A Bill Having as Its Object the Perfection of the Quarantine Service of the Country Introduced.

In the trial of Commander Johnson of the Mohican, charged with grounding his vessel in Alaskan waters, Lieutenant Strong, navigating officer, was submitted to a long examination, explaining how the Mohican struck on Cherkoff Island. He testified in full as to the position of the ship and the sailing maneuvers at the time, and stated that the ship's course had to be laid out the best way possible, as the charts were inaccurate.

The detail of Captain Borup of the ordnance department to duty at the World's Columbian Exposition in connection with the exhibit of the ordnance department is regarded by army officers as a vindication of his conduct while military attaché of the United States Legation at Paris. Captain Borup was recalled at the instance of the French government on account of alleged sale of plans of the French coast fortifications to officers of the German and Italian armies.

A bill has been introduced in the Senate by Senator Chandler, having as its object the perfection of the quarantine service of the country. The bill authorizes the President to designate from time to time such places on the United States coast for the establishment of quarantines as in his judgment are necessary to maintain a uniform service in accordance with the laws. It further provides that it shall be lawful for any State or municipal authority to assess any fee for quarantine purposes on any vessel of any national company, or upon any person brought into the United States from abroad.

Representative Hermann has introduced and is pressing before the Committee on Public Lands a bill enlarging the powers of the United States Commissioners. The bill provides that persons having homestead proofs may make them before these Commissioners. At present the homesteader is compelled to make final proof before United States land officers at the local offices or before Clerks of Court at the county seat. Mr. Hermann declares that this new provision would be of great advantage to many settlers who live a long distance from county seats or from the local land offices.

Indian Commissioner Morgan has sent to the Secretary of the Interior a letter stating that a crisis has been reached in the work carried on by the Indian office in the education of children. He says the office is helpless to further enforce the regulations in accordance with the act of 1890, and he lays the facts in the case before the Secretary for his information. Gen. Morgan gives the details of several recent cases where the authority of the government as represented by Indian agents has been openly denied. Morgan says he does not believe in using violence, but he certainly does think the government should show the Indians that it is in earnest in the matter. He is of the opinion that all that would be necessary would be to show force. The Commissioner makes no specific recommendations.

General F. J. Lippitt of Washington is the only survivor of the few who, standing at the grave, witnessed the interment of Lafayette. He was then a youth, and resided in Paris.

A heavy loss to the literary circles of Austria was the death, a few weeks ago, of Frederick von Hellwald, the geographical writer and historian. Anton Heller von Hellwald, to give his full name, was born in Padua in 1842, as the son of a Field Marshal of the Austrian army. He himself entered the army of Austria and took part in the campaign against Prussia in 1866, but became editor of an Austria military journal thereafter.
