THE OFFICIAL PAPER OF GILLIAM COUNTY, OREGON.

THE RECENT FIRE IN ARLINGTON.

We stated in last week's issue that we had received a correct report of the fire in Arlington, but, as the letter had failed to reach us in time for publication, it would appear in this issue. Several papers published the account of the fire the same week of its occurrence but they were all erroneous, however. This account is from the Globe's correspondent at Arlington and is as follows:

On Tuesday evening, the 10th inst., Mr. C. A. Shurte left James W. Smith's store, where he is employed, between 9 and 10 o'clock p. m. His wife and Miss Nellie France, a young lady friend who was stopping with them, met him on his way home, and the three walked leisurely back to Mr. Shurte's residence.

Soon after arriving at their home the usual family devotions were engaged in, and the family and Miss France retired to their respective rooms upstairs and all were soon wrapped in peaceful slumber. A few minutes before 11 p. m., Mr. Shurte was suddenly aroused from a sound sleep by some noise. He jumped from the bed which himself and wife were occupying, ran down stairs and discovered fire on the stand and floor in the room where they had but recently held their devotions, and where he had but a short time before blown out the light. He at once gave the alarm of fire, ran to the hydrant in the yard, turned the water on and hastened to the front porch where he broke a large glass out with his foot and turned the water in on the rapidly spreading blaze, meantime shouting fire! fire! as loudly as he could, hoping to arouse his neighbors to come to his aid. He kept the water turned on the stairway to protect the way of escape for the occupants in the upper story, expecting every moment to see his wife descending with the children. After some minutes he came to the conclusion that they had not been awakened. He then dropped the hose and ran to the rear of the house, seized a short ladder and by dint of great exertion reached the kitchen roof, intending to break through windows and thus reach his loved ones; but on getting to the openings he found it impossible to get through the roaring flames. He then jumped from the roof and ran to the front of the house in hopes that he could reach the top of the porch and thus get through the front openings, but to his dismay he found the fire had got under too strong headway to admit anyone getting in without a force of water were following him.

As he had heard no crys from the upper room he thought possibly they had escaped without his knowledge. He then ran to his nearest neighbor, Mrs. Daggett's, and there found Miss France, but none of his family had left the burning building. He then gave up in despair and was powerless to do anything more. By this time the citizens had begun to gather around the burning structure, and a heavy stream of water was soon turned on which enabled two heroes, J. A. Hughes and J. L. Chandler by name, to get in to the second story where they found the mother and two children in the room where the father, mother and the youngest child slept, and found the children lying on the floor covered with some bedding while the mother was unprotected, and all were unconscious. The firemen took them to the open air and it was found that life was extinct; death had come by suffocation.

Mr. Shurte states that he blew out the light on retiring, but thinks some fire must have remained on the wick, and this caused the lamp to explode. Evidently oil must have been scattered in two of the lower rooms, as no fire could have gained such headway in so short a time. It was not more than ten minutes from the time he discovered the fire until his family were beyond help. In so short a time home, loved ones—all that men prize in this world were gone, never to be regained in this life.

But little of value was saved, and the house and contents were insured for less than tow-thirds their value. This is recorded one of the worst tragedies Gilliam county has ever known, and Mr. Shurte has the deep, heartfelt sympathy of the entire community in which he resides and a wide circle of friends and acquaintances.

JAMES W. SMITH

Desires to inform the people of Gilliam county that his business is running on full time at the old stand—Union Block, Arlington, Oregon; that the flashy, misleading newspaper advertisements and circular letters that are flooding the country have not affected his trade; but on the contrary, sales have been increasing. His many old friends and customers realize that no business man will give away something for nothing. What he loses on the "baits" he will more than doubly make up on the other goods he sells his customers. Look out for snares. One of our greatest statesmen 40 years ago truthfully said: "You can fool some of the people all of the time, and all of the people some of the time, but you can't fool all of the people all of the time."

James W. Smith's immense stock of goods will speak for him. Call and examine the largest stock of goods ever shown in Gilliam county. His stores are loaded from floor to ceiling, and as regards prices he will endeavor to keep in the "procession."

Many of the lines are bought direct from the East in large quantities for cash, which enables him to give his customers great inducements to favor him with their patronage.

He sells the Oliver Chilled plows and extras, including the New Departure two and three gangs, also the John Deere plows of all kinds, the Studebaker, Bain and Racine wagons, hacks and buggies, the Standard, Acme and McCormack mowers, reapers and hay rakes, the latest improved Pitts threshing machinery, the up-to-date old reliable Hodge steel-frame headers, Holt Bros. Combined Harvesters, Etc., Etc.

Camp and sheepmen's supplies a specialty. Highest prices paid for hides, pelts, etc.
