

THE GILGAM GLOBE.

FRIDAY, MARCH 26, 1897.

THE OFFICIAL PAPER OF GILLIAM COUNTY, OREGON.

A Georgia evangelist named Culpepper is down on bachelors, and burns them as follows: "I want to see our men marry," he says. "Let them marry young. I'd rather have them marry at fifteen than at thirty. Young men who arrive at the age of twenty-two and are still bachelors I am for taxing $100. If they are still unmarried at twenty-three I would tax them $200, at twenty-four $500, and so on I would go up to thirty. Any man who wasn't married at thirty I would be for sending to the penitentiary. God meant that men should marry. A bachelor is only half a man."

France sent a little war-ship into the harbor of Santiago de Cuba the other day from Martinique to demand the unconditional release of a young French girl arrested as a political suspect, and kept imprisoned for three days. Within three hours the girl was released and the Spaniards, after promising to pay damages, saluted the French flag. If this country would give the greasy cannibals a dose of the same medicine, Americans would be treated with a little more respect down there than at present. The sight of an American to a Spaniard is like a red rag to a bull.

Hicks of Missouri is the only real weather prophet. When Hicks says "take to cover" we take. He has proven his worth by his works. Prof. Hicks predicts continued cold weather for the month of March, and heavy frosts reaching up to the first of May, and advises farmers and gardeners to be in no haste about planting tender vegetables or even sowing spring grain.

A young woman in North Dakota who has saved up $300, wrote to a resident of Linn county to inquire if Oregon is a good place to come to. The leader says: "Let her come. A woman who can save $300 in North Dakota can keep a husband in luxury in Oregon."

Concerning an effort that is being made to move the state capitol from Salem to Portland, the Salem Statesman says: Portland will never get the state capitol. But we might consent to give her our interest in the proposed branch asylum at Union.

The total appropriations made by the Washington legislature were $1,125,789.40, a reduction of $355,791.84, below the appropriations of two years ago. Thus the fusion legislature has not done so badly after all.

It is said that a company is preparing to build a railroad from Biggs station, on the O. R. & N. to Pringle. It will be completed as far as Wasco in time to handle this year's grain crop.

In the Missouri legislature last week there was a bill providing for the publication of the new laws in one paper in each county. There ought to be a similar law in Oregon.

The will of the late Senator Dolph shows that he was worth $125,000, of which $10,000 was in cash, the balance in property. The estate was distributed among his relatives.

The following advertisement recently appeared in a Portland paper: "Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Levi having cast off clothing of every description invites an early inspection."

A Washington corpse was brought to life the other day by the singing of the mourners. This is not the first instance of music being horrible enough to raise the dead.

The Carson City business men say they are $50,000 better off than they were before the big prize fight. The railroads got the largest slice of the pie, however.

A French physician has invented a patent breathing machine. There are men in Eugene who need it. They are really two lazy to breathe properly.—Guard.

A man was sent to jail in Missouri last week for marrying a "new woman." His old woman made the complaint.

The United States mint is the only business that can make money without advertising.

Of Interest to Sheepmen.

At a meeting of the Sherman county Sheepraisers' Association held recently, the members levied an assessment of one dollar on every 1,000 head of sheep owned by the members thereof to be used for the purpose of defraying the expenses of a delegate to be sent to Washington to present the matter of opening the Cascade timber reserve for herding of stock, before congress and the president, or to ask that the limits of the reserve be diminished. The association proposes to pay this amount, provided the sum of $500 can be raised through the associations in Wasco, Gilliam, Crook and Sherman counties and by voluntary donations from persons not directly interested in sheepraising. The matter has been laid before a number of business men of The Dalles who have subscribed liberally to the fund, and in all probability the necessary $500 can be raised.

The sheepraisers have confidence in the desire of the Oregon delegation at Washington to some time be able to get the reservation thrown open, but it is desirable that action be taken during the special session of congress or at least before the season when the sheep must be driven to summer range, hence it is believed a special delegate who goes to Washington especially for that purpose can secure more speedy action than can a congressman or senator who has his other duties to attend to.

The matter of opening the reserve is one of general interest to stock raisers and farmers of all the adjoining counties, for if the reserve is not opened the winter range will be eaten out completely by the sheep during the summer, therefore what can be done in the matter should be done at once.

She Feared He'd Stop.

A young lady not 1000 miles from this city was thinking of suing her ex-sweetheart the other day for breach of promise, and as she would need the assistance of a lawyer to conduct her case she approached a Globe reporter and stated that she desired to consult an attorney, and was referred to one of our local attorneys as the proper party to consult. She started for his office, and the reporter followed at a respectful distance. As the door was open a little the following conversation was heard: "You say," remarked the attorney, "that the young man frequently sat very close to you?" "Yes sir," was the reply, with a hectic flush. "How close?" "Close enough so's one cheer was all the sittin' room we needed." "And you say he put his arm around you?" "No, I didn't." "What did you say, then?" "I said he put both arms around me." "Then what?" "He hugged me." "Very hard?" "Yes he did. So hard that I came partly near hollerin' right out." "Why didn't you holler?" "Cause." "That's no reason. Be explicit, please. Because what?" "Cause I feared he'd stop." The attorney could not stand the pressure any longer, but fell off his chair and had to be carried out and placed under the town pump for the purpose of resuscitation. He will recover.

Dr. J. T. Tate, one of the leading dentists of Portland and the Pacific coast, expects to make a tour of Eastern Oregon this spring and will be in Condon some time in April to remain a few days. This will be pleasing news to those needing first-class dental work. Dr. Tate is a graduate of the New York College of Dentistry and has held high positions in the Portland Dental Society and the Oregon State Dental Association. The Globe will notify you when he comes.
