A good word spoken for your town is never thrown away.

The fellow who always kicks and never boots is not a good citizen. His room is worth more than his company.

Through the efforts of Senator Charles L. McNary and the Oregon Growers' Co-operative Association, the United States Senate finance committee has approved the House emergency tariff bill in which a duty of four cents a pound was placed on cherries. Also, a duty of 20 cents a box was placed on apples.

Claude E. Ingalls, editor of the Gazette Times of Corvallis, has the right idea about folks buying home products. After publishing two recipes wherein Mistland prunes form part of the ingredients, he says: "And by the way, we noticed a Corvallis restaurant menu the other day that quited California prunes. What's the idea when we have far better prunes at home?"

GROVE BRICK YARD HELPS TO WIN PRIZE

The Forest Grove brick yard helped to win a prize for Southern Pacific Agent Deakin last summer. In the car-loading contest conducted by the Southern Pacific during August, September and October this station shipped the second best loaded train of cars, and the agent received the second prize of $25.00.

Pretty good for the first season of the brick yard. Next year we expect the agent to get the first prize.

BIG TURNIP ADVERTISEMENTS FOREST GROVE IN TEXAS

Texas is a state of big things. In fact Texas is a big state in itself, but when it comes to raising turnips that country is not in it with this fine Forest Grove country.

It will be remembered that some weeks ago the News-Times put on a turnip contest and received some pretty fair specimens of that vegetable. They attracted much attention by strangers in town and one man lugged a big one away up into Idaho to exhibit to admiring friends. The biggest one we had, however, which was raised by Jack Howland and tipped the beam at 26 pounds and 3 ounces, was admired by Mr. and Mrs. James A. Band, of Portland, who wanted to send it to a relative in Texas and we gave it to them for that purpose and they sent it down by parcel post and it has since been doing duty advertising Forest Grove in the southland and was printed a large sign bearing this inscription which was placed on the turnip when exhibited: "This turnip was raised at Forest Grove, Oregon, and weighed when pulled, 26 pounds and 3 ounces."

The following letter is fully explanatory and shows how the turnip is doing its bit toward advertising this fine country. Are you doing as good work as this turnip in boosting your town and your community? At least be a turnip.

Fl. Worth, Texas, Dec. 30, 1920.

Editor News-Times, Forest Grove, Ore.

Dear Sir:—The extra large turnip you gave Mr. James A. Band, of Portland, was promptly forwarded to me here and was in fine condition. It was placed in our show window two days and since that time has been in the show window of one of our largest business houses in the city and is in fair condition yet.

Our largest turnips here weigh as much as 5 pounds, so you may understand we all think it S-O-M-E turnip. Thanks.

Yours Respectfully,
C. E. McCUBBIN,
1900 8th Avenue.

OLD PACIFIC UNIVERSITY STUDENT GAINS HONOR

In a recent number of Forbes is an appreciation of a former Pacific student, A. C. Gilbert. After leaving Pacific he worked his way thru Yale receiving the degree of Doctor of Medicine. While at Pacific he won honors in the athletic field as captain of the college track and champion amateur wrestler of the Northwest. At Yale he won the school's gymnasium championship, over 300 cups, medals, other prizes, and in turn was selected to represent the United States in the Olympic Games at London. Here he established himself as the world's champion vaultor, breaking all previous records and was awarded the gold medal by Queen Alexandria personally.

Early in life he displayed skill as a magician and constructor of slight-of-hand apparatus. Upon graduation he decided upon a career where he could use constructive ability rather than become a physical instructor, and much to the disappointment of his father, started the manufacture of toys.

At present this is the largest factory in the world, namely A. C. Gilbert Company, New Haven, Conn. The famous Gilbert Erector Toys are made for boys and instruct them in the fields of engineering, carpentry, running of weather bureaus, actual operation of wireless stations and many problems in physics and chemistry.

During the war the manufacture of toys was prohibited to a large degree and when it seemed that the decision of the National Council of Defense was going to put a ban on erectors, Mr. Gilbert interviewed the cabinet personally which resulted in turning them educational essentials. Thus the business has grown in 10 years from $37,000 sales with only $366 profit to over 2,000,000 sales with about $250,000 profit.

Mr. Gilbert attributes his success to the fact that his business is conducted on the right ideals thru persistent effort, constant study and careful judgment.—College Index.

Old-Time Citizen at Grove
Uncle Steve M. Harris, an old-time citizen of this fine town who lived here when Mr. Hood was a baby, was a caller here last week and enjoyed a very pleasant visit with old time friends. Mr. Harris now lives at Vancouver, Wash. His father, Philip Harris, was the first man early to witness the champion game. A Hillsboro man was the first to play. In a short time he failed to make his wire and Mr. Harris followed, and it is related that he played the champion game of the world at that time. Passing through the wickets and playing on his adversary he carried the opposition ball with him. He went through every wicket without missing a single play and won the game for Forest Grove without another man striking a ball. At that time no such a wonderful record had ever before been made. Ira Purdin, John E. Bailey and other pioneer citizens vouch for the truth of the story. —Forest Grove News-Times.
