TWO HALF SCHOLARSHIPS GIVEN TO PACIFIC

The Conservatory of Pacific University announces the receipt of a gift last week of a sum of money to be used for the purpose of awarding two half scholarships in the Violin Department.

The scholarships are the gift of Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Barber, of Forest Grove, who are well known in the Northwest for their interest in educational and religious matters.

While the manner of awarding these scholarships has not been fully determined as yet, the decision will probably be left to Prof. W. W. Graham, Head of the Violin Department. The scholarships are available this semester.

Ethel Long Newman Writes of Life in Armenia. Where She Manages Great Orphanage.

Some vivid pictures of life in Russian Armenia, where gas and famine stalks in the wake of devastating war, are given by Mrs. Samuel Newman, formerly Miss Ethel Long, graduate of Oregon Agricultural College, class of 1920, in letters to friends in Oregon.

Mrs. Newman and her husband, the latter a graduate of the Idaho Agricultural College, were married in Portland last spring, and soon after left for Armenia to join the staff of Near East Relief workers in charge of two large orphanages near Alexandropol, where an extensive agricultural reconstruction project is being inaugurated. The Soviet government, unable to cope with the appalling conditions following the warfare waged in that region almost continuously since 1914, last year turned over to the Near East Relief three unarmament military posts which had been converted into orphanages, together with 115,000 acres of land to be put under cultivation.

"It is a staggering task," the Near East Relief has undertaken, writes Mrs. Newman, "but we are working hard and making progress in the face of overwhelming odds. Sam has 20,000 acres of farm lands under his supervision, and is tilling early and late getting his farm units started. I am busy every hour of the day with my work in the orphanage here, which shelters 2,000 children and gives employment to the mothers and fathers of many hundreds more. The farms, you know, are operated in connection with the orphanages. Besides receiving instruction in manual training and other useful things, the larger boys are taught modern scientific methods of farming. The orphan girls are taught to weave rugs and to sew and cook. We are also operating several industrial units where cloth is woven and garments made for the children."

"It was all very discouraging at first," Mrs. Newman continues, "but now we are taking heart and working harder than ever. Sam had an awful time getting his first unit started. However, after securing the whole country he got together a few plows and harrows and things; also, a little later, the modern machinery contributed by friends of the Near East Relief began to arrive, and Sam had the good fortune to round up 32 good reliable mules. He has sixteen teams now at work, and expects to have a tractor in the field soon."

"The poor peasants here had never done any real farming, and it was very hard for them at first, but their eagerness to learn and to help is very pathetic. The great deep furrows Sam plows with his good American equipment are a never-ending marvel to them. When Sam gets one unit started with men trained to operate it, he begins another and the orphan boys take to the training with great zeal."

"When the Newmans arrived at Djelaloghlu, the orphanage there sheltered only 400 boys and girls, and Mrs. Newman writes of these: "There were 1,000 in this lot last spring, but because of malnutrition and sickness, 600 of them died during the summer, so the Soviet officials had only 400 left to turn over to us. Enough have been brought down from the over-crowded orphanage at Alexandropol to make 2,000 here and as you can imagine, I have my hands full helping to mother them. It is wonderful to see how the wretched, dirty, starved little newcomers begin to blossom and grow as soon as they have been bathed, clothed and given a few rations of wholesome food."

Mrs. Newman says there are things the relief workers must think of as little as possible, and must turn away from when outside the orphanage gates. To attempt to aid all the starving people, or even children, would be utterly futile, she says, and would exhaust the Near East resources without permanently helping any. The orphanages take in just as many as can be managed safely.

"We simply must ignore the rest," she writes, "just outside our gates there are scores of starving children lying or sitting about listlessly, shivering in filthy rags, with their little bones fairly protruding through their skins. Many of them are sick and in pain, and they all beg piteously to be taken in every time they can catch the attention of any of the workers. Many times we have taken in 'just one more' until it cannot be done again, else there would not be food enough for the ones we already have. Another awful thing one may see any day, are the little quiet bundles of rags lying on the sunny side of a wall or a hillside, just able to stir feebly now and then, or to lift up pleading little white arms in supplication, if anyone passes. They will lie in the same spot for days sometimes, before they become quiet still. Then the Soviet cart with its daily load of the dead, comes and picks up the little bundle. Just picture any one of the many mothers in this tragic land—half starved and despairing, clad in rags and tatters, with her naked babe in her arms, the little thing trying feebly to draw nourishment from her dried-up breasts. I must not write of it, nor think of it. We must all keep strong for the work that is before us, and think only of the great good that we are doing. But I beg of you, never believe that there can be any exaggeration in the stories you hear of the sufferings and horrors here in this unhappy land."

Flow Under Clover Sod
Clover sod on naturally drained land may be plowed at this time to allow organic matter to decay. For intensive crops following alfalfa, early plowing may be shallow, but should be clean. Deep plowing later will turn the clover under and provide a mulch seed bed. This practice has been found good for such crops as potatoes, while it also aids in killing out the alfalfa.

While the scientists of the world are planning an expedition to capture the reported "reptilian giant" or swan-necked animal, descendant of the Plesiosaurian epoch, which was reported seen swimming around in a lake near Santa Cruz, Argentine Republic, we people in Oregon could carry on a little investigation of our own which would be quite interesting, by setting some of the hens with settings of those "old Chinese eggs" that are competing in our markets with eggs from Oregon poultry ranches—to determine what kind of chickens were raised in China one hundred years ago or more?

Chas. F. Barron, while passing through Neuman's pasture on Williams' Mt., was attacked by a Holstein bull, knocked down and gored in the leg. Barron started for the fence but was overtaken again by the mad bull, and with rare presence of mind he grabbed the bull by the horns and was shoved about 30 feet over against the fence, when he let loose of the horns and rolled under the fence escaping with some bad bruises.

A near tragedy occurred at the home of Mr. Darsen Thursday. The boy was unconscious for three hours, but is recovering now.

The amazing possibilities of a real ministry of Divine Healing in a community is powerfully demonstrated through the successful efforts of Bishop John G. Lake and his staff of helpers, who are holding daily Divine Healing meetings at the Free Methodist church, Forest Grove.

On Thursday, March second, I visited Forest Grove and undertook to determine for myself if the reports of healing under Bishop Lake's ministry were as frequent and powerful as had been reported to me. I interrupted Bishop Lake as he was riding in his car to Forest Grove. He said to me, "I am stopping with some friends on the Gates Creek Road, who have just been healed." I asked who they were, and requested him to tell me of their healing. He replied:

"I stop with Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Leavens. Mr. Leavens was very deaf and has been unable to hear a public address for more than ten years. We ministered to him, laying our hands on him in love and faith, and now he hears any of the different speakers clearly."

I verified the above statement and found it to be correct. Mr. Leavens testified to its truth.

Now Bishop, tell me of Mrs. Leavens.

"Mrs. Leavens has been a sufferer from catarrh from her childhood. The head was so terribly affected the odor of her breath was fearful. Her son was left in France among the 'dead over there.' The mother's heart was broken. The disease affected her entire body so that Mr. Leavens said she was almost gone. 'I saw her steadily going every day, and if Bishop Lake's prayers had not reached her, for her, she would have been dead soon. Mrs. Leavens is now practically well, and the last of her difficulties are disappearing every day.'

Mrs. Leavens declared the above statement to be entirely true, adding, "It does not tell half the story."

On Thursday afternoon I attended the Divine Healing meetings, and watched Bishop Lake and his assistants minister to many sick ones. Twenty-four persons were prayed for at this service, and all except two said they were getting well rapidly.

Among those prayed for at the afternoon meeting was a man who said his arm and shoulder were stiff and painful from neuritis, so that he could not raise his shoulder. As he was prayed for Bishop Lake said: "Raise your arm and shoulder." At once it was free. The man broke down in tears, thanking God, and turning to the audience said: "The pain is gone. The shoulder moves freely."

Mr. Hansen Gives Testimony
"At the evening service a Mr. Hansen, who gave his address as First street and Fourth Avenue, Forest Grove, arose and said: 'My son, nineteen years old, has had pneumonia three times. He was stricken again. His fever was terrible and his lungs extremely painful. At 6 P. M. we called Dr. Lake. He knelt with us at the bedside of our son and prayed. In about five minutes we arose. The fever was entirely gone. When Dr. Lake asked him to breathe deeply, he did so with perfect freedom and an hour later arose and ate supper with us, and is well.'

"During the evening service many more were prayed for, among whom was a Mr. A. J. Farrell, who said he was a farmer on Gates Creek Road. Mr. Farrell sat in the audience. At the close of the service, Bishop Lake suddenly turned to him and said 'Get up there, and come and be prayed for. What is the sense of suffering like that?' He had a violent sciatic rheumatism in the hip. Hands were laid on him in prayer and instantly the man was free. He has just told me he is quite recovered, though he has been ill for almost a year."

JOHN HAZEN, Multnomah.

When this statement was presented it was read to the audience at the Free Methodist church Tuesday afternoon and was confirmed in detail by many witnesses. Bishop John G. Lake's services continue daily at 2:30 and 7:30 at the Free Methodist church. Bring your sick.
