Grave emergencies have arisen and have been overcome, and the future portends nothing of such an appalling nature as has been successfully encountered in the past. The republic of modern history, founded on the universal brotherhood of man, is a grand success, and the elimination of the equation of self-goverument has been solved by the United States. Perfect freedom, aniversal suffrage and equality to native and naturalized citizens are the mottoes of our government, and these have attracted to our flag the oppressed of all nations.
