ABSOLUTELY PURE

"TOOK THE WRONG MEDICINE."

Why This Headline So Often Appears in the Daily Newspapers.

It is an odd trait in human nature that a man who has been ordered by his physician to take paregoric will never take it if there is any carbolic acid or prussic acid in the house that he can absorb in preference.

Statisticians who have studied the thing declare that an invalid will search the whole house for a poisonous drug and drink it rather than the medicine ordered by the doctor. The death notices in the newspapers in cases of that kind are generally headed, "Took the Wrong Medicine."

A man arrived at his home the other evening, and glancing on the bureau saw a bottle of liquid that he had been ordered by the doctor to take.

"That looks like the stuff," said he, "but I'm not sure. As I was locking up the cellar I saw behind an old shelf a blue bottle that looked as if it hadn't been touched for years. It said on it, 'Sulphuric Acid.' Now that bottle on the table looks exactly like the one I drank out of last night, but still I have an idea that the stuff down in the cellar is what the doctor means for me. I don't know how the dickens it got down there when it's meant for me to take, or how this bottle that isn't meant for me to take got on this bureau. But I'm not going to take any chances. I'll just go down into the cellar and make sure, and I'll throw this stuff out of the window."

Then he cautiously went down stairs and took the sulphuric acid, and he was buried in due form after an ambulance surgeon had done his best and the corner's physician had made a complete investigation and autopsy.

It isn't only children who make these blunders. Doctors will tell you that they have only to label a bottle "Lotion, For External Application Only," to make sure of its being drunk. If a patient gets a bottle of corrosive sublimate to put on a felon on his great toe and doesn't use it all, he will carefully save it. Ten years afterward a doctor gives some cough mixture to him, and then he goes and hunts up the corrosive sublimate bottle, plays three card monte with it and the cough mixture, gets them thoroughly mixed up so that he can't tell one from the other, and then when he feels that tightness across the chest that the doctor told him about he swallows a part of the corrosive sublimate and leaves his widow to collect the life insurance. By no accident is the cough mixture ever taken—it is always the corrosive sublimate.—New York Herald.

Metal Railroad Ties.

A protest against the denudation of forests in order to secure material for railroad ties is made in a report issued by the agricultural department at Washington on the use of metal railroad ties and preservative processes and metal tie plates for wooden ties. It shows that about 20 per cent of the railroad mileage of the world, outside of the United States and Canada, is laid on metal. In the United States little practical progress in metal ties is reported. The proportion of track laid with metal ties to the total length of railways throughout the world has increased from 7 per cent in 1890 to 10 per cent in 1894.—Railway Review.

CHAMPIONSHIP.

In all the out door sports of the season the weather is playing champion to knock out and close up games. A change will come, of course, and with hot weather will come the fiercer struggle to make up for lost time. All this means a greater amount of wear and tear to the body, to its muscles, nerves and bones. What the damage is all will be from sprains, bruises, wounds, lacerations, inflammations, contusions and the like, no one can tell, but there is a championship to be won, important to all, to which few give sufficient consideration, and that is the triumph over all these pains and mishaps in the surest, promptest way. St. Jacobs Oil is the champion remedy for all such ailments; it does not disappoint and never postpones a cure for any cause whatever.

A man who has never had the toothache does not know the real pleasure there is in not having it.

TRY GERBER for breakfast.

Foul breath is a discourager of affection. It is always an indication of poor health—bad digestion. To bad digestion is traceable almost all human ills. It is the starting point of many very serious maladies. Upon the healthy action of the digestive organs, the blood depends for its richness and purity. If digestion stops, poisonous matter accumulates and is forced into the blood—there is no place else for it to go. The bad breath is a danger signal. Look out for it! If you have it, or any other symptom of indigestion, take a bottle or two of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It will straighten out the trouble, make your blood pure and healthy and full of nutriment for the tissues.

LUCK, PLUCK, BRAINS

THE COMBINATION THAT ACCOUNTS FOR SETH LOW'S SUCCESS.

Made President of Columbia College When but Forty Years of Age—Donates $1,000,000 For a Library—His Career in Politics and Business.

In many respects the Hon. Seth Low, president of Columbia college, stands alone among educators. He is undoubtedly the richest college president in the world. When he was chosen president of Columbia, he was the youngest chief executive of any great educational institution, for he was then barely 40. His career throughout has been remarkable.

He was born in 1850, and his father was a Brooklyn merchant. In 1870, at 20, he was graduated from Columbia college. He quickly mastered all the details of his father's extensive business, and when 24 took the management thereof. A year later, when he was 25, during the hard times of 1875, he originated a plan by which any man in Brooklyn who wanted work could get it. During the Garfield campaign in 1880, when Seth Low was 30 years old, he was the foremost Republican in Brooklyn, and a year later, at the age of 31, he was elected mayor of his native city, in spite of the political bosses. He was elected president of Columbia in 1890, and now, at 45, he has given $1,000,000 to be expended in the erection of a library for his college. Some one has said of Seth Low that his success is the result of a combination of luck, pluck and brains. Lucky he certainly was in his birth, for his father transmitted to the son not only money, but a sound mental, moral and physical constitution. Plucky he has been, for he has never hesitated in the slightest to battle with all his might against what he thinks to be wrong and for what he thinks to be right, and if he were not a brainy man he surely would not have been able, with all his luck and pluck, to do what he has done in business, in politics and in the field of education.

The selection of Mr. Low as Columbia's president five years ago was somewhat of a departure from the ordinary course in making choice of the head of a great educational institution. He had always been understood to be a man of culture and of wide information, but he had never been regarded as a scholar or a student in the strict acceptance of these terms. He had rather been looked upon chiefly as a business man, a man of affairs, who, in addition to his exceptional executive ability, possessed political genius of no ordinary sort, and when he was elected mayor of Brooklyn it was confidently predicted by his friends and feared by his enemies that he would be the next governor of the Empire State. There is reason to believe that he, too, thought that sequel a not unlikely one, but in 1888, when, as is claimed by his principal supporters, he might have secured the Republican nomination for the office of New York's chief magistrate, he declared, on the ground that he did not agree with the party's national platform, that he could accept no such nomination. For a couple of years after that he was comparatively lost sight of, but since his election as president of Columbia he has been very much in evidence, and his performance of the duties he then assumed has more than satisfied the authorities of the college that they chose wisely in calling a thorough man of affairs to the place.

When President Low assumed the chair, he announced that in future he should devote himself heart and soul and without reservation to the conduct of Columbia's affairs. One does not need to be well informed to understand that perfect fulfillment of the duties involved would require most of the time and energy of any man, no matter how liberally endowed with mental ability or what is known as genius for hard work. In the main President Low has carried out his expressed intention. Society has seen little of him. To the public at large he has not often been visible, and he kept out of politics until the opening of last fall's campaign for the purification of New York's municipal government. Then he was made a member of the committee of seventy, and as such did excellent service. There was some talk about making him the reform candidate for mayor, but he frowned it down, although during the campaign he devoted much time to the furtherance of the election of Mayor Strong.

Personally Seth Low is a pleasant man to meet. He is of medium height, rather stout, with sincere dark eyes and dark thick hair and mustache. His features are not regular, but rather inclined to what may be termed the aggressive type, the contour of his face being such as at first to suggest that he might be somewhat unpleasantly so. He is, however, an excellently poised man, and while he can undoubtedly make himself extremely unpleasant to one who deserves unpleasant treatment his aggressiveness is of the sort that men generally applaud. His address is winning. On the platform he speaks in a forcible, convincing and earnest manner. He has not the torrential vocabulary of Bourke Cockran, the cold and classic eloquence that was Roscoe Conkling's, or the peculiar charm of Colonel Bob Ingersoll, but he always knows what he wishes to express when he speaks, and he always expresses it in a fashion that is simple, direct and extremely lucid without in any sense being dull or commonplace.

As an educator he is an advocate of the methods of today. It is not his notion that a young man may properly be fitted for a successful life by loading his mind up with certain kinds of information without reference to any special bent the young man may possess. His plan is to discover, so far as is possible for a teacher to do so, what is the young man's bent, and then furnish him with the training and information that will best enable him to do himself full justice in the battle of life after leaving the precincts of the college.

LIKE A SIEVE.

The chief function of the kidneys is to separate from the blood, in its passage through them, of certain impurities and waste particles which make their exit through the bladder. In case of retention of these in consequence of insensitivity of the kidneys is productive of Bright's disease, dropsy, diabetes, albuminuria and other maladies with a fatal tendency. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a highly sanctioned, diuretic and blood purifier, impels the kidneys when inactive to renew their sifting function, and strains from the vital current impurities which infect it and threaten their own existence as organs of the body. Catarrh of the bladder, gravel and retention of the urine are also maladies arrested or cured by this benign promoter and restorative of organic action. Malaria, rheumatism, constipation, biliousness and dyspepsia also yield to the Bitters, which is also speedily beneficial to the weak and nervous.

A GREAT STAYER.

As competition increases it becomes harder and harder for the business man to succeed, and in recognition of this fact, the public is often informed that this or that thing has "come to stay." A strong purpose is good, but doing the thing is even better. One of the greatest stayers we know of is Pain-Killer, the advertisement of which we are printing elsewhere. This famous cure for all kinds of pain is sold in the homes of the country 35 years, and is today more popular than ever. This one fact proves its value, and makes it a remedy which is not only remains for the proprietors (as they are now doing) to remind each coming generation that for over half a century Pain-Killer has been recognized as the honest, surest and cheapest cure for the common ills of humanity, and that a bottle on their shelf will sooner or later save them trouble and suffering and money.

HERCULES CAS and GASOLINE ENGINES

—NOTED FOR— SIMPLICITY, STRENGTH, ECONOMY —AND— SUPERIOR WORKMANSHIP

In Every Detail.

These engines are acknowledged by expert engineers to be worthy of highest commendation for simplicity, high-grade material and superior workmanship. They develop the full actual horse power, and run without an Electric Spark Battery; the system of ignition is simple, inexpensive and reliable. For pumping outfalls for irrigating purposes no better engine can be found on the Pacific Coast. For hoisting outfalls for mines they have met with highest approval. For intermittent power their economy is unquestioned.
