THE CONDON GLOBE.

THURSDAY, JUNE 21, 1900.

NOTICE.

The GLOBE invites correspondence from all sections of Gilliam county. We aim to make this paper the leading news medium of the county and invite our readers to assist us by sending in the news of their respective neighborhoods. Correspondence must be signed by the writer, not necessarily for publication, but as an evidence of good faith, and the editor assumes no responsibility for opinions expressed by correspondents.

WHEAT THE KING.

The gentle showers of balmy June which fall on Gilliam's hills make farm and ranch and town attune with pleasurable thrills of pure delight. With glad acclaim we make the welkin ring and every body joins in shout proclaiming Wheat the King.

When hot winds blow across the plain and Sol's rays fiercely beat upon the earth we pray for rain and moderated heat; and if our prayers unheeded fall we'll follow a new lay and, swearing Wheat's no king at all, we'll cut him down for hay.

But when our prayers are wafted up and upward into space and in return the rains come down you'll find a smiling face on every mother's son of us and merrily we'll sing and whoop and yell and dance and—well we'll proclaim Wheat the King.

THEN AND NOW.

Rev. H. K. Hines, a pioneer preacher of Oregon, who has witnessed the wonderful changes of almost a half century in Oregon and Washington, in a recent address before the Umatilla Pioneer Association, gave voice to the following beautiful word picture of the pioneer days and the present.

"I stood one September noonday 47 years ago on a prairie height, not many miles from where we are met today, and looked far out on the misty sea of midday grasses, lying asleep over all the vale of the Columbia. All was silent as dim futurity. No voice in all that wild careen of soundless surf and unflung swells that broke in bloom was heard. No trace was seen of hand of man. There was no sign of life save a shadowy wolf fleeing over the land or a phantom hawk sailing in the sky, blue as a lovely maiden's eye, and deep as the soundless sea. Round the horizon from pole to pole, the land, unmete awaited the coming plowman's glad decree to laugh with plenty at his feet. I stood in mute amaze, looking across the hazy hills to the proud old monarch of the Westland, Mount Hood, standing in the hoary glory of his eternity; looked and thought and remembered; and wondered if the time would come when some later pilgrim, long after I was dead, would stand where I then stood, and see the old prophet's vision transmuted into historic fact over the lifeless plains before and beyond me.

Yesterday I stood on the self-same mound of swelling surf. Lo, how the vision was changed! The land was ahum with voices of men and the song of reapers, whose knives, keen as sickles, with clatter and rush swept into the drowsy headed wheat, while wide as a sea, green, yellow and brown, the grain fields endlessly rolled down to the far horizon. Hundreds of bright cottage roofs, like sails adrift on a boundless sea, islanded the far away swells of emerald and gold. Distant spires of church and school lent music of bells to charm the old silence into attuned harmony of reverence and intelligence. I felt the throb and thrill of the nation's heart as I saw the railway trains shooting north and south and lightning lines running here and there and everywhere in their subtlety, like penitent things to tell to city and country the marvelous story that the century has brought."

The spirit of toryism is rampant in this land of the free. There is the callous, sordid, brutal toryism of Morgan and Hanna, with its contempt for human life, its frank avowal that might makes right, its unsqueamish desire to trample on the weak. There is the far more dangerous toryism of benevolence, fathered by the pulpit and endorsed by the influential and the conventially religious in all parts of the land. This is the toryism that wishes to control for the good of the controlled. Conscious of their God-given superiority its apostles would fain force their fellows to do as they in their omniscience should direct. Justice seems to play small part in this philosophy. It is founded on a perverted and very human wisdom which an analysis resolves into that colossal error and hoary wickedness of doing evil that good may come. We are lacking in democratic ways. We are forgetting the virtue of simplicity. We have begun to respect the rich and to lack it for those who do their share of the world's work. He who greets another obsequiously or begs a gratuity or dons a livery may possibly have been born under the American flag, but in the act he repudiates his democratic heritage and ceases to be an American.

"Public sentiment is everything. With public sentiment nothing can fail, without it nothing can succeed; consequently he who moulds public sentiment goes deeper than he who enacts statutes or pronounces decisions."—Abraham Lincoln.

The price of sugar has moved up a peg—35 cents a 100. That will make the sugar trust several hundred thousand, and will not hurt the public, you know, for if the people do not want to pay it they can do without sugar. The trust should raise it higher, for the price of sugar does not hurt the people, especially the poor people who have no money to buy sugar anyhow. What difference does it make how rich some people get? Are not the rich a blessing to the country? And would not the people starve if the rich did not give them employment? I am often lost in deep meditation trying to fathom the mystery of how the human race kept from starving before there were any rich men to employ them! Therefore rejoice that we have rich men to raise the price of sugar and thus maintain civilization and progress.—Ex.

A Sprained Ankle Quickly Cured.

"At one time I suffered from a severe sprain of the ankle," says Geo. E. Cary, editor of the GUIDE, Washington, Va. "After using several well recommended medicines without success, I tried Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and am pleased to say that relief came as soon as I began its use and a complete cure speedily followed." Sold by the Hudson Pharmacy —C. W. Crosfield, mgr.

Death of Taylor Smythe.

Taylor Smythe, who left this city some three or four weeks ago with a train load of sheep for South Dakota, took violently ill and while unconscious was taken from the station at Glenwood, Colorado, to a sanitarium in that city. Upon the receipt of telegraphic information his father, A. Smythe, hastened to the bedside of his son. Monday a dispatch from Mr. Smythe stated that his son was slightly improved but on Thursday the sad news was received here that he had passed away. The remains will be brought to this city. He leaves a family at Goldendale, Washington.—Arlington Independent.

If troubled with rheumatism, give Chamberlain's Pain-Balm a trial. It will not cost you a cent if it does no good. One application will relieve the pain. It also cures sprains and bruises in one-third the time required by any other treatment. Cuts, burns, frostbites quinsey, pains in the side and chest, glandular and other swellings are quickly cured by applying it. Every bottle warranted. Price, 25 and 50 cts. at the Hudson Pharmacy, C. W Crosfield, Mgr.

Dentistry.

Dr. T. L. Nicklin, dentist, has removed his office to the Stephenson building, second floor, where he will be found at all times ready to attend to the wants of those desiring the services of a first-class dentist. Call and see him. The doctor was here for a short time last summer and his work speaks for itself.
