IMPROVED ROADS

PROPER WIDTH OF HIGHWAYS

Eighteen Feet Should Be the Minimum, Not the Maximum on Main Traveled Roads.

Through all the years we have been trying to maintain from forty to sixty-foot roads in a large percentage of our public highways when such a width was wholly unnecessary. The road sides have not been cared for because they were waste land and this lack of care has made them spreaders of weed seed and hay fever. A narrower roadway, well kept, would in most cases serve all the purposes required, drainage and safety, says the Successful Farmer.

Now that the roads are to be hard surfaced the tendency is to go to the other extreme in order to save taxes for paving. We must look ahead. If we put down a paving that will last fifteen or twenty years, we must estimate if possible the amount and kind of traffic it will bear at that time.

Putting the Finishing Touches on Hard Surface Road.

If the road is dangerously narrow now, as is the case where less than eighteen feet is paved, what will it be in twenty years?

Eighteen feet should be the minimum, not the maximum, and on main traveled roads a greater width will seem narrow in twenty years. In England and France the roads are paved clear to the fences or sides of the highways, unless a curb and sidewalk or bicycle path is maintained between the road and fence. Every foot is kept in good condition, good drainage is as much a part of the European highways as is the case with our city paved streets.

We are at the beginning of motor transport. Unless we look ahead and provide wider pavements, we will find the highways crowded and our possible relief from railway congestion annulled. A few dollars saved now in narrowing our paved highways will prove a short sighted policy.

We have already seen the folly of constructing our canals too narrow and locks too short. The great lakes boats needed in Atlantic transport during the war had to be cut in two and taken through the canals in pieces. Ocean ships cannot reach interior ports until the canals and locks are enlarged. This is a highway lesson to us. Look to the future.

ROAD LEGISLATION OPPOSED

Engineers, Dairy Farmers, Fruit and Vegetable Growers Making Vigorous Protest.

All industry and a great portion of the agricultural interests of the country are up in arms against the hasty and ill-considered legislation already enacted by a few states and pending in others which threatens to strangle one of the nation's most essential industries, motor truck transportation, says a writer in an exchange.

The protests come from highway engineers, dairy farmers, fruit and vegetable growers, grain belt shippers, all lines of industry and commerce and other operators of motor trucks and their patrons.

They say increased license fees and restrictive legislation have been effected without sufficient investigation and without conclusive evidence.

A sensible solution is being worked out by the state of Illinois. The state highway department has under construction an experimental road containing 64 test sections, each section differing from the others in design.

Building in South.

A stretch of hard-surfaced road in the southern states, twenty-five miles in length, was difficult to be found six years ago, whereas at present there are any number of hard surfaced roads from twenty-five to 100 miles in length.

Acquire Road Trees.

The state highway commission in California has the authority to acquire roadside trees along its highways.

Construction in India.

Highway construction is now making important and extensive strides in various cities in India.

Traffic to the Right.

Vehicular traffic on highways in France keeps to the right, while railroad traffic keeps to the left.

METHOD IN HIS SOLICITUDE

As the Post Longfellow Has Said, "The Thoughts of Youth Are Long, Long Thoughts."

Little Billy, being at the seaside, was taken ill, and confined to his bed for a day. A timid caller came to inquire, a small boy unknown at the house, evidently some playmate of the sands.

Little Billy's mother was greatly touched, and praised the caller, blessed him for his thoughtful attention, and gave him chocolate.

Billy's playmate then backed nervously down the steps, gathering courage as he went for a final inquiry. "If Billy dies," he said, "when safely on the pavement, 'cuz I have his scooter!"

In the "Good Old Times"

As far back as 100 years ago they had in the state of Ohio a farmers' co-operative organization in Licking county. Prices paid by this organization ran thus: Wheat, 25 cents a bushel; oats, 12 1/2 cents; corn, 12 cents; potatoes, 12 1/2 cents; flour, 15 cents per hundred; chickens, 37 cents a dozen; eggs, 34 cents; and maple sirup, 8 cents a gallon. However, these values were only allowed when articles were taken in exchange for products. The figures were taken from old records secured by the Ohio experiment station. Just think of selling a dozen chickens for 37 cents! Yum, yum! And eggs at 34 cents a dozen. Geewhitticker! Oats at 12 1/2 cents a bushel wasn't a very low price when compared to the fact that in 1900, when the free silver agitation was at its height, oats sold in Indiana at 10 cents a bushel.—Indianapolis Star.

Preventing Accidents.

In the last five years the executives of American industry have become thoroughly convinced of the value of organized accident prevention, some because of the dollars-and-cents possibilities, others because they hated to see their men killed or injured. Even today discoveries are being made in the science of accident prevention. Within the last year, for instance, there has been enunciated the principle that every accident is the symptom of an inefficiency; that everything which is really efficient is safe, and that every machine or process which is really safe is efficient.—Melville Nix, in the Nation's Business.

She—Are you sure that we are living beyond our means?

He—Worse than that, we are living beyond our credit.

Alaska's Bald Eagles Vanishing. "In a very short while there will not be a bald eagle in Alaska, at the rate these birds are now being killed," said John B. Traister of Sitka, in an interview at Washington. "During last summer bounties were paid to men who shot and killed bald eagles. It is said that some 15,000 birds were killed. That is a high rate, and if it continues for many more months the time will soon be at hand when Alaska will be completely rid of the bald eagle. The largest specimens of this bird come from Alaska and the Northwest."

First Writing Paper.

The ancient Egyptians were the first people to make what today would be called paper. They made it from a reed called papyrus, which grew abundantly in marshy places. And there is where the name paper came from. They took slices of the reed, cut them as thin as they could, and then laid them side by side; then they arranged another layer on top. When dried and rubbed smooth it made a kind of paper which could be written upon.

Has Surplus of Stomachs.

Two heads may be better than one, but a pair of stomachs is too much and so, when an eight-year-old girl of Bristol, Wis., complained for a year of stomach aches in her breast, the doctor investigated and discovered the second digestive apparatus right where the child claimed the pain originated. After an operation the girl is getting along nicely at her home—Exchange.

Strange Playmates.

Two odd playmates were noticed by a farmer in New Brunswick. The farmer had a cat that had made friends with a ground squirrel. They played around the fields and ran up and down the windline on the house. They were playmates until the cat got killed, and then the squirrel disappeared.
