

ARLINGTON.

R. H. Robinson, of the Review, visited several Eastern Washington towns last week. He reports times good in the upper country.

John Cunningham and W. H. Colwell are building a hay press to bale 100 tons of hay which they intend to move to town from out to the country.

We hear some complaint of frosty weather in the south end of the county. Strange to say, there has been no frost here, yet, all tender plants being kept out door without injury.

R. A. W. Barbot sold his household goods and farm machinery at auction last week and is now ready to go to England to spend a year, when he will return and go into business here.

Farmers are getting anxious about rain, as there will be no time to do fall plowing if rain does not come very soon. Most of them have their wheat in the warehouses and are ready to do their seeding.

A man supposed to be a tramp died on the river bank last week. There were no papers nor anything found by which his identity could be established. He is supposed to have died from heart trouble.

There are more goods going out from Arlington this fall than there has been for years before, which proves that times are good with the people. Money is plentiful, and no one is kicking. Quite a contrast from two years ago.

Doc Brown, accompanied by two friends, came down from La Grand the first of the week on a goose hunt. They bagged a lot of geese while here. Doc is an old timer here and knows all about goose hunting by up-to-date methods.

With the telephone facility we now have we can talk to our neighbors out at Burns, Canyon City, Long Creek, Lane Rock and in fact at almost every place except Condon. Perhaps with a little coaxing we can get up a wire fence line out there.

There are so many wheat teams crossing the river from the Washington side that they cause a blockade for several hours most every day and some days some of them have to unload and go back home without crossing, which causes much inconvenience.

Last Sunday two of our best men, physically, because filled with the idea that they wanted to whip somebody, and by a little coaxing they soon found their man. He was a little bit of a fellow, just their size, they thought, but, after he had knocked them both out, they swore that such a man should be arrested and locked up and not be allowed to run around loose in Arlington and fool the people. He was little, but oh my! what a devious cuss.

The German Specialists will be at the Condon Hotel on next Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 8th and 9th, where they may be consulted free of charge. They will return every month and remain two days. Read their announcement in this issue.
