BRITON vs BOER.

The British have again suffered defeat at the hands of the Boers. General Buller tries, as is natural, to tone down the bitterness of this latest defeat but the fact remains that his army has again been forced to place the Tugela river between themselves and the belligerent Boers and that the bodies of 1500 brave English soldiers were left behind. Buller's official report of the occurrence is somewhat bombastic. He recites the story of the British withdrawal from Spionkop, closing with this boast: "I think the enemy has been taught to respect our soldiers' fighting qualities." Commenting on this bit of "blow", the St. James Gazette, of London, says: "General Buller's reflections on the terror he put into the foe reminds us of things we have heard about—Chinese mandarins." Continuing the Gazette says: "The pouring of more and more troops into Africa savors of Spanish action in Cuba. The solution of making better use of the thousands already there seems not to have presented itself."

The British seem to have fallen into another trap in this Spionkop affair. General Buller reports that General Warren "was led to believe" that water existed on the top of Spionkop mountain but after gaining the point of vantage he found it dry as a bone and, for that reason, it was untenable. The frequency with which these big blue-blooded British officers allow themselves to be led into such traps and the well known fighting qualities of the British rank and file recalls the remark made by Napoleon: "The British army is an army of lions led by a lot of jackasses."

THE ACADEMY.

To use interested in the establishment of a young ladies' academy at Condon, mention of which was made in this column two weeks ago, report encouraging progress. Already $325.00 has been subscribed to the cause and but little canvassing has been done. Father Kelly has laid the matter before the proper persons in Portland and it is expected the project will be a go. The subscription paper will be circulated among the business men in a few days and it is to be hoped that the proper encouragement will be shown to insure the school to our town. Such an institution would be a big help to the town in more ways than one.

REGISTER! REGISTER!

All voters should remember that there is a new law on the statute books of Oregon, requiring voters to register on or before the 15th day of May prior to election. If you don't register you can't vote—at least without lots of trouble—so when in town be sure and call at the clerk's office and attend to this important matter.

CLARK AND QUAY.

In view of the Clark scandal and the Quay contest, unusual interest attaches to the resolution now before the house, providing for an amendment to the constitution to permit any state so desiring to elect its senators by direct vote of the people.

This resolution has been favorably reported from the committee on election of president, vice-president and members of congress. The committee finds that "after a trial of over 100 years of the present methods of electing United States senators, it has been found that the states have been on terms of absolute equality in the senate." In other words, for a greater part of the time since the foundation of the government, one or more of the states have suffered from legislative dead-lock.

The report brings out the interesting fact that the legislatures of 27 of the 45 states have adopted resolutions or memorials in support of direct election by the people—namely, Montana, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Florida, Idaho, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Oregon, Utah, Washington Wisconsin and Wyoming.

Lack of representation, however, is not the prime evil of the existing method. It is no exaggeration to assert that, east and west or north and south a senatorial election is the most disturbing, demoralizing and corrupting influence in our system of government.

The country bears now a great outcry against the seating of Clark from Montana. His case is treated as exceptional. It is alleged that he bought his way into the senate and that his crime was so unusual that all the other senators should draw closer their togas from the contaminating touch of the Montana contestant. The truth is that, as a rule, senatorial seats are won by bribery. True, the direct consideration is not always in gold and greenbacks, as alleged in the case from Montana, but it is either money or office. Often it is office. The senatorial aspirant buys votes with the public service and the public money, instead of buying them with his individual resources, as is alleged in the case of Clark of Montana. Instead of passing over $5,000 or $10,000, he passes over a federal appointment which is worth that or more to the bribed member. In either case the offense is bribery and the practice is demoralizing.

Senatorial contests are demoralizing in other ways. Legislative sessions are obstructed, the fate of bills turns on combinations formed in the interest of this or that candidate. A bad law may be passed because its supporter voted for the successful candidate, and a good bill may be defeated because its author voted for the defeated candidate. These contests are also a demoralizing influence in the government of state, county, city and school district. The rule is that the United States senator who remains in power for more than one term must be a political boss, or the creature of a political boss or great corporations, though a few exceptions may be noted of the intellectual giants of the senate, who retain their seats from sheer force of ability.

The people will welcome the day when senators shall be elected by direct voting. The reform will lift an enormous weight of corruption from American politics, facilitate the work of state legislation and remove a demoralizing influence from the legislative halls.—Spokesman-Review.

The claim of other cough medicines to be as good as Chamberlain's are effectually set at rest in the following testimonial of Mr. C. D. Glass, an employer of Bartlett & Dennis Co., Gardiner, Me. He says: "I had kept adding to a cold and cough in the winter of 1897, trying every cough medicine I heard of without permanent help, until one day I was in the drug store of Mr. Houlahan and he advised me to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and offered to pay back my money if I was not cured. My lungs and bronchial tubes were very sore at this time, but I was completely cured by this remedy, and have since always turned to it when I get a cold, and soon find relief. I also recommend it to my friends, and am glad to say it is the best of all cough medicines. For sale by Hudson Pharmacy, C. W. Crossfield, Mgr."
