THURSDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1900.

THE OFFICIAL PAPER OF GILLIAM COUNTY, OREGON.

LOCAL NEWS.

J. R. Paazer was in town Sunday attending church service.

Rev. Curran held service in the Congregational church last Sunday.

Elder Badger, of the Church of Christ, preached in the Baptist church last Sunday.

A big reunion of Morrow county pioneers will be held at Heppner on Saturday.

H. C. Strickland was seriously ill the first of the week with an attack of lumbago and kidney trouble.

Arthur Myers was in town Tuesday. Mr. Myers threshed 10,200 bushels of grain this season.

Joe Trevett has several tons of fine cabbage for sale. Leave orders at P. H. Stephenson's or Dunn Bros.' store. d33

The crosswalk just below the Fix building, on Main street, which has been in bad condition for some time, is being repaired.

Tom Fortwood is now agent for The Dalles Steam Laundry, vice H. W. Pauling, who has left the city. Customers should take notice.

Next Monday evening, October 8th, has been fixed as the date for the institution of a Rebekah Lodge at this place. Mayville and Fossil lodges have been invited to be present.

Paul Greiner was in town Monday from Ferry Canyon, where the Greiner-Dyer steam threshing outfit is now operating. They expect from two to three weeks' run in that section.

R. G. Robinson, one of Lone Rock's most prominent citizens, was in town Saturday night. Miss Grace Fitzwater accompanied him home Sunday to begin her duties Monday morning as teacher in the Lone Rock public school.

Clyde Flint, one of the prominent citizens of the Ajax neighborhood, was in town last Thursday.

W. L. Wilcox and Charlie Pinkham visited their ranches in Ferry Canyon precinct Monday. They report the pumpkins almost ready to harvest.

Dr. Nicklin left yesterday for Portland to attend a meeting of the State Dental Board. He will return in about two weeks to look after his dental patients and, he promises, with some brand new stories.

J. R. Wells, who is working with Stevenson's thrasher, came in Monday with a badly smashed finger. The injury was caused by the finger being caught in a pulley. Mr. Wells will likely be obliged to lay off for a few days.

W. S. Myers' threshing outfit finished the season's run Monday morning. The machine threshed 26,000 bushels of grain in 25 1/2 days, about 23,000 bushels of which belongs to the Myers family. The machine is a horse-power.

A young man named Rogers, 22 years old, who has worked for W. L. Barker for the past year or so and who has been under treatment at Arlington since July, was removed to a Portland hospital last week, where he underwent an operation. An abscess had formed in his side which was removed and he is now in a fair way to recovery.

Dr. Dodson was in town from Clem Thursday accompanied by his daughter. The doctor left a sample of winter apples from his orchard at this office which are exceedingly fine specimens. The orchard is free from insect pests, and the quality of fruit is first-class. Dr. Dodson will move to Lone Rock this winter, where he will put his children in school and practice his profession.

Our public school is starting out under very favorable circumstances for a successful term. A larger number of pupils are enrolled than was expected for the first week, and with the efficient teachers in charge there is no question of the success of the term. An important feature of the term will be a literary society which it is proposed to organize at an early date.

Mrs. H. C. Strickland and children, Hazel and Genevieve, returned Saturday from the East, where they spent several months. Most of their stay was in Chicago, where Hazel underwent a series of surgical operations for her lame shoulder and arm which were entirely successful. On their way West they spent several weeks at the home of Mrs. Strickland's father at Aberdeen, South Dakota.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Becker entertained a company of friends at 6 o'clock dinner on Saturday afternoon, in honor of their daughter, Mrs. Jessie Strickland, of Condon, Ore., who will soon depart for her home, after a pleasant visit of a few weeks. The dinner party was followed by a reception given on Monday evening by Mrs. N. F. Smith, assisted by Mrs. C. L. Becker. The rooms were beautifully decorated with roses and ferns, and after an elegant repast an entertaining musical program was rendered by G. W. Becker.—Aberdeen (S. D.) News.

Mr. Mumpower, who came here from near Oregon City two or three months ago to try this climate for the relief of asthma, was much benefited by a few weeks' sojourn and sometime ago returned to his home. He did not stay long, however, as the disease came back on him with increased severity and he was glad to return to Eastern Oregon, the land of pure air and bright sunshine. Mr. B. Flinn, another asthmatic sufferer, also of Oregon City, came up with Mr. Mumpower and both gentlemen are already much improved. They are in the mountains this week with J. R. Fraser trying the effect of pine woods air on their breathing apparatus.

Capt. E. E. Whistler came in on the stage from Portland Tuesday.

Mrs. T. L. Portwood is visiting her parents at Lost Valley this week.

John F. Pinkham, Esq., was admitted to practice law in this state at the last session of circuit court here. Mr. Pinkham has long been a member of the bar in California.

Elder J. L. Swift will hold services at the Baptist church on Sunday, Oct. 7th, at 11 a. m. and 4 p. m., assisted by Elder E. Badger. Everybody cordially invited to attend.

"For three days and nights I suffered agony untold from an attack of cholera morbus brought on by eating cucumbers," says M. E. Lowther, clerk of the district court, Centerville, Iowa. "I thought I should surely die, and tried a dozen different medicines but all to no purpose. I sent for a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and three doses relieved me entirely." This remedy is for sale by The Hudson Pharmacy.—C. W. Crofield, mgr.

OLEX.

Grant Wade has the frame of his new house up.

Miss Kearns, of Salem, commenced our school last Monday morning.

The threshing season has about closed. George Smith, Snell and Tobey have all pulled in their steam threshers.

Our town is still doing a good business, and parties coming here are not required to "throw up your hands."

Several of the farmers have been waging a destructive war against the thistles, while others are allowing them to mature their seed for next year's crop.

Fremont Wade and wife have returned home with their little girl Bessie, who was suffering with typhoid. Upon the doctor's advice, Mont has torn down the old house, and will build a new house at once.

Bill Snell has thrown away the crutches which he carried for the last three weeks. He can now walk on his sprained ankle which was caused by his horse falling with him while he and Guy Nott were trying to "paint the town" after having filled up on peanuts and chewing gum.

You assume no risk when you buy Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. The Hudson Pharmacy will refund your money if you are not satisfied after using it. It is everywhere admitted to be the most successful remedy in use for bowel complaints and the only one that never fails. It is pleasant safe and reliable.

LONE ROCK.

G. L. Fraser and Geo. Shields made a business trip to Condon Saturday.

Our blacksmith, T. J. Andrews, has sold his shop to Herman Neel, who has just moved to town.

Our public school opened Monday, with Mr. J. S. Walker as principal, and Miss Grace Fitzwater as primary teacher. A fairly good number of lads and lassies were present the first day.

Henry Heidman was in our burg the first of the week buying cavalry horses. He only got a few at this place and went on to Heppner. The prices he paid were from $25 to $40 per head.

Otto Wick was riding a horse for Rev. I. D. Brown Monday and the animal bucked into a wire fence and threw Otto off on his head and knocked him senseless for a few hours. He was pretty badly banged up. The horse was cut almost to ruin on the barb wire.

W. C. Brown returned a few days ago from an extended trip through Grant and Harney counties, where he has been looking up the cattle business. Billy says there are lots of cattle over there, but it takes a bonanza king to buy many of them at the prices asked.

W. T. Matlock and Miss Laura Brown went down to the State Fair at Salem, and to make the trip a little more novel and romantic, they concluded to get married, which they did then and there. Miss Frances Brown accompanied them to the fair and was present at the wedding. The new Matlock family are now pleasantly located in their cozy residence in Lone Rock which they have just purchased from Mrs. J. R. Kalston.

It Happened in a Drug Store.

"One day last winter a lady came to my drug store and asked for a brand of cough medicine that I did not have in stock," says Mr. C. R. Grandin, the popular druggist of Ontario, N. Y. "She was disappointed and wanted to know what cough preparation I could recommend. I said to her that I could freely recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and that she could take a bottle of the remedy and after giving it a fair trial if she did not find it worth the money to bring back the bottle and I would refund the price paid. In the course of a day or two the lady came back in company with a friend in need of a cough medicine and advised her to buy a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I consider that a good recommendation for the remedy." It is for sale by The Hudson Pharmacy—C. W. Crofield, mgr.

Rev. Edward Curran will preach next Sunday, morning and evening, in the Congregational church. Mr. Curran is supplying the pulpit here in the absence of Rev. Mr. Healy. All are invited to these services.

A STRIKER'S HOME.

How the Semi-Slaves of Coal Barons Live. Pathetic Side of Great Strike.

HAZELTON, (Pa.), Sept. 24.—I drove out this morning through what was meant by nature to be a series of beautiful valleys in and about Hazelton. In the breakers where coal is cleaned and broken into commercial sizes, the children are accustomed to work at picking slate. Along the valleys are artificial mounds, mountains of coal refuse or clum. Black, grim bluffs they are, sullen and blighting. Where the raw earth starts between these piles is called strippings.

Among these hills, ugly and gaunt, rise little villages. Rows and rows of black shanties rise in a ragged edge against the sky, making a weird outline picture.

The day was cold and raw. Few people were in the streets, but the windows were crowded with faces.

"Stop here," I said to the driver, "I am going to make some calls."

A moment later I stood at the door of a miner's home. A woman, with a baby on one arm and leading a little boy by the hand, met me at the entrance, as though to prevent further progress. She was a young woman, an American, and she was proud. Her cheeks flushed and the color spread over her brow, down to the calico band at her throat. Nevertheless, when I asked if I might come in, she stepped back with native courtesy.

"It is not much of a place to come into; it's as bare a home as you're likely to have seen, but such as it is you're welcome."

The inside of the house was less eloquent than its back exterior; its appearance was even a more intense witness to poverty. The bare rafters of the ceilings were whitewashed. Some cheap prints were on the wall. "I had intended fixing up a little," said the young woman. "I was going to get some calico to tack on the rafters, but I can't do it now, of course; my man's on a strike."

"Oh, yes," she went on, "we have enough to eat just yet, but the company stores can't be expected to give trust during a strike, and the stores at Hazelton say they ain't going to trust us yet. They ain't shut down on us any. I suppose we'll get some money from the union, but it's certain to be short rations."

"Do you worry about it?" I asked thoughtfully.

"Worry, ma'am," and she looked her answer. "Me and my man we could get along, but it's the children; I tell you that hurts."

The blue-eyed baby stared solemnly and sucked its fist.

"As long as any neighbor has got anything," put in a cheerful-faced Irish woman, who was talking it over in the kitchen, "she'll set it out and we'll all share alike."

Father Phillips told me this morning to seek the light as well as the shadows. He warned me that in visiting the villages I should find poverty, but he declared destitution did not exist, as the charities reached out to prevent that.

"The evils of the villages of Lehigh valley mines," said the Father, "are caused by the same reasons from which suffering in Ireland came about—absentee landlordism."

I have talked to one striker. At Wilkesbarr I stepped off the Black Diamond special of the Lehigh Valley railroad to get the local running down the valley to Hazelton. I had been riding in the observation car watching with delight the beautiful valley views off through the hills, scarcely realizing that the coal fields were growing into the environments as we whirled along. In the station at Wilkesbarr I saw a row of children sitting alone in their neat little gingham pinafores and kilts. One child, scarcely thirteen, was acting as a mother; the smallest one was a baby in her arms.

"What, seven babies!" I cried. "All alone! Where is mother?"

"Mother gone to look for work," answered the biggest girl.

All the children looked pecked and pensive. Not one wriggled out of his seat in play. At a near-by counter old-fashioned sticks of candy could be had; I bought some, and no sooner did every child clutch eagerly at a stick of the proffered sweetmeat than a father and mother hurried in breathless, just returned from a vain search for work.

"Thank you, lady," said the father, "for being so good to our little ones," and the mother's face brightened up with pleasure at the trifling attention.

"Are you a striker?" I asked with sudden inspiration.

"I am, lady, God help us," answered the man, passionately.

I was amazed at his sudden flaring excitement.

"There, there, Jim, don't cry," said the woman, quickly moving to his side with awkward sympathy. "Haven't I always stood by you and ain't I going to now? I can get work, never fear. He's an awful good man to me and his children, ma'am, and 'deed I'm strong and can work. I want to work. I want to help. I only want him to stand with his mates till they win this fight against the injustice which has held them down for five years."

"Yes," said the man, who picked up his spirit with his wife's words. "We've had bad treatment. You ain't got time to listen to much, but I'll tell you this: I've been in this valley fifteen years. I've always worked hard and faithfully. I'm coming out of the valley with nothing but a box of eggs and my wife's seven children. They would not have clothes on their backs if it was not for friends helping her. I worked for the Sherick creek people and the Dolph Coal Co. in Jessup for five years. I haven't got over $250 per year, work as hard as I could.—Sybil Wilbar, in the Examiner.
