

Tuesday is the time fixed for the Smith law, regulating traffic between Dalles and Celilo, to go into effect, and an effort will be made to enforce its provisions. This law provides that goods and produce shall be transported over the portage at a pro rata charge, thus giving farmers and shippers east of this point the advantages of cheap water transportation to seaboard. The railroad claims if the Oregon legislature has the power to regulate prices between these two points it may at other places, and it virtually turns the railroad property over to the state. This question will undoubtedly go to the courts and will be a hard fought case. Of course the railroad lawyers in the legislature will be here to fight the law in the courts just as they fought it in the legislature. Of course the railroad commission will support the O. R. & N. What will the attorney-general do?—Salem Journal.

With the possible exception of young Lionel Walter Rothschild, the eldest son of Lord Rothschild, there is not a single son of the Barons Rothschild who is competent to take the place of his father in the firm. The sons of the Paris Rothschilds are physically and mentally stunted, the result of too close intermarriage—a practice the object of which has been to keep the money in the family, and prevent the business secrets of the five-headed bank from leaking out. The total fortune of this great house is as being estimated over $2,000,000,000, the Paris Rothschilds alone being set down at $350,000,000, of which Baron Alphonse, the head of the French branch, is credited with $200,000,000. Two of the younger Rothschilds have committed suicide, and a third has made an attempt on his life.

An exchange says: When people of the social and financial standing of E. Y. Judd, of the Pendleton wool scouring mills, and by the way a member of the wool commission firm of Judd, Root & Co., of Boston, becomes convinced that free coinage of silver will save our country from financial ruin, there must be something in it. Six months ago Mr. Judd was a gold standard man, but a trip through Europe convinced him that the free coinage of silver as well as gold was essential to insure the prosperity of a country.

A man who writes "professor" before his name, or directs it to be put there is very much of a "fake," and his teachings or his wisdom are very little to be depended upon. A really wise man necessarily detests such a handle to his name, and it is in exceedingly bad taste among those who possess good judgment, even if they be not wise.—E.x.

A concern in Portland has branched out into the business of killing and canning horses. Those who have tried the food so much boasted of by the French say it looks like beef and tastes like it. It may be so, but it will have to go under some other name before it is accepted by the dainty palate of the average American.

A dispatch from Washington Monday informs us that the supreme court declared the income tax law unconstitutional in toto. The justices against the law were, Chief Justice Fuller and Justices Gray, Field, Brewer, and Shiras. For the law were Justices Harlan, White, Brown, and Jackson.

The man who only devotes a week to the advertisement of a new thing and then roars because he did not get great returns is like the boy who studied with a lawyer for two days and then went home and said: The law ain't what it's cracked up to be. I'm sorry I learned it.

Many people pride themselves on saying what they think at all times and upon all subjects, under the impression that they are doing the manly, independent, wise thing. But the wise man bears much and says little, and that in moderation and in due season.—Exchange.

DECREE FOR A DIVORCE.

In Colorado a wife was granted a decree because her husband cut off her bangs.

In Ohio a divorce was recently granted because "the defendant pulled this plaintiff out of bed by his whiskers."

A New York man, in petitioning for divorce, pleaded that "the defendant would not sew on plaintiff's buttons."

A decree was granted in Massachusetts because "the defendant keeps this plaintiff awake most of the night quarreling."

A Wisconsin man got a divorce because his wife kept a servant girl that spit on the frying pan to see if it hot enough to fry.

A Tennessee court liberated a wife because "the defendant does not wash himself, thereby causing the plaintiff great mental trouble."

In Pennsylvania a husband was relieved of the yoke of matrimony because "the defendant struck this plaintiff a violent blow with her bustle."

A Missouri divorce was granted because "the defendant goes gadding about and leaves this plaintiff supperless, or he has to cook it himself."

A New York wife was granted a divorce because her husband threw the baby at her when she hit him with the coal bucket for spitting on the stove.

In Minnesota a decree was given to the wife because "the defendant never cut his toe nails, and being restless in his sleep, scratches the plaintiff severely."

A wealthy Arizona man has sued for a divorce because his wife is older than she represented herself, having resorted to powder to make herself look young.

An Indiana divorce was some years ago granted because "the defendant pulled all the covering off this plaintiff's bed and she likewise ran a knitting needle four inches into his arm."

A Kansas wife was released from her husband because "the defendant pinched the nose of the plaintiff, causing it to become very red, thereby causing the plaintiff great pain and anguish of mind."

Any one who has ever had an attack of inflammatory rheumatism will rejoice with Mr. J. A. Stumm, 220 Boyle Heights, Los Angeles, over his fortunate escape from a siege of that distressing ailment. Mr. Stumm is foreman of Merriam's confectionery establishment. Some months ago, on leaving the heated work room to run across the street on an errand, he was caught out in the rain. The result was that when ready to go home that night he was unable to walk, owing to inflammatory rheumatism. He was taken home, and on arrival was placed in front of a good fire, and thoroughly rubbed with Chamberlain's Pain Balm. During the evening and night he was repeatedly bathed with this liniment, and by morning was relieved of all rheumatic pain. He now takes especial pleasure in praising Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and always keeps a bottle of it in the house. For sale by L. W. Darling, Druggist.

Jack to the Front. If you want any new boots or shoes, come to my new boot and shoe store at the upper end of Main street, Arlington. I keep only the choicest stock and all kinds, and my prices are the lowest in the county. It will pay you to come or send to me when you need anything in this line. All kinds of russet shoes for men, women and children. Repairing done at the lowest rates. Call and inspect my stock. JOHN P. RODGERS.

Whooping Cough. There is no danger from this disease when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is freely given. It liquefies the tough mucus and aids its expectoration. It also lessens the severity and frequency of paroxysms of coughing, and insures a speedy recovery. There is not the least danger in giving the remedy to children or babies, as it contains no injurious substance. For sale by L. W. Darling.

To Whom It May Concern.
