GLOBOSITIES.

The dance Wednesday night was well attended and greatly enjoyed by the participants.

Mrs. J. H. Hill was very sick the first of the week but is now improving, we are glad to state.

H. B. Hendricks has just been appointed notary public for the State of Oregon by Governor Penneyer.

A large number of warranty deeds, mortgage and chattel mortgage blanks at this office, for sale cheap.

John Cabler, of Klamath county is the proud owner of a sow that has become mother of a family of kittens.

Our new butcher, M. O. Clarke and family have rented the Barker house in Condon and is moving in this week.

The latest word in Condon now is: "Clark broke his cart." Of course our outside readers will understand this.

Brick Balding has purchased the Spencer farm on Rock creek and will move onto the new home with his family soon.

Capt. Wilcox requests the members of H Co. to fall in at 7 p. m., sharp, Saturday evening, Feb. 25, for business and drill.

E. A. May has a large quantity of as fine-cured ham meat as can be found in the country, for sale. Buy some before it is all gone.

Billy Mack is under the doctor's care again this week. He seems to be getting weaker gradually, and is becoming very much emaciated.

Bill Thurnagie arrived home last week from his visit to relatives in Kansas. His sister came out with him to keep house for him awhile.

The Pennsylvania legislature has passed a measure prohibiting the shooting of any birds except on the wing. This will be a picnic for the birds with the average sportsman.

From State School Superintendent McElroy's annual report we learn there are 111,780 persons in the state between the ages of 4 and 20 years, being an increase of 5,698 over last year.

Miss Louella Maddock has been visiting her friend, Miss Kate Greiner, on Keys Flat the past week. We are glad to announce that Miss Greiner has about recovered from her recent sick spell.

T. F. Barton came down from his home at Ellensburg last week to look after his sheep interests in this county. Tom has bought property at Ellensburg and expects to make that his permanent home.

A cyclorama of Pike's Peak, to cost $40,000, will be one of Colorado's exhibits at the world's fair. The observer will stand on top of the peak, and all about him will be its famous scenic environs.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Downing have been in Portland all week, selecting a spring stock of goods for their store. They stopped off at The Dalles to visit their daughter, Miss Daisy, who is attending school at that place.

Some people take cold, some take a little syrup in theirs, and others take anything they can yoff. Mackey takes pictures, and he does it in the highest style of the art. If you don't believe it, go down to his gallery and see.

A poultry firm advertises: "Our hens lay fresh eggs daily." The announcement will probably prove a relief to the thrifty housewife who has hitherto had to shake them, on her daily evening gathering to see whether or not they were stale.

Al McConnell of Mayville was in town Thursday. He says the prospects for good crops in his section never looked more encouraging than at present, and that a larger acreage is sown than ever before. Everybody expects a prosperous season this year.

Joe Trevett, who has been running Johnny Maddock's sheep on the shares a year or so, has turned them over again to Mr. Maddock, who will probably attend to them himself for awhile. Johnny is a careful sheepman and has made a success at the business.

See the change in the harness shop. Mr. Earhart, the new partner, is a steady, industrious young man, and he and Gene will make a strong team together. By careful management and courteous treatment to customers, Gene has worked up a large business. We wish the new firm success.

There is no danger of hoop skirts coming into vogue again. The press is a unit in the matter, and is already caricaturing it in great shape. Any woman who should be so senseless as to wear hoopskirts would find it so tropical that she would rejoice when out of them.—Times-Mountaineer.

A Portland paper last week contained the following: "Who is the state senator halting from one of the bunchgrass counties who became so smitten with the charms of a courtesan that he blew in his salary for the forty days' session on sparkling wine during a one night carousal? Did he think he won her by his profuse liberality?"

Eastern Oregon has been favored by the passage of two bills, one the establishment of a branch insane asylum, at some place within three miles of a railroad, and another appropriating $24,000 for a State Normal school at Weston. For all of which our people will be duly thankful.

The appropriations made by this legislature will rather startle the people when the sum total is figured up. Many worthy and necessary appropriations have been made, but with them have crept in appropriations for objects for which the revenues of the state should not be held responsible. However, the legislature is to a considerable extent a game of give and take. Trades are made and bills passed that would never be thought of if they depended on their own merit.—Eugene Guard.

An exchange says that recently a schoolman in a blackwoods district was teaching a spelling class. When the word "husband" was put on the blackboard none of the children could pronounce it, and in order to help them out, the teacher asked: "What would I have if I should get married?" "Twins!" shouted a bright little boy; and the vigorous brushing he received immediately thereafter, caused the same bright little boy to stand while taking his meals for the next two weeks.

The Pittsburg Dispatch claims that there is no well substantiated proof that the patriarchs lived to anything like the age accredited them, and that the natural duration of human life, established ages ago at seventy years, still maintains. It is an interesting fact, in this connection, that by the death of ex-President Hayes, at the age of 71, the average life of our presidents since the time of Washington is almost exactly seventy years. It is a curious fact that the only ex-president living is Mr. Cleveland, the president-elect.

We are pleased to see our citizens take such active interest in digging wells in town and sinking the old ones deeper. It has been thoroughly demonstrated that abundance of good water can be found anywhere in town, even on the highest ground, by digging for it, to supply a town many times the size of Condon. Among those who have had new wells dug here during the last few months, are John Maddock, J. H. Downing, G. W. Rinehart, Dan Rinehart, T. G. Johnson, Chas. Fix, J. H. Miller, Billy Barr and Pat Skelly. Besides these, the citizens have sunk four large public wells in different portions of the town.

While a big faro game was in progress in a saloon at San Bernardino, Cal., Friday night, two strangers entered and at once took part in the game, but not in the usual manner. The visitors wore masks, and, with drawn revolvers, ordered all present to "throw up their hands, and face the wall." Their command was promptly obeyed, and the robbers took all the money in sight, about $2,600, saying to the players while so doing: "Boys, we've played faro both ways, and this is the only way to beat the game." After securing the money, the robbers escaped.

There will be a citizens' meeting in the Armory Hall next Monday evening, 27th, for the purpose of nominating candidates for the various city offices, the election for which will be held March 6. It is hoped that only those interested in the welfare of the town will be placed in office. Those who have never identified themselves with the town and have proven that they have no inclination to do so, have no right to expect our citizens to place the welfare of the town in their hands to be used for personal and selfish interests. Only those who are in sympathy with the general improvement and upbuilding of the entire town should be recognized for office.

The following from the East Oregonian gives some idea how cold it was in some parts of Washington during the late cold snap: "Saturday, 11th inst., when the stage from Port Columbia pulled into Coulee City, the driver sat leaning against the side of the seat holding the reins in his hands. The horses walked to the hotel door and stopped. The landlord took out the baggage and the stage passed on to the stable. The hostlers spoke to the driver but received no answer. Climbing on the seat they found him frozen stiff and held to the arm of the coach by a mass of ice. The reins were held in his frozen hands as in a vice and had to be cut in pieces. The horses' mouths were torn by the freezing of the bit."

Near Yankton, South Dakota, is the most remarkable family on this continent—perhaps in the world. It consists of a father, mother and 24 children, and the mother of the brood is not yet thirty years old. She is a Norwegian woman and her husband is a Hoosier. The children were born in triplets and the oldest is under two years of age. All of them are boys but three, one set of triplets being all girls. They are a sturdy looking lot of youngsters. The gentleman who has started in to become the father of his country is a well-to-do farmer who is remarkably proud of his progeny. He says if the good Lord continues to smile upon South Dakota he may yet be able to furnish Uncle Sam with a full company of soldiers.

No Dispute on That Point.

"Women must consider it a dreadful fate to be an old maid," mused Mr. Chugwater. "They do, Jo," said Mrs. Chugwater. "What terrible sticks they sometimes marry to escape it." And Josiah rubbed his chin and said nothing.—Chicago Tribune.

Lone Rock Rumblings.

Dr. Hogan is in town.

Rev. Wise has an appointment to preach here next Sunday.

Dr. John Joseph Hogan, Jr., arrived in our midst Monday last, and will permanently reside with us. His acquaintance up to date, however, is principally among the ladies, and they all think he is "just too cute for anything."

Some of the fair sex are beginning to feel quite fidgety about the "Arkansas Traveler," who promised them faithfully that he would return by this time or sooner. In other words, "Ham" seems to be in great demand among some of our girls just now.

The initiatory step has been taken for the erection of a church in this place, about $1300 having already been subscribed for the much-needed enterprise. There is little doubt that before the middle of the summer the people of Lone Rock will have a neat, commodious church of their own.

There is a little snow on the high hills yet, but it is gradually disappearing. The ground is getting pretty well dried out, and our farmers will soon be turning the dark rich loam over with an "Oliver Chilled" in each hand. Our people have never been so certain of good crops as they are this spring, and we hope they will not be disappointed.

Real estate transfers still continue. M. O. Clarke has sold his town residence to Ed Winegard. This is one of the best locations and most comfortably arranged dwellings in the town. Wm. Stahl has sold his town property, consisting of blacksmith shop, dwelling house and three lots to Andy Sproule, who is at present stopping at the Gilman ranch. He will move his family over in a short time. We have known Andy for a long time, and as he is a genuine rustler we have no doubt that he will succeed in the blacksmithing business here. Mr. Stahl and wife will leave soon for the latter's old home in Minnesota, where they will reside. Cowboy.

Thomas-McInteen Nuptials.

The overland Sunday evening brought Hon. J. A. Thomas and wife to the city and they are the guests of Dr. J. C. Smith, Mr. Thomas' brother-in-law. The groom is a young business man formerly from Jefferson, now of the First National bank at Arlington. His bride is Miss Winna McInteen, of Walla Walla, and they were married at Hotel Gilman Portland, Sunday afternoon. Mr. Thomas was a member of the 15th general assembly and will visit his parents at Jefferson before departing on a journey to Fort Worth, Texas, Wednesday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas are warmly greeted by hosts of friends at Salem who are making it very pleasant for them.—Salem Journal.

Running a Newspaper.

It is really a great deal of fun to run a newspaper. The eyes of the whole community are watching the editor; his actions, his business and his paper are criticised to an extent almost incredible. If he happens to go from his town on business, he is accused of neglecting his business and riding out his pass. If he never goes away he is said to be too close to go away to learn anything for the benefit of the town, because he might lose a nickel by doing so. If he works all day at his office and spends his evenings at his books and getting "copy," he is called distant, cold, and not in sympathy with the public interests of the town, because he is never around. If he is hunting locals and visiting with business men, he is lazy, shiftless and undeserving of support, because he can never be found at his office. If he misses an item, the one interested in that particular item says the paper never has anything in it. If he has the courtesy to give the W. C. T. U. or temperance people a small part of his space, he is a temperance crank and fanatic. If he thinks it is better for the financial welfare to license the liquor traffic instead of prohibiting it, he is an odious whiskeyite. In fact, some people always have their long noses so far into everybody else's business that they never have time to attend to their own or see their own faults.—Exchange.

Man Compared with the Flea.

Barton tells us in "Anatomy of Melancholy," part 3, section 3, that "comparisons are odious," and when it comes to comparing a man to a flea it is not to be denied that he told the truth. In this case, however, it is the flea that should sue for libel, for the comparison is one of strength, and after it has been made "there will be none found to take the side of the man." Years ago someone incidentally remarked that a man, were his muscles and limbs as well set for jumping and springing as those of a flea could stand on the dome of the Capitol at Washington and make oneswoop that would send him three and a half times around the earth. Late entomological experiments have given us opinions equally as odd concerning the strength of this obnoxious little Hercules. To be brief and to the point: It has been proven that a flea can carry a weight 858 times greater than that of his own body. At this rate a man of the average weight of 154 pounds could shoulder a "mongrel" locomotive of 60 tons and run across the country from New York to San Francisco in less than an hour and a half.
