THE OFFICIAL PAPER OF GILLIAM COUNTY, OREGON.

RAILROAD LANDS.

Mr. J. M. Johns, editor of the Arlington Record, gives his views on the above subject as follows:

A subject of great importance to the people of Eastern Oregon is the railroad lands, so-called. There have been different interpretations of the forfeiture act, also of the act extending the time that claimants must make final proof. Many who made proof have had the papers sent back for correction and additions, and today there is a feeling of uncertainty pervading the whole community on this subject. The time is very close at hand when the extension expires, and owing principally to the failure of the grain crop last harvest, many who have improved these lands are unable to pay for them.

Unless some remedy is devised, a large number of settlers holding these lands will have to lose not only the money and labor spent in improvement, but the lands as well. If there was no uncertainty about the title after the proof was made, it is possible that some loan company might be induced to come to the rescue of the claimants, but this cannot be accomplished so long as there is any uncertainty about the procedure or making proof or about the validity of the proof after being made. Although it has not been the practice in this district to require parties making proof to advertise in a newspaper their intention, it is contended by many, and we think with good reason, that parties making proof on these lands should so advertise, the same as in homesteads and other entries.

We know of some instances where parties have improved these lands and have attempted to purchase from the government, that they found others ahead of them, who paid their money and had a receipt from the government. Such things would not occur if all were required to advertise before purchase.

If the commissioner of the general land office and our representative in congress were fully apprised of these things, it is not too late to have the whole matter so adjusted that there would no longer be any question about the manner of making proof. And with the time extended two years from Jan. 1, 1893, there is scarcely a doubt that all who are entitled to these lands by reason of improvements made on same would be able to acquire title to them and this country take a long stride in prosperity.

[It does seem very strange indeed that the U. S. land offices in Washington and every other place except at The Dalles, understand that the law requires the publication of notice of intention to purchase railroad land, and are doing so right along, although The Dalles office stubbornly refuses to do so. Just what object it has in view by not complying with the law, remains a mystery at present. The matter needs investigation badly].

The decision of the Oregon supreme court in favor of counting the votes cast for Pierce, the Populist Elector, is good common sense and should therefore be good law. Pierce was a candidate both of the democrats and Populists, and in some counties his name appeared twice on the ballot—once in each electoral group. This was contrary to the provisions of law that the name of a candidate should appear but once on a ballot. The nature of the mistake was such that it would be grossly unfair to deprive the voter of the franchise on that ground. As the court remarked, if such a mistake were made the ground for throwing out the ballots, a dishonest county clerk could invalidate a whole election or secure the defeat of a ticket by an error in printing the ballots.—San Francisco Examiner.

The present session of the legislature will witness several attempts to amend the Australian ballot law. The decisions of the supreme court in the matter of party headings makes an amendment at least advisable to bring the text to conform to what the court has decided to be the actual law, and other amendments will be suggested. Some of these will be honest, some will not. Some will be put forward to correct real or fancied defects in the law. Some will be urged with the concealed intent of defeating the purpose for which the law was passed. It may be taken for granted that the professional politicians will be against the law in this legislature as they were in the last. As they cannot repeal it openly they will endeavor to amend it with "jokers" that will destroy the safeguards it throws about the ballot. The legislature should scan carefully and suspiciously all proffered amendments to the ballot law. In any case of doubt the members should allow the law to remain as it is rather than to risk danger by change.

The Salem Journal says that the records of the state board of equalization for 1892 are burned up. Indications are that the present board will be burned up if what has been done is a fair sample of what will be the total result of its labors. The Gov. was seen and says that reality has always borne an unjust proportion of taxes in this state, and the action of the board in raising the valuation of farm lands and town lots still higher is outrageous. The Governor emphasized his contempt for such boards with several words beginning with a big "D." The board seems to have constituted itself a board of tax raisers, instead of equalizers, and to have taken a short cut to fame and salaries by ordering several injudicious, sweeping, horizontal raises.

There is a class in the state of New York working for the abolishment of the death penalty, and it is likely the legislature will take such action as will make life imprisonment the most severe penalty for a crime. Those who favor this movement do not believe in taking human lives, giving as one of many reasons that many an innocent man has suffered the death penalty, his innocence being established after death. An exchange thinks it is only a question of time when this plan will be generally adopted throughout the land.

The government has prepared to issue during this month a complete new set of postage stamps, commemorative of the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America. They will be called the "Columbus issue," and will be the finest ever made by any government. They will be on sale at the various post-offices only during the year of 1893 and will then be withdrawn from general issue.

A Salem legislator proposes a law that will give every man an exemption of property from taxation and execution of $1000 or $1200. He would thus encourage young people and the poor man to get hold of this class of property and thus get a start in life.

The Gervais Star has figured it out as follows: Taxes in the state are high and a heavy burden to the people, and that $5000 appropriation each year to the state fair concern has helped to bring it about.

After the first of the year the convicts in the Oregon state penitentiary have the privilege to read the state papers, as the old rule prohibiting their admission into the prison has been abolished.

Wn. has been decided upon as the abbreviation for Washington. Persons addressing letters to that state are requested to note the change.

The New York Herald thinks American citizenship cheap at $100 and proposes a tax of that amount on each emigrant.

The state board of equalization has raised the assessment of mortgages to 100 cents on the dollar.

Legality Literature.

The smiling countenance of Miss Lena Snell is visible at home again, after an extended visit with Mrs. Lucas at Gilliam's capital.

Miss Cora Reis is very low with consumption at the home of B. T. Snell.

Mrs. R. Balking and little Jennie are visiting at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. H. Snell, where they expect to remain this winter.

Miss Annie Schott, who has just recovered from a spell of sickness at her home, has again resumed her duties as school ma'am at Lone.

The home of J. W. Phillips was visited Friday morning by a little 9-lb daughter. All parties are doing well.

A number of young ladies and gentlemen from Rock creek visited the Xmas dance in Arlington. They report a very "pleasant time," but some of the young ladies thought the Arlington young men "real selfish" for not dancing with any except the Arlington girls. We would advise all who desire a good time and courteous treatment to go to the Condon balls.
