a member of the Oregon Agricultural Experiment Station and the Oregon Forestry Commission. He was a prominent citizen and a well-known lawyer.

EDITORS URGED TO JOIN IN FARM AD CAMPAIGN

That a mighty big field of farm advertising worth $100,000 annually could be opened up in Oregon with some success, profit to farmers and publishers, was said by C. J. Mcintosh, agricultural press editor at O. A. C., to the State Editorial association.

"The average farm yields annually at least $200 worth of produce that could be marketed more profitably through advertisements in the community press than in any other way," declared "The weekly" for $1,000,000 worth of this class of produce for the near 50,000 farms of the state.

"Big business allows not less than 3 per cent of gross sales for advertising, and this basis would call for the use of $200,000 for local advertising. The grower of the produce, the consumer, and the press, would benefit from this practice. No legitimate business suffers."

The speaker said that the college had already taken this course up with farmers' organizations and individual farmers, and that the farmers were ready to give the plan a trial to a much greater extent than before.

"A number of editors have already built up a big advertising trade with their farm patrons," Mr. Mcintosh declared, "and similar cooperation in extending the practice promises splendid results."

The college is considering the advisability of issuing a bulletin on the advantages and methods of farm advertising.

Will Exhibit at State Fair

The Oregon Dairy Council is planning to have an exhibit at the state fair in Salem and at the Pacific International Livestock Exposition. The exhibit will show the composition of milk and the health with attractive displays with posters showing the food value of milk and others sent by the National Dairy Council. The Council is also getting the butter men together to stress the fact that there is no substitute for butter. Advocating milk recesses for schools whereby the teachers are willing to co-operate is another feature of the Dairy Council work.

TIMELY REMARKS TO NEW MADE CITIZENS

In admitting a number of men to citizenship in Joseph B. Davis' court in Chicago, Judge Davis said to them:

"In this day of unrest, when the civilized world is in a turmoil, it is important that you who are about to become citizens of the United States of America shall fully appreciate the priceless heritage which is about to be conferred upon you. The United States is a government intended to protect the humblest in its poverty, in its liberty, and in its character, and no man has the right to renounce his allegiance to his mother country and ask to become an integral part of this government unless he fully appreciates the advantages of being a citizen of these United States.

"We recognize in this country no church, and we recognize no division in religion, race, creed or color. We are a unity; we stand behind the citizen so long as he stands behind the government, and unless you who are about to swear allegiance to the constitution of the United States stand ready and willing to defend that constitution you are perpetrating a fraud in endeavoring to secure your certificate of naturalization.

"This is not a government for capital or labor; this is not a government for the rich or for the poor. This is a government for all, and it lies within the power of the citizen, if he is dissatisfied with any law or with any constitution, to secure by peaceful means a change; and we have no patience with any one, or any class, which has for its slogan the endeavor to tear down our institutions.

"We do not expect nor will we tolerate in our country anarchy or any movement which seeks to overturn this government other than by peaceful means."

LONG LIFE IN THE COUNTRY

The average age at death of the American farmer is seven years higher than that of the city business man. The average age of the country woman is five years above that of the city woman. The average age of the factory mechanic at death must be even less than that of the city business man, since working conditions in so many shops are not healthy. So the young folks who give up good homes in Beaverton to meet in cities, practically give up 5 or 10 years of their lives.

UNION HIGH SCHOOL PROJECT WAS LOST

On the face of the returns made on election night last week the Norris-Tinnon reported that the proposition to unite the four town school districts contiguous to Forest Grove in a union high school district had carried. When the official count was made it was found that Gales Park district which was reported 4 to 1 in favor of the proposition had been reported wrong and its result was 4 to 1 against the proposition. This result tied the election and the proposition cannot be carried out until another election is held, which will no doubt be had and another district or two included.—Forest Grove News-Times.

FOLDER DESCRIBES RECREATION AREAS

A handsomely illustrated folder which includes a map of the principal highways for the entire state of Oregon has just been issued by the Forest Service. This is the first time this branch of the United States Department of Agriculture has issued a map of the entire state. The new publication should prove of immense value to all persons, particularly motorists, seeking recreation in this region endowed with such a variety of natural attractions. The booklet is entitled, "Road and Recreation Map of Oregon," and contains descriptions of recreation spots in the national forests of this state. These picturesque areas, many of them heavily forested, are "in every sense free recreation grounds," says the pamphlet, "and no trammels are put on your enjoyment. All the Forest Service asks is that you be careful with fire and that you look to the proper cultivation of your camp."

Not only is this wonderful characterized by scenes infinitely varied, but as the map shows, they are easily accessible. In the construction of the present highway system the Forest Service has played an important part, having built many miles of road. When all plans have been carried out, there will be over a thousand miles of good highway in these national forests.

Many well-kept-out camp sites await the outdoor enthusiast. Several of these are close by streams where fish are abundant and where hunting is good. Numerous camp grounds are equipped with stone fireplaces. The extensive telephone systems of the Forest Service are available to the public free in case of emergency.

Notable among the recreation places mentioned are the Hinshaw resorts in the national forest bearing that name, the Eagle Creek camp grounds, Columbia Gorge Park, Latham and Hildway Springs, the Anthony Lake Region, Crater National Park, Dead Indian Beds Springs, Oregon Caves, Wenaha Springs, and McManis Bridge. The latter is a Mecca for tourists and is the camping point for many campers and hunters in the north end of the Cascade National Forest. Persons desiring copies of this pamphlet may obtain them by addressing a request to the District Forester, Portland, Oregon.

PRUNE GROWERS WILL HEAR NOTED SPEAKERS

Because the gasoline situation seemed uncertain, officers of the Washington County Farm Bureau have given up the idea of a prune tour and instead will hold a prune chautauque at the Pacific University campus all day Saturday of this week. Leading authorities on prune culture, prune diseases and prune marketing have been secured for the day and a basket dinner will be held. Is your orchard producing two tons dried, or better, regularly? How long should a prune tree bear commercial crops? Does heart-rot affect your profits? How about the best fertilizer? How about animal manure, cover crops, early cultivation practices and spraying? What becomes of your prunes after delivery to the packing house? How about the future of the prune industry? The best authorities in the state will answer these questions.

Bring your family and lunch and spend the day. Free coffee will be furnished by the Forest Grove Commercial Club. The program will be held, rain or shine. See the full program, page 7. The call is signed by the Washington County Farm Bureau, A. E. Westcott, president, and Earl Peary, horticultural project.
