

CAMPMEETING WILL DEDICATE GARAGE

Addition to Erickson Building to House Evangelist and Followers Before Serving Gasoline Vehicles.

Before the new addition to the Erickson Ford Garage in Beaverton begins its career as an emporium for Ford, Fordsons, gasolines, oils, repairing and the many other useful factors of the modern transportation and power farming requirements, it will perform a higher and a greater service—a service more universal than even the Ford car.

The evangelist will be assisted by Fred Odlund, a capable song leader, who has been identified with evangelistic work throughout the Northwest. The Putney family, musicians, consisting of Mr. Putney, who plays the cornet and his three daughters, who play, respectively, the piano, the alto trumpet and the saxophone, will be features of each evening's service.

Seating facilities and other arrangements for the comfort and convenience of those who attend are being arranged by Reverend Mr. Gray. Profitable meetings are assured for ten days or more.

ALADDIN'S LAMP

When to the joys and woes of earth Aladdin said goodby He took his precious silver lamp And hung it in the sky. Its magic rays convert the sands Along the beach to gold. And scattered bits of broken glass To gems of worth untold.

GONE—ENRICO CARUSO

Gone is Caruso, world famous for singing. Gone with the boatman to the other shore. Gone, and his spirit in heaven is winging. Gone from the stage to sing to us no more. Gone, but remembered by friends he was knowing. Gone are his talents so well known to all. Gone, but we realized he soon might be going. Gone to his reward, answering his call.

FRUIT JAR MADE IN 1858

Fruit jars made back in 1858 found their way to Oregon, at least Mrs. Albert Shank of Carlton, has one in her possession. The Sentinel of Carlton states that Mrs. Shank found in her home recently "a curiosity that she had had a long time without being aware of it. When doing up the winter's fruit this summer she found a sealer for which she was unable to get a top to fit. The reason was discovered when she examined the jar and found the date, 1858, stamped in the glass. Its own top had long disappeared."

MENTION MRS. WILSON FOR COUNTY SCHOOLS

Former Beaverton Teacher Being Considered as Successor to N. A. Frost, Who Has Resigned.

Who will succeed N. A. Frost, who has recently resigned as County Superintendent of Washington County, to take effect October 10? There is no dearth of teachers who would be willing to take the place, but it seems likely that it will be a woman. Among those most prominently mentioned are Mrs. L. E. Wilson of Beaverton, Mrs. Archie Bryant of Forest Grove and Mrs. Josephine Case of Hillsboro. All three are capable teachers, all have had successful experience in the county and each is backed by friends who are influential throughout the county.

The salary of the position is $1200 a year with a limited allowance for clerk hire. Mr. Frost was appointed to the office several years ago when B. W. Barnes resigned and was later elected to the office at the general election. He was active in the effort to have the office recognized as one of equal importance with other county offices.

The many friends of Mrs. Wilson in this locality will urge her appointment and the County Court will be able to find no more enthusiastic and conscientious teacher for the place.

WASHINGTON COUNTY GIRL IN SEA WRECK

Frona Erker, of Cornelius, Narrowly Escapes Death in Sea Disaster at Eureka, Calif.

One of the worst sea disasters in many years occurred off the California shore near Eureka, on Saturday night when 38 people were drowned when the steamer Alaska of the San Francisco & Portland Steamship company, bound from Portland to San Francisco, sank 30 minutes after crashing into the rocks of Blunt's reef, 40 miles south of Eureka. The steamer carried a large number of passengers and among them was a Washington County girl, Frona Erker, of Cornelius, who narrowly escaped with her life. Miss Erker is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Erker, of Cornelius, and she was on her way to San Diego, California, in company with her sister, Mrs. Emma Wylander, and daughter, Mrs. Wylander and daughter escaped uninjured, and although first reports stated that Miss Erker was quite badly injured, she was able to go on her way to San Diego.

BOOST

Boost your city, boost your friend, Boost the church that you attend. Boost the street on which you're dwelling. Boost the goods that you are selling. Boost the people round about you. They can get along without you. But success will quicker find them. If they know that you're behind them. Boost for every forward movement; Boost for every new improvement; Boost the man for whom you labor; Boost the stranger and the neighbor. Cease to be a chronic knocker. Cease to be a progress blocker. If you'd make your city better; Boost it to the final letter.

SURVEYORS AT WORK ON TILLAMOOK ROAD

The county courts of Washington and Tillamook counties the first of this week set to work a surveying crew to establish a survey for the proposed Wilson River highway between here and Tillamook. The proposed new highway which is contended, pass over an easy grade, form one of the most scenic highways in Oregon, cut off thirty miles of distance between Portland

Beaverton High School Building Where School Will Start Sept. 12

This magnificent building houses the high school and the seventh and eighth grades. It contains auditorium, gymnasium, convenient classrooms, laboratories, work rooms, and a modern heating plant. Beaverton schools are among the best in the state. High school graduates are admitted to any institution of higher learning in the state without further examination and are accorded the same privileges in most institutions outside the state.

and the ocean and at the same time open up a vast timber belt unsurpassed in timber wealth. In addition one of the richest sections in Oregon will be served and an outlet formed for vast agricultural resources. This is only the preliminary step which it is hoped will lead to a State Highway that will later be paved from Portland to the Pacific Ocean.

Washington Orphans Here

A number of orphans from the Children's Home at Des Moines, Wash., under charge of Superintendent H. M. Draper, visited Beaverton Tuesday evening and gave a concert on the streets. This orphanage is made largely self-supporting by the earnings of the band which visits different parts of the country each summer. The travel is said by Mr. Draper, who is accompanied by his wife and her sister, to be highly educational to the graduates of the school than is usual in orphanages.

BROCCOLI PROBLEMS TO BE STUDIED

The importance of Oregon's broccoli industry is making itself felt and the government officials are making plans to investigate the best methods of shipping this vegetable. There has been some trouble with broccoli jackets yellowing before they reach the market when they have to be shipped long distances. Geo. K. Link, of the Bureau of Plant Industry, and G. W. Mann, of the Bureau of Markets, have conferred with the management of the Oregon Growers' Co-operative association regarding investigation of present methods of shipment and it is probable that the Government will co-operate with the association in this winter's shipments to determine methods which will eliminate the present difficulties. Last season the Oregon Growers shipped 60 cars of broccoli from different points in Oregon.

$150,000 PACIFIC COLLEGE ENDOWMENT OVERSUBSCRIBED

The $150,000 endowment fund sought by Pacific college has been oversubscribed by $4,000, according to announcement from Newberg. It was announced that with the money just subscribed, the college treasurer could now pay all the school's obligations and still have a $200,000 endowment fund. Levi T. Pennington, president of Pacific college, who has been on leave of absence for two years, is driving home by auto from Richmond, Ind., according to a message received. He is expected at Newberg not later than the time for opening the fall term.—McMinnville News-Reporter.

Beekeeping is Developing

Beekeeping is an occupation rapidly developing in Oregon. Large commercial apiaries are increasing in size in the irrigated sections of eastern Oregon, in the fire-weed sections of southern Oregon, and in the alkali-clover section of the Willamette valley. Many beekeepers have incomes of from $1500 to $4000 while some have an income from their apiaries which is more than $10,000. The present production of honey in Oregon is nearly 1,000,000 pounds. Bee pasture is being constantly increased, due to larger areas coming under irrigation. Demand for men trained in beekeeping is urgent. The department of entomology of the Oregon Agricultural college has received requests from commercial horticulturists for keeping to take charge of their orchards and bees. Large commercial apiaries are also looking for men experienced in beekeeping to manage their apiaries.

LOCAL LODGE ENJOYS DAY AT CRYSTAL LAKE

Members of Beaverton Council Join With Anchor Council, of Portland, In Enjoyable Picnic.

Many members of Beaverton Council, Security Benefit Association, joined with Anchor Council of Portland, in a picnic held at Crystal Lake Park, near Milwaukie, Sunday. Arriving at the park before noon, they enjoyed a basket dinner and spent the afternoon in the joyous atmosphere and welcome shade of the popular amusement resort. Dancing, a baseball game, races and boxing bouts added to the usual swimming and boating made a wonderful day for all who attended.

On Monday night of next week members of the local lodge will journey to St. Johns, to visit the council there and it is the request of the president of the council that as many members as possible make the trip.

NO VALUE TO EDUCATION IN BOY'S IDEA

Much space was given recently in the metropolitan press of the "famous" 13-year-old Carl Weimert, former student of the Ladd school in Portland, who is said to be astounding the public school teachers of Long Beach as a mathematical wizard. Carl's system is supposed to initiate the grammar school student into the mysteries of algebra and geometry by teaching him to calculate by letters instead of figures. Harold S. Tuttle, professor of education at Pacific University, yesterday gave his ideas on Carl's system to the News-Times in the following interview:

"Carl Weimert and his mathematical wizardry may be a good bit of advertising for Long Beach and California, but there is nothing of value to education in the idea he proposes to write into his text book on arithmetic. According to press reports he would use symbols in place of positions to distinguish thousands, hundreds, tens and units. He would teach grade pupils to calculate by this means.

"In the first place his idea is not new. It is as old as the Arabians who lived in the days of Baghdad's glory. If it were new it would not be in place in a text book, except as a paragraph of suggestions to teachers. For it is a device, not a principle. Many a grade teacher, fresh from high school or college, has tried to use the idea, but it has found no permanent place as a teaching device for the simple reason that it is not suited to the mind of the child of grammar school age.

"This is the fundamental reason why Carl must face disappointment. He must learn that the laws of the mind are as well as the laws of the senses. He is proposing to use abstract concepts in teaching children of an age that can understand concrete ideas only.

"He has reached the age of abstract concepts. The idea of algebraic symbols is suited to his age and mental capacity. If elementary grade pupils had the capacities and the knowledge which he now has, the device he proposes would be of value. But when one reaches his stage of mental development, he has already learned arithmetic.

"So his plan is but one of the dreams of youth—and of no value as science, but of untold worth to the dreamer. Dreamers keep the world from petrifying—God bless them!" —Forest Grove News-Times

WALKER BROTHERS FIRST TO HEAR OLD ACADEMY BELL

(From P. U. Bulletin)

This week the Portland office received a letter from Rev. Joseph Elkanah Walker, an A. E. C. F. M. missionary at the Shaowu Mission in China. This station is far inland and was opened by Mr. Walker in 1878. He was a member of the class of 1887, the 34th members of which were Judge John Q. A. Bowley of Astoria, Oregon, and Dr. David Raffety of Portland. With his contribution to the endowment Mr. Walker writes as follows of Pacific University:

"From the beginning it stood for a college course, which was such according to eastern standards. Inevitably it has dropped much out of my life. But there are several reasons why I claim special interest in it. I presume that my brother, Cyrus Hamlin Walker, and I are the only living persons who witnessed the raising of the log schoolhouse in the summer of 1849, and the frame of the sixth Academy a year or two later, attended school in the log schoolhouse, and services in the old log church, and heard the Academy bell, the very first time it rang in the cupola of the academy building. It was imported, originally by Roman Catholic fathers, from Europe; and few sweeter-toned bells can be found. When quite a small boy I was sent one evening with a note to Prof. Sidney H. Marsh (Dr. Marsh), which informed him that my father and mother had decided to donate 15 and a fraction acres to Pacific University. The dividing line between Father Clark's and my father's farms ran east and west through the hall of the Academy building.

"In the summer of 1859 I decided to study for the ministry. I was then 15; and this was the beginning of a regular course of study in the Academy and the College. At that time the college courses seemed unattractive, and I did not definitely know whether I entered either college or academy. But I know when I graduated from college; and when I went east to Bangor Theological Seminary, I easily held my own with other college graduates.

"One of the earliest students was Cyrus T. Lacey. His father had been a physician in Ore., a City, Cyrcams on foot to us from Oregon (I wheeled his trunk before him on a wheelbarrow. But he could not along with—well, I won't say and after about two years became couraged and quit. Only a few intimate friends knew why! more than lack of grit.

"Cushing Eells, J. M. Keel (Shaddock (Judge Shaddock) Marsh were named to be as those who were my boyhood, with Prof. H. A. Tanner, Prof. E. A. Tanner, Prof. Lyman, as Marsh in

"Even as a small boy I was interested in geology; directly under the construction of Prof. Collier and Joseph's instruction of Prof. E. A. Tanner, as Marsh in "This letter was written Mr. Walker's brother, Cyrus, has passed on. He died recently at Albany, Ore.

Planting strawberry plants of the Progressive Everbearing variety on May 1 and having runners rooted on August 1, before the middle of August is the accomplishment of W. G. Gifford on Beaverton garden soil. This is fully evidenced by the display in the office of E. E. Swenson, Beaverton realtor, which has attracted much attention the past few days. Mr. Gifford is enjoying a good harvest of berries every day.

Mrs. A. M. Hocken entertained a number of little folks last Monday in honor of Billy Hocken's sixth birthday. Games were played and refreshments of ice cream, cake and lemonade were served. Those present were: Emma Hocken, Helen Hocken, Thomas Cameron, Gene Jones, John Hocken and Billy Hocken. Mr. and Mrs. Day, Cray and family left Thursday for an outing at Seaside.
