

THE CONDON GLOBE.

THE OFFICIAL PAPER OF GILLIAM COUNTY, OREGON.

FRIDAY, DECEMBER, 13, 1895.

HOME.

Where in all our wanderings, do we ever find a place like home? How we love to sit and think of our childhood days, of our parents so good and kind, who indulged us in our every wish, of our brothers and sisters, and what good times we used to have at the old home. But how things have changed. Our parents, perhaps are dead, and some perhaps all of our brothers and sisters are gone. How sad now to look back. We can see, those of us, who have families of our own, what sacrifices that dear mother made for us in our childhood and how poorly we repaid her kindness. How different things would be if we could only have our former days to go over again, and when our children go against our wishes our thoughts go back to that dear one, whom we must have hurt by just such actions in our younger days, and gladly would we recall all our quick-spoken words, every gesture, every thought even that to make her life a burden. But now that our old home is a thing of the past, we must shoulder cares and troubles, and try to do by our children as our parents did. Our happiest time now is when we have our children all around us, teaching them one by one those words so dear to us, guiding their little feet. While they take the first step, watching over every movement, as it were. But how soon this is past. They soon grow up, and then comes our heartaches, when they begin to know more than we do, when the son thinks of making a home of his own. (Then if mother ventures an opinion, she doesn't know half as much as he does. It seems strange that a mother will raise a child from infancy, give her life almost for him then when he gets just where he could be a help and comfort to her he leaves her and turns to, I might say, and sometimes one, who is unworthy of him. How a mother's heart must ache at that time, after all her sacrifices for so many years for the comfort of that son, to see him turn to another and know that she is only second in his thoughts now. Boys, cling to your mothers. You have but one, and oh, how many, many times, have you neglected her.—West Side.

When a man milks a cow, he should not attempt to smoke a cigar at the same time. A young man at Lone Rock tried it and got along well enough until he lowered his head and touched the cows flank with the lighted end of his weed. The next instant himself and the cigar were dreadfully "put out." The cow introduced about 2 tons weight into one of her hind legs, and then passed it under the milker's jaw. When he ceased whirling around and the myriads of stars disappeared, he said farming was the hardest work a man could turn his hand to.

The Spokane Review of Nov. 19th says: Yesterday the Nez Perce reservation was a wilderness. Last night a thousand campfires flared up in the darkness. Today will rise the framework of a thousand rude cabins, and tomorrow the plow will be turning sod that has lain unbroken since the creation. A few weeks hence schools will be in progress, churches will be built, roads laid out, justice courts established, and all the machinery of the well nigh perfect government of the republic will be in motion—without a jar and almost without friction.

The Oregonian was 45 years old last Wednesday and its increase of growth and importance has been in keeping with that of the Pacific northwest. No dozen other journals have had so much to do with the history of this region and today it stands without a peer among us. No matter what some may think of its political utterances as a newspaper, we can find nothing to take its place in interest and value to Oregonians. To begin with, it was small, obscure and of little influence, but a constant and substantial growth have made it now the greatest power in Oregon.

An exchange rears up on its hind legs and screeches: Will somebody please tell us why our lawmakers are never arrested for passing worthless bills?

When interviewed in Washington as to the best means for raising revenue for the government, Congressman Ellis said: "I favor the imposition of an additional tax of 1 dollar per barrel on beer. This would bring in at least $30,000,000 and would harm nobody. Its only effect being to diminish to some extent the enormous profits of the brewers." Thus one by one our republican congressmen are beginning to recognize the fact that there is another way of raising revenue than taxing necessities of life.—E. O.

Hon. W. R. Ellis, member of congress from this district, has been elected secretary of the republican congressional caucus. He received 139 votes to 77 for Mr. Hooker of New York. This election is a compliment to our representative, and shows him possessed of influence among his associates in the party.

Ex-Judge Frank J. Taylor is running for mayor of Astoria on the republican ticket. He is regarded as a "good fellow," but it is being "thrown up to him" that he sentenced Sandy Olds, a murderer, to the penitentiary for only one year, and shortly afterward sent up a poor fellow, who stole a fish, for 2 years.

Spain threatens to sell Cuba to England to spite the United States. Judging from the way Spanish troops are getting worsted in Cuba it is doubtful if the mother country is in a position to give a very clear title to the island.

A young lady at Leavenworth, Kan., is claiming $5000 because a young man hugged her. We hope the penalty is another hug.

Want to Repudiate.

A suit has been commenced in the circuit court for Baker county whereby certain taxpayers ask the court to enjoin the county treasurer from paying the debts of the county in excess of the constitutional limit. Outstanding warrants of the county with accrued interest thereon amount to over $285,000, and the plaintiffs in the suit ask that all but $5000 of this be repudiated. The plaintiffs allege that the indebtedness was "illegally, wrongfully, unlawfully and fraudulently created by the defendant and that no part thereof was so created for the purpose of suppressing insurrection or repelling invasion, nor in the discharge of any legally constituted liability in said county whatever."

They base their grounds for action on Article 11, Section 10 of the constitution, which is as follows: "No county shall create any debt or liabilities which shall singly or in the aggregate exceed the sum of $5000 except to suppress insurrection or repel invasion, and the debts of any county at the time this constitution takes effect, shall be disregarded in estimating the sum of which such county is limited."

It is not probable that any court will literally construe this article of the constitution and by its decision allow a county to repudiate debts that have been incurred in good faith, so long as the evidence of debt is held by innocent parties; but it will give the courts of the state an opportunity to say whether the organic laws of the state mean anything or are simply an aggregation of meaningless words to be violated whenever officials see fit. A decision on this point has long been needed in Oregon, and the result of the suit commenced in Baker county will be watched with interest.

The popularity of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the high esteem in which it is held leads us to believe it to be an article of great worth and merit. We have the pleasure of giving the experience of three prominent citizens of Redondo Beach, Cal., in the use of the remedy. Mr. A. V. Trudell says: "I have always received prompt relief when I used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy." Mr. James Orchard says: "I am satisfied that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy cured my cold." Mr. J. M. Hatcher says: "For three years I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in my family and its results have always been satisfactory. For sale by all druggists."
