ABSOLUTELY PURE

SHE TAUGHT HIM A LESSON.

A Traveling Man Who Discovered That He Annoyed the Wrong Girl.

As the drummer came into the smoker a man in the corner got up and went out rather hurriedly.

"You seem to have a bad effect on that party," remarked a man from Chicago.

"Well, yes," laughed the drummer; "he doesn't like to see me around."

"Who is he?"

"I don't know his name, but I happened to see him utter put to rout on a train once, and now whenever he sees me he feels better to get out of the way."

"What was it? Tell us about it," came in chorus.

"He's one of the kind of traveling men who are always discreditable to the profession, and I think he travels for some third rate house in New York. I never saw him until the day I saw him get what he deserved, and from what I have seen of him since I should say it had taught him a valuable lesson. It was on a train going out of Louisville, and there was a pretty girl ahead, who was of the type that grows into viragoood perhaps, but of that let us not talk. In any event, she had a section in the middle of the car, and this fellow came in, and after looking the territory over sat down where he could look into her face. There was no other person on that side of the car, and only two old ladies and myself on the other. He had just begun to ogle the girl by grinning and gazing at her when she changed her place and turned her back on him. In a few minutes he had taken the seat beyond and had begun his operations again. She stood it some time and changed her position again. He did the same, waiting quite a little while, so as not to attract too much attention. She changed again, and he went to the smoker. Then I stepped over and asked her if she needed my services in stopping the annoyance. She thanked me and said she would attend to it herself. Pretty soon he came back and sat down facing her again, with a smile as if he thought he was having a great joke. She changed again, and so did he. This time I could see her cheeks redden and could almost hear her eyes snap as she reached over and opened a little handbag by her side. She took from it a revolver, and as she looked up again she nodded and smiled as if she wanted him to come to her. But she didn't, though it looked that way when she got up and taking a few steps stood in front of him. Then she shoved the revolver close to his face.

"There," she said, loud enough for us all to hear, "that's loaded, and if you look at me again I'll put a portion of its contents into your ugly face."

"She trembled so as she spoke that the revolver shook in her hand, but she turned and walking firmly back to her place, sat down again, and the remarkable part of it was that so if he raised his face he would look directly at her. But he didn't raise his face. He slunk out toward the smoker, and he never came back. I've met him several times since," concluded the drummer, "but I have never seen him so much as look the second time at a lady on a train."

—Detroit Free Press.

Ludicrous Rage.

Possibly as ludicrous a thing as ever happened was the experience of my friend, Professor Roswell Park of Buffalo. A man's life had been saved by the beautiful surgical skill of a successful laryngotomy. When health had been restored, my friend proposed to his patient the insertion of an artificial larynx, so that vowel tones, or true voice, could be added to the whisper that necessarily resulted from the absence of the vocal chords. This apparently highly desirable thing was done, but the tone, of course, was uniform. There was no change of pitch possible to the mechanical larynx, and expression, modulation, timbre—everything that makes voice pleasant and more than useful was absent. The man could speak, convey ideas perfectly, but when he tried to give emphasis, nuances, shadings, diverse meanings and especially when he tried to express emotion, anger or resentment there were only the monotonous drone and squeak of the intolerable machine. Nothing could control the convulsive laughter of the surgeon and assistants. The poor man's indignation sought outlet in speech, but the very words of wrath were turned to outrageous absurdity by the infernal device. In a spasm of ebullient rage he tore the mechanism out of his throat, cursed the man who had saved his life and was probably running and hoarsely whispering invectives at him still. He never came back. —Dr. George M. Gould's "Meaning and Method of Life."

A Black Sheep.

Mrs. Highmind—It worries me sick to think how my little boy is growing up without a taste for literature.

Friend—Hasn't he any?

Mrs. Highmind—Not a bit. I bought him a beautifully bound copy of Ruskin's "Seven Lamps of Architecture," and I actually had to whip him to make him read it. —New York Weekly.

The Difference.

The Impenetrable—It is just as easy to love a girl with money as to love one without it.

The Heir—But it isn't so easy to get her. —London Budget.

PAJAMAS AND NIGHTROBES.

Changes Inaugurated by the Young Woman of the Period.

The young woman of the period wears pajamas. They are of silk or fine flannel, as her taste and her purse may direct. Sometimes they are of solid colors, but more often of striped material. They are very different from the voluminous white confection she has been in the habit of wearing, and even in the mere color they are distinctly less charming.

than the snowy linen which the ladies of the old school claimed to be the first requisite of a gentleman's wardrobe. But, then, that saying originated before the days of the gentlemanly girl.

The young woman whose daring ceases before she reaches pajamas, but who has longings for something else than frills and furbelows, compromises on a shapeless sacklike concern patterned after a man's nightshirt. She tries to delude herself into the belief that the straight collar band is "neater" than the old time ruffle opening over a V. She tries to think that she prefers plaited down the front of her garments to jabots, and that tiny studs fastening her nightdress are more to her mind than ribbon bows. Perhaps she succeeds. But she will surely never succeed in bringing an impartial world around to her way of thinking.

Tied Her Hair Too Tightly.

Dr. Thau of Elizabeth and Dr. Hatfield of Leachtown performed a successful though a very unusual and difficult surgical operation lately. Miss Myra Simmons of Standing Stone, a handsome young woman, with long, luxuriant hair, had been in the habit of twisting her tresses so tightly in a knot at the back of her head that the pressure had loosened the scalp from the skull. The scalp was taken off, the coagulated matter that had gathered under it removed, the scalp stitched on again, hair and all, and the young woman will recover. It is said to be the only case of the kind known in medical science. —Philadelphia Call.

Ripe With Woman's Work.

This year of our Lord 1895 promises to go down in history as a year ripe with woman's work. During the past month many interesting objects have been treated. In New York city the women have taken action to control vice, and the W. C. T. U. presented to congress a petition signed by 3,000,000 persons in the interest of temperance. The petition had just completed a circuit of the globe and had been added to by every nation. And last, but not least, at a dinner given in Washington by the woman suffragists Aunt Susan Anthony was pensioned on an annuity of $500. —Ridgewood (N. J.) News.

Newark's New Club.

A new woman's club was formed in Newark, N. J., by three members of Sorosis, in connection with other ladies well known in that city as engaged in church and philanthropic work. The name of the club is Philoposoma—a name coined from the club, which refers to philosophy, philanthropy, literature, science, poetry, oratory, music and art. The club expects in due season to join the New Jersey State Federation of Clubs. Rev. Phebe A. Hanford is president, and Miss Florence Corlies is corresponding secretary. Miss Corlies is a niece of Mrs. McCullough, treasurer of the New York State Federation.

Was Willing to Serve.

The Chicago papers tell how Mrs. Marion Robertson of that city earned $2 very easily the other day. Having voted at the last election, she was summoned for jury duty. The judge told her he had no doubt she would make a good juror, but as the law barred her sex when it came to jury service he would have to excuse her. "I am willing to serve," replied Mrs. Robertson. "Well, a venieman who is willing to serve is entitled to his or her pay when rejected," said the judge. "The clerk will give you a warrant for $2." The warrant was handed to her with her subpoena for a souvenir.

Apple Fritters.

Beat two eggs, stir into them a cupful of sweet milk and 1½ pints of flour, with three teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Mix in a scant pint of peeled, cored and chopped apples and fry in hot lard, or the apples may be sliced thin and the slices dropped into the batter. —Detroit Free Press.

SECRETARY'S PORTRAITS.

The Limited Art Gallery in the Department of State at Washington.

The department of state at Washington has now an art gallery, limited to a certain class of paintings, of which there is no superior collection in the world. This collection has been recently hung with much good taste in one of the rooms devoted to the reception of the diplomatic corps when any of its members call to see the secretary.

The collection embraces the oil portraits of every secretary of state, beginning with Thomas Jefferson, down to and including Thomas F. Bayard. Some of the likenesses are said to be most excellent, and a few are thought by experts to be wretchedly poor. Mr. Bayard's is one of the latter, although the government paid a handsome sum to the artist for her work. All these portraits were on exhibition at the World's fair at Chicago and have recently been received at the state department. Where they are now hung visitors can readily see them without the formality of red tape or the granting of authority by any of the functionaries of the department. The collection is a most valuable one and will soon be increased by portraits of Mr. Blaine, Secretary Foster and later of Secretary Gresham. A striking fact in the collection was the number of secretaries who preferred to wear no hirsute adornments. John C. Calhoun was the only one prior to Secretary Blaine who wore whiskers. —Baltimore Sun.

Gold Nuggets.

The structure of gold nuggets was the subject of a paper recently read before the New South Wales Royal society by Professor Liverbridge. Among other facts stated was the peculiarity of such nuggets, on being cut through or sliced and polished and then etched by chlorine water, of exhibiting a well marked crystalline structure closely resembling the figures shown by most metallic meteorites. On heating such nuggets in a Bunsen burner blebs or blisters form on both the polished and unpolished surfaces, and on still more strongly heating these in some cases burst with sharp reports, and pieces of gold are projected with considerable violence. As no explosions have been observed on dissolving or etching away the crusts of these blisters by chlorine water it is thought that the blisters may probably be due to the evaporation of some liquid or solid substance. Further, in etching some nuggets, scattered granules of quartz were met with inside, although quite invisible outside. At first it was supposed that such explosions might be due to the quartz, but the gas in some instances continued to issue from the burst blisters—where the aperture formed was small—and forced the Bunsen flame out into lateral, just as if urged by a blowpipe.

The Samoan Mascot.

In time of war it is the tapo's duty to lead on to combat the warriors of her village, and she is often in the thick of the skirmishing, but should she be wounded or killed it is a pure accident, as the Samoans have the greatest horror of hurting a woman in any way, and would not even injure their enemy's tapo. There is a story told of how, during the war which was carried on in Upolu for a considerable time, five or six years ago, two armies had met and were drawn up, blazing into each other's lines, when a native woman appeared with a cow she wished to place in safety. The entire firing was immediately suspended on both sides till she and her charge had crossed the lines and were completely out of harm's way. The women could rely so thoroughly on the gallantry of their countrymen that they had no fear during the fighting, and would take food to their husbands and brothers at any time, and pass through the ranks of the warriors of the belligerent army with perfect impunity; as long as the daylight lasted and they could be easily seen they were quite safe. —In Stevenson's Samoa, Marie Fraser.

Europe's Suffering Poor.

The suffering among the London poor this winter is not so great as was expected, says a correspondent. It has been about an average winter for the unemployed. There has been only about a week of severe weather, which fact has greatly mitigated suffering. London is now rejoicing in pleasant skies and springlike air, influences under which the grass has been always green, and shrubs are now putting out their leaves, and trees are beginning to bud.

A very different story comes from eastern Europe. In districts in Russia the winter is so severe that wolves are unusually fierce. The other day at Saratoff a peasant woman walking near the village was surrounded and devoured by a pack of nine wolves. Another peasant going to market was set upon by a pack of wolves and torn to shreds. Nothing was left of man and horse but a few bones and tufts of hair.

She Has a Valet.

Well known women, such as Lady De Grey, Lady Rosslyn, the Dowager Lady Dudley, Lady Florence Bourke and Lady Wolverton, have taken to bicycling in costume de rigueur. Apropos of "bike," a young lady recently arrived at a country house, says Vanity, her impediments consisting of a pair of guns, a set of golf clubs, a bicycle, a maid and a valet, the latter being required to act as a loader, to rub down her "bike," to varnish her boots and act as caddy on the golf links. Of a verity this is the coming woman with a vengeance.

Annexation at Boston.

The Massachusetts legislature is moving in the direction of a "greater Boston." It is proposed to annex to the Hub all towns and cities within 10 miles of Boston and all the seashore from Marblehead to Hull. The consolidation will give Boston a large area and greater population and will benefit the other places by giving them improvements which they could not otherwise afford. —Detroit Free Press.

Daniel Boone's Gun.

The gun of Daniel Boone has been taken to Charleston, W. Va., and it is said to be still capable of good execution. Its stock and barrel are five feet long and it carries an ounce ball. It is a flintlock, of course. This gun has been in the family of Nathan Boone Van Bibber, back in the wilds of Nicholas county. Matthias Tice Van Bibber received the gun from his friend Boone, and he carried it at the battle of Point Pleasant in 1774 and throughout the war of 1812. The original powder horn and bullet molds are with the gun. Matthias Van Bibber left these relics to Captain C. R. Van Bibber, who left them to his son, Nathan Boone Van Bibber, the present owner. —Detroit Free Press.

Velocity of Carrier Pigeons.

During a recent test of carrier pigeons made on the Eiffel tower with birds from various French stations, the first bird covered 93½ miles at a speed of 47 miles an hour, and other birds made 264 miles at a speed of 43 miles an hour. These rates are a little lower than in former years. In 1860 a pigeon flew from Blois to Dijon, a stretch of 290 miles, in 4 hours 46 minutes, or at the rate of 60 miles an hour, and still higher velocities have been attained.

Wine Cheaper Than Water.

A Greek journal states that so great is the quantity of wine now in stock on the island of Cyprus that last year's crop remains a glut on the market, and if we are to believe further accounts wine there has become cheaper than water. In the village of Tschakistra a merchant who was having a house built is said to have provided the masons with wine instead of water to mix with the mortar. —Public Opinion.

A GIANT'S TROUBLE.

He was a giant in size, the picture of health and strength, with iron muscles, a famous athlete. He pursued his training excessively to hold his fame, and doubtless trained too much. With all his exercise the man was nervous, restless and sleepless, and then racking pains took hold upon him. He could not understand his condition, for neuralgia had set in when he thought himself in perfect health. So in all conditions it will take hold of the nerves. They had been enfeebled in his case, and they are enfeebled in a thousand cases in as many different ways. He was well advised and followed directions of experienced people. Soon his nerves began to be toned and quieted and in a short time the pains ceased altogether. He had used St. Jacobs Oil freely and a cure followed, and so will it follow in all cases and conditions.

Just—They say heavy lies about us in our in-jury. Jack—Possibly; anyway, the world goes when we grow up.

ECZEMA

From early childhood until I was grown my family spent a fortune trying to cure me of this disease. I visited Hot Springs and was treated by the best medical men, but was not benefited. When all things had failed I determined to try S.S.S. and in four months was entirely cured. The terrible eczema was gone, not a sign of it left. My general health built up, and I have never had any return of the disease. I have often recommended S.S.S. and have never yet known a failure to cure. GEO. W. IRWIN, Pa. $100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.
