AS IT SEEMS TO ME

H. B.

That the trouble with the world just now—and it has plenty—is that nobody wants to stick to his own woodpile and whack up a decent pile of elm. There's more fun in telling the neighbors how to conduct their business and to live their life.

That all available money should be spent for teachers' salaries and not for books or new positions.

If a woman's mind is a blank during sleep, it must be difficult for some women to tell when they are awake.

That love, like a baby's smile, cannot be bought with gold. Many a woman has simulated love for a dowry with a husband thrown in, and practiced the deception for years, but true love, of the kind which lasts eternally, cannot be purchased. The love of a pure woman is held by her as the most sacred gift which she can bestow. It is not to be bought with gold, or silver, or precious stones. It is given freely to the man she loves.

That the next day after a man wedd an angel she begins to shed her wings.

That if a woman is wise she will never remind her husband of the fool things he said during courtship.
