

THE CONDON GLOBE.

THE OFFICIAL PAPER OF GILLIAM COUNTY, OREGON.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 25, 1896.

Lone Rock Riplets.

W. H. Colwell and family are expected to return from Arlington to their farm here within a few days.

J. W. Blake was up in this neck of the woods last week. John said he was looking after stock interests, but some of our politicians seem to think the stock interests are votes in the coming June election. Several letters have been received here from different aspirants for county office. We say, go it, boys, and may the best man win, regardless of party lines.

W. C. Brown went over to Heppner last week. While on the way he was attacked with a pain and expressed his fears that it was appendicitis. When he arrived in town Dr. Swinburne confirmed his fears by telling Billy he was a victim of that dreaded disease. It was quite fortunate that Billy happened in Heppner where he can get the best medical aid.

Sunday evening James Vickers, who lives four miles south of town, was severely injured by a horse. He was alone at the time, his folks having gone to town. The old gentleman does not seem to know just how it happened, but from appearances he fell while passing near the horse's heels and the animal must have kicked him several times, as he is considerably bruised up.

Clem Cutlets.

All the plows are running full blast.

Mrs. Keeney of Fossil is visiting at the wayside inn.

"Fu" Elbert made a call in this neighborhood this week.

J. J. Wasson and sons are busy skinning coyotes.

G. W. Welshhons and family have moved back to the ranch, and while at Conroy's over night some "stinker" scattered his household gods and goods from "Beresheba to Dan," and we fear George used a few cuss words while gathering his wares and penates together again next morning.

A certain old "bach" called for his mail here a few days since and received a chromo of his best girl as a valentine. The chromo was not what you would call a dream exactly; in fact a nightmare would be a more appropriate name for the production. The recipient came into the office wearing a smile that would have melted the heart of a cast-iron dog; but he went away looking like he might be troubled with worms.

A. SKRANCHER.

Back to Iowa there has been a new departure in the saloon business. The saloon is fitted up with different kinds of intoxicating beverages, but the authorities are unable to find anyone who owns it. It is just rigged out and runs itself, and the customer who wants to be served must wait upon himself and deposit the money in a box. There is a man around the premises who stays there because he has nothing else to do.

It is purely beneficial, as it not only protects the loved ones in case the protector is removed by death, but the policy holders as well. He has made the afternoon of his life pleasant and comfortable by his own frugality and very little self-denial. Call at once and see Al Henshaw and learn how this can be done.
