Miss Virginia Penny.

Miss Virginia Penny led the way in opening the doors of general industry to women workers half a century ago, devoting time and money to the object for years, with no compensation except the enjoyment of doing good. Every one of the many thousands of women in the offices, shops and other places of employment in our cities is indebted to Miss Penny, yet she is living in New York in old age without the usual comforts of life. The writer suggests systematic relief through the women's clubs and similar bodies.—Minneapolis Spectator.

They Touch but to Adorn.

Women touch nothing they do not adorn. The cigarette was a humble little wad of tobacco wrapped in tissue paper. Simplicity could go no further. Since women have taken to smoking, the cigarette has become decorative, aesthetic and frivolous. Ladies' cigarettes, as they are called, are now sold tipped with petals of violet and rose. They are of the finest Turkish tobacco and put up in brown, silver edged, cardboard boxes. Hand painted cigarettes have not yet been introduced.—New York Sun.

Babies and Voting.

The working of woman suffrage in New Zealand is developing a new phase of practical politics. At a recent election a feminine committee was appointed to look after babies while their mothers went to the polls to vote. The question as to who will take charge of the children if the women take part in active politics has been made maliciously prominent by the masculine foes of woman suffrage. The women of New Zealand have solved the problem.—New York Press.

Worked Out Her Taxes.

Mrs. Mary Walker of Atlantic City recently applied to the city council for permission to work out the amount of her taxes in doing city work on the streets in company with her husband. The request was granted.—Cape May Correspondent.

A Question of Fair Play.

We do not believe there is any justice in one-half of our people making laws for the government of the other half. So long as women are subject to our laws they should have a voice in making them.—Lincoln (Neb.) New Republic.

THE GENUINE AND THE SHAM.

Every good thing has its host of imitations; every genuine article its counterfeit. The imitators always choose the most valuable and popular article to counterfeit, so that when they claim their sham to be equal, or as good, or the same as "So-and-so's," the public may depend upon it that "So-and-so's" article is the best of the kind.

ALCOCK'S PINKET PLASTER is the standard of excellence the world over, and imitators in their cry that theirs is "as good as ALCOCK'S" are only emphasizing this fact and admitting "ALCOCK'S" to be the same of perfection, which it is its highest ambition to imitate. The difference between the genuine and these imitations is as wide as that between copper and gold. The only safe way for purchasers is to always insist upon having ALCOCK'S PINKET PLASTER. It is the only perfect plaster ever produced.

She is considered one of the most intrepid travelers in the world and has already visited the ruins of Palmyra, Babylon, Nineveh, the place where once stood the tower of Babel, and has organized caravans to travel through Persia.—Paris Journal.

FOR LITTLE FOLKS.

A Stray Kitten.
A pretty little kitten,
With coat of downy white,
Out on the doorstep lying,
Was found the other night.
And tender hearted Lily,
Who heard poor pussy mew,
Brought her right in and warmed her
As well as she could do!

Who filled a great big saucer
With bread and milk no sweet
That soon the hungry pussy
Began to sup and eat!

If pussy won't go straying
From Lily's welcome door,
She never will be hungry
Or homeless any more,
And she can play with dolly,
For Lily says she may.
And stretch on the piazza
Every sunny day.

An Oriental Story.

An eastern king was once in need of a faithful servant and friend. He gave notice that he wanted a man to do a day's work, and two men came and asked to be employed. He engaged them both for certain fixed wages and set them to work to fill a basket with water from a neighboring well, saying he would come in the evening and see their work. He then left them to themselves and went away.

After putting in one or two bucket-fuls of the men said:

"What is the good of doing this useless work? As soon as we put the water in on one side it runs out on the other."

The other man answered:
"But we have our day's wages, haven't we? The use of the work is the master's business, not ours."

"I am not going to do such fool's work," replied the other, and throwing down his bucket he went away.

The other man continued his work till, about sunset, he exhausted the well. Looking down into it he saw something shining at the bottom. He let down his bucket once more and drew up a precious diamond ring.

"Now I see the use of pouring water into a bucket," he exclaimed to himself. "If the bucket had brought up the ring before the well was dry, it would have been found in the basket. The labor was not useless, after all."

But he had yet to learn why the king had ordered this apparently useless task. It was to test their capacity for perfect obedience, without which no servant is reliable.

At this moment the king came up to him, and as he bade the man keep the ring he said:

"Thou hast been faithful in a little thing; now I see I can trust thee in great things. Henceforward thou shalt stand at my hand."—Sunday Hour.

Helen Keller.

A recent issue of The Youth's Companion contains a sketch of the life of Helen Keller, written by herself. It is a peculiarly touching story and written with such ability that one could almost doubt that it was the work of a girl only 12 years old—and she blind and deaf—if The Companion did not give assurance that she did it entirely unassisted.

The picture here presented is a late one and shows Helen Keller at work on her typewriter, with which her life story was written. Her signature, which is also reproduced herewith, was the one affixed to the article in The Companion, and it is the first she ever wrote with a pen.

Rose Maiden.

The rose maiden game is a pretty way to entertain the guests at a girl's birthday. To play the game prettily there must be a quantity of paper roses—one for each little girl. The roses must be California roses, which are as large as a little girl's head.

When the little guests are all assembled, each little girl gets a rose, while one of the older people present help her take out the inside leaves and to fit it over her head as if it were a bonnet, out of which her face is becomingly peeping. Then all the little maidens stand in a row while some one tells a story about the garden flowers. Whenever the red roses are mentioned, the little girls wearing the red rose bonnets bow their heads deeply, and when the white roses are mentioned the white rose maidens do the same. And so on through all the colors. If a little rose maiden makes a mistake and bows at the wrong time, her bonnet is turned round so that it covers her face. —Philadelphia Press.

HOW IT IS DONE.

The simple reason why the hurts of prize fighters show no sign and disappear so quickly is because in the treatment of training the flesh is hardened. They can stand a blow like the kick of a horse and not show a bruise. Other men's bruises heal slowly, but if they would use St. Jacob's Oil they would find there's nothing in the world like it to heal and restore. It acts like magic. All athletes should use it. It's the great restorer. The same with cuts and wounds, if used according to directions, it will heal surely and make the parts sound again.

A woman never uses her husband's meerschaum pipe for a hammer more than once.

POOR INDEED!

The prospect of relief from drastic cathartics for persons troubled with constipation is poor indeed. True they get upon the bowels, but this they do with violence, and their operation tends to weaken the intestines, and is prejudicial to the stomach. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is an effective laxative, but it neither grips nor enfeebles. Furthermore, it promotes digestion and a regular action of the liver and the kidneys. It is an efficient barrier against and remedy for malarial complaints and rheumatism, and is of great benefit to the weak, nervous and aged. As a medicine it stimulates it cannot be surpassed. Physicians cordially recommend it, and its professional endorsement is fully borne out by popular experience. Appetite and sleep are both improved by this agreeable invigorant and alterative.

I can recommend Pilo's Cure for Consumption to sufferers from Asthma.—E. D. Townsend, Ft. Howard, Wis., May 4, 1894.

Consumption kills more people than ride balls. It is more deadly than any of the much dreaded epidemics. It is a stealthy, gradual, slow disease. It penetrates the whole body. It is in every drop of blood. It seems to work only at the lungs, but the terrible drain and waste go on all over the body. To cure consumption, work on the blood, make it pure, rich and wholesome, build up the wasting tissues, put the body into condition for a fight with the dread disease.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery fights in the right way. It will cure 98 per cent. of all cases if taken during the early stages of the disease. Its first action is to put the stomach, bowels, liver and kidneys into good working order. That makes digestion good and assimilation quick and thorough. It makes sound, healthy flesh. That is half the battle. That makes the "Discovery" good for those who have not consumption, but who are lighter and less robust than they ought to be.

At this moment the king came up to him, and as he bade the man keep the ring he said:

"Thou hast been faithful in a little thing; now I see I can trust thee in great things. Henceforward thou shalt stand at my hand."—Sunday Hour.

SPRING CLEANING

Is such a trial that men say "Let the house take care of itself." But the conscientious wife feels bound to risk health and strength in this annual struggle with dust and dirt. The consequence is depletion of the blood, the source of all life and strength, manifested in that weak, tired, nervous condition so prevalent at this season, and very dangerous if allowed to continue. What every man and woman needs in the spring is Hood's Sarsaparilla. It keeps the blood vitalized and enriched, and thus sustains the nerves and all the bodily functions. "I take Hood's Sarsaparilla every spring, and it is the only medicine I use through the year. It enables me to do my house cleaning and far a work all through the summer. It helped me very much for palpitation of the heart. I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the medicine for everyone, and all who take it will never be without it. I have also used Hood's Pills, and they are the best I ever tried."—Mrs. F. H. Andrews, S.
