EDUCATIONAL NOTES.

Japan Has Now a School System Somewhat Similar to Our Own—The Largest Dormitory.

Oxford University has 2,240 students. Fifty-four women graduated from Vassar this year.

Hopkins University has a $10,000 thermometer. Kentucky has a colored State Teachers' Association.

Dancing is taught in some of the public schools in Scotland. The oldest English public school is Winchester, founded in 1387.

Two hundred and four of the 365 colleges in the United States are coeducational. Cornell University will offer a course in Russian language and literature next school year.

During the past year there were graduated from the medical colleges of the United States about 5,000 young doctors. Bethany College, Lindsborg, Kan., is said to be the only Swedish college in America having as its President a man born and educated in the United States and having all his degrees from institutions in this country.

A philologist says: It is called "commencement" not because the graduate then begins to learn his first real knowledge of life, but because in the old days the graduating exercises were held at the beginning of the college year.

In the old country the school children are early given lessons in economy. Penny savings banks are connected with the public schools of Belgium, and 170,000 of the 600,000 primary pupils have deposited over 500,000 francs.

Japan has now a school system somewhat similar to our own. Controlled by local authorities are more than 28,000 schools, of which 26,000 are elementary. The teachers number nearly 72,000, and the scholars 3,410,000, or nearly half the total population of the empire.

The immense fund in possession of the State of Texas for educational purposes is mostly loaned to counties, which use the money for public works. The State Comptroller has invested over $3,000,000 of the permanent school funds in the hands of the various counties, and as yet no default in the payment of interest has been made.

Cornell University has $1,986,112 in productive funds, $1,171,924 invested in buildings, 1,538 students and 123 instructors, or an instructor to every twelve students. This funded capital is as little as a first-class university can run on in these days, and while Cornell receives $94,000 from tuition fee this meets only one-third and a half of its expenditure.

Mrs. Humphrey Ward is a wonderful linguist; she is versed in French, German, Spanish and Italian literature, to say nothing of Latin, Greek and Hebrew.

Rudyard Kipling has told the truth about Montreal, as he did about New York, and the swell clubs of that city have also ostracized him.

A. S. Southard, now in his 85th year, is the oldest shipbuilder in Maine. He lives in Richmond, and has built over 100 vessels. His name is a familiar one in shipping circles all over the world.

The Shah of Persia and the Sultan of Turkey each possess a mat worked with pearls and diamonds, valued at over $2,000,000. Prayer mats of such value should give a powerful flavor to religious petitions in which humility is the leading feature.
