

U. S. Gov't Baking Powder Tests.

THE report of the analyses of Baking Powders, made by the U. S. Government (Chemical Division, Ag'l Dep't), shows the Royal superior to all other powders, and gives its leavening strength and the strength of each of the other cream of tartar powders tested as follows:

LEAVENING GAS.
Per cent.	Cubic in. per oz.
ROYAL, Absolutely Pure,	13.06
12.58	151.1
11.13	133.6
10.26	123.2
9.53	114.
9.29	111.6
8.03	96.5
7.28	87.4

These tests, made in the Gov't Laboratory, by impartial and unprejudiced official chemists, furnish the highest evidence that the "Royal" is the best baking powder.

THE STORY OF A CLIPPER.

She Sailed Like a Witch and Engaged in More Trades Than One.

A young Swede came to this country in 1851 with some money and the intention of building a craft to be fitted up for passengers to the World's fair in London. For this purpose he located himself at Portsmouth, contracted with shipbuilders who had shipyards at Eliot, just opposite Portsmouth, for a ship of about 1,000 tons, with expensive cabin arrangements for passengers. The model of the ship was that of an extreme clipper.

When nearly completed, the projector fell short of money. Masts, spars and sails had all been contracted for and were in a state of forwardness. The ship was concluded to complete the ship and put her in the hands of Governor Goodwin of Portsmouth for sale, each contractor to take his pro rata of his contract.

When completed, the ship, under mechanics' lien, was transferred to the governor, brought to Boston, purchased by Sampson & Tappan, named the Nightingale and under the command of a Captain Dumaresque sailed for Australia with a cargo valued at $125,000. From there she proceeded to China, where she took the highest freight of the season, $5 per ton for London. To test her merits Messrs. Sampson & Tappan published in the London Times a challenge to the British merchant fleet to race from the Downs to China and back for £10,000—a distance of nearly 80,000 miles. But no one could be found to accept the challenge. She was afterward sold to a Salem house, who sent her to Rio Janeiro, where she was sold and sent to the coast of Africa as a slave, was captured by a United States cruiser, the slaves liberated and the vessel sent home. She was subsequently used by the government during the rebellion, and after the close of the war was sold and put into the California trade. The Nightingale made the shortest known run from the equator to Melbourne—23 days. Her whole passage from New York was 63 days.—Proceedings of the Bostonian Society.

EXTRAORDINARY!

AN OCCURENCE THAT WAS MAR- VELOUS INDEED.

Not Merely Relief From an Insignificant Ailment, But a Human Life Involved.

The newsgatherer on his daily search for items of interest often comes across happenings of more than passing note. It was during a recent conversation with Mr. A. H. Cransby, the well-known commercial traveler, with the Cochran Lumber Company, that a reporter of the Commercial learned of a wonderful case. Mr. Cransby is well known in Memphis and surrounding country, and now resides at 158 Kerr street.

"Just ten years ago," said he, "my wife noticed a small lump in her breast. She thought nothing of it, but it increased in size rapidly, and soon broke through the skin, and commenced to discharge. She was put under treatment of the best physicians, but they very soon found that they could do her no good, and simply prescribed antiseptics to keep the place clean. Both her grandmother and aunt, by the way, had died with cancer, and when apprised of this fact, the doctors told me that they would not attempt to save her; that she was incurable. Although the cancer had by this time become deep seated, and her health very low, I had one of the most noted specialists of New York to treat her. After treating her awhile, this doctor admitted that the case was hopeless and further treatment useless. It is difficult to imagine how despondent we all became, knowing that she must die, and unable to give her any relief. I had spent over five hundred dollars with the best medical skill to be had, and felt that there was no further hope.

"One day I happened to read an advertisement of S. S. S., recommending this remedy for cancer, and in view of the failure of the most eminent physicians in the country I confess I had little faith left in any human agency. However, I purchased a bottle of S. S. S., and to my delight it seemed to benefit her; after she had taken a couple of bottles, the cancer began to heal, and as astonishing as it may seem, a few bottles more cured her entirely. You can probably better understand how remarkable this cure was when I explain that the cancer had eaten two holes in the breast two inches deep. These healed up entirely and although ten years have elapsed, not a sign of the disease has ever returned and we are assured of the permanence of the cure, which we at first doubted.

"I certainly regard S. S. S. as the most wonderful remedy in the world, and it is truly a God-send to those afflicted with this terrible disease. Yes, sir," he concluded, "you may be sure that I shall always be grateful to that remedy, for without it my home would now be desolate and my children motherless."—Memphis, Tenn., Commercial.

Died While the Doctors Quarreled.
Here in the latest episode of Parisian life. The cold weather of late has been rather severe on the simian population of the gay capital, and it was keenly felt by Maurice, the orang-outang of the Jardin d'Acclimatation. When Maurice fell ill, it was decided by the managers of the Jardin that inasmuch as Maurice possessed far more resemblance to a man than to an animal, a regular doctor should be summoned, and accordingly the services of a physician were invoked. On his arrival however, the doctor declared that, as the patient occupied an intermediary place between the quadrumanes and the humans, its treatment should devolve upon a veterinary surgeon, who, however, hesitated to assume the responsibility on the ground that Maurice was more human than beast. While the discussion was in progress between the two medicals the monkey died.—Boston Herald.

Woman Knocks at Its Door.
A bill is pending in the Virginia legislature for the admission of women to the University of Virginia. Hon. John E. Massey has argued in favor of the measure before the committee on schools and colleges. The bill is based on the recommendation in the governor's message that provision be made for the more liberal education of women.—Exchange.

FOR LITTLE FOLKS.

Ned the Trotter.
The celebrated trotter Ned is in town. Ned does not belong to the equine fraternity of sprinters, as one would suppose, but, on the contrary, is nothing more nor less than a phenomenal dog trotter, ready to trot against any other canine living, or against any pony under 12½ hands in height. The dog is a bean tifal English pointer, liver and white ticked, and stands 24½ inches high. His weight is 71 pounds when in condition for a speed trial, and he can cover a mile easily in three minutes.

"No price can be attached to the dog at all," said Mr. McCue when interviewed last night. "I have said sometimes that he was worth $10,000, but to tell you the truth I would not sell him for twice that amount. He has made more than that for me and can make much more. Ned is just 3 years and 9 months old at present, and no dog alive can trot with him, and not a great many horses can stand his gait either."

Ned has never yet been defeated in a match. He has trotted with 72 ponies under 12½ hands in height, and also 52 bicycle riders under 15 years of age, and won all of the contests. This is quite a remarkable record.

Ned pulls a pneumatic tired sulky weighing 20 pounds. A boy weighing 60 pounds handles the ribbons, but then he is only a "dummy," for Ned is always given his head, and the instructions to the youthful driver are to sit still and mind his own business. In other words, the dog is given full credit for all he accomplishes.—San Francisco Chronicle.

The Age of Animals.
A butterfly lives only a few weeks, a crow may live more than a century, and swans are said to live sometimes over 300 years. An eminent naturalist tells of a falcon that was 163 years old. A white headed vulture, caught in 1706, died in 1836 in the aviary of the palace of Schonbrunn, near Vienna, where it had been in captivity 118 years.

Again, parrots and ravens think nothing of tumbling about the world for a hundred years or more, and some of the sea birds and water fowl outlive several generations of human beings. To come down to some well known birds, the ordinary cock lives from 20 to 25 years, and a pigeon lives for about 10. A nightingale may live 10 years in captivity and a thrush 15, but when free they live much longer.

Of quadrupeds the elephant lives much longer than any of his friends and brethren. He may reach the age of 400 years. And you will think, he looks as if he was made to last a long time. A camel is old at 40, a horse or a bull at 25, a lion and a bear at 20. As for the whale, it disports itself in the sea for some 300 years, and no tortoise is considered to have attained a ripe old age before it reaches 90 years.—Exchange.

A Young Violinist.
Miss Leonora Jackson, the young girl whose beautiful playing on the violin has attracted much attention of late, is a Chicago girl whose talent must some day make her renowned. During her recent sojourn of 10 days in her native city she so captivated the select audiences before which she appeared that some of Chicago's most influential society leaders have become interested in her. A brilliant future is predicted for this little artist by all who have had an opportunity to judge of her gifts. She is still a child, with unassuming, childlike ways. Her health is perfect, and with her rare talent she combines a strong character—energy, patience and determination.—Chicago Post.

Sewing Song.
I have a little servant
With a single eye.
She always does my bidding
Very faithfully.
But she eats me no meat,
And she drinks me no drink—
A very clever servant, as you well may think.

Another little servant
On my finger sits.
She the one eyed servant
Very neatly fits.
But she eats me no meat,
And she drinks me no drink—
A very clever servant, as you well may think.

Now, one more little servant,
Through the single eye.
Does both the others' bidding
Very faithfully.
But she eats me no meat,
And she drinks me no drink—
A very clever servant, as you well may think.

A needle, and a thimble,
And a spool of thread,
Without the fingers nimble
And the knowing head,
They would never make out
If they tried the whole day
To sew a square of patchwork, as you well may say.

Saved by a Woman.
An incident during the disturbances in Sicily is related by a correspondent in Palermo. At Terrasini, a village of about 7,000 inhabitants, the people rebelled against the communal administration, burning the bureaus of the taxes. A company of bersaglieri arrived to put a stop to the disorder, and the lieutenant ordered his men to make ready to fire. At that moment a woman ran up to the lieutenant, and holding out to him a portrait of Queen Margaret asked him to kiss it, while at the same time the rioters, men and women, suddenly sank on their knees in front of the soldiers, crying out, "Kill us; we are already dying of hunger." The lieutenant ordered the soldiers to retire, and the riot was at an end.

A New Notion.
A new notion is that of marriage cards conveying, like their Easter and Christmas prototypes, the proper sentiments of the occasion, good wishes, and the rest, which may accompany the wedding gift or merely arrive, per se, as an evidence of good will. It remains to be seen whether brides will take kindly to this palpable aid to the nonpresent giving quest. An avalanche of these paste-boards on the wedding day, however artistic and proper they may be, will hardly be a relished substitute for even flash-knives and sirup jugs.

CONSUMPTION

LIKE A SIEVE.
The chief function of the kidneys is to separate from the blood, in its passage through them, of certain impurities and watery particles which make their final exit through the bladder. The retention of these, in consequence of inactivity of the kidneys, is productive of Bright's disease, dropsy, diabetes, albuminuria and other maladies with a fatal tendency. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a highly sanctioned diuretic and blood purifier, impels the kidneys when inactive to renew their sifting function, and strain from the vital current impurities which infect it and threaten their own existence as organs of the body. Catarrh of the bladder, gravel and retention of the urine are also maladies arrested or averted by this benign promoter and restorative of organic action. Malaria, rheumatism, constipation, biliousness and dyspepsia also yield to the Bitters, which is also specially beneficial to the weak and nervous.

"Well," said the monkey to the organ-grinder as he sat on the top of the organ, "I'm simply arried away with the music."
