A Frenchman has discovered a remedy instantaneous in its effects for the horrible burns caused by the use of oil of vitriol. It is a soft paste of calcined magnesia and water, with which the parts burned are covered to the thickness of an inch. It alleviates the pain almost immediately, and when the paste is removed no scar remains.

Cancer
There are never any external signs of Cancer until the blood is polluted and the system thoroughly contaminated by this deadly virulent poison. Then a sore or ulcer appears on some part of the body; it may be small and harmless looking at first, but as the cancerous cells form and are deposited by the blood near the sore, it increases in size and severity, with sharp shooting pains. No matter how often the sore is removed by the surgeon's knife or flesh destroying plasters, another comes and is worse. The real disease is in the blood, and the treatment must begin there. The poisoned blood must be invigorated and purified, and when this is done cancerous cells can no longer form and the sore will heal naturally and permanently.

Mrs. Sarah M. Keating, 41 Windsor Ave., Bristol, Conn., writes: "I am 47 years old, and for three years have suffered with a severe form of Cancer on my jaw, which the doctors were incurable, and that I could not live more than a few months. I accepted your statement as true, and gave up all hope of ever being well again when my druggist, knowing my condition, recommended S. S. S. After taking a few bottles the sore began to heal. To the surprise of the physicians, in a short time made a complete cure. They gained in flesh, my appetite is splendid, sleep is refreshing—in fact, everything perfect health is now mine. I am now in good health. This is the best medicine I have ever used. It removes every vestige of it from the system, makes new, rich blood, strengthens the body and builds up the general health."

AN ECDOTE AND ANECDOTE

A schoolboy at a prize examination, says the Woman's Journal, furnished the following biography of the patriarch Abraham: "He was the father of Lot, and had two wives. One was called Hamael, and the other Hagar. He kept one at home; and he turned the other into the desert, where she became a pillar of salt in the daytime and a pillar of fire by night."

J. M. Barrie's story of how a telegraph editor, receiving a dispatch that the Zulus had "taken umbrage," headed the news, "Capture of Umbrage by the Zulus," has been paralleled by an editor in the West. Shortly after the anti-Semitic riots in Austria, a slight shock of earthquake was felt in the vicinity of Vienna, and a cable dispatch put it tersely that there had been "seismic disturbances" near the capital. He headed the item, "Down with the Jews!"

Paine: "You will move for a new trial, I presume, Mr. Paine." Paine rose with a demeanor that was painful in its solemnity. "I thank your honor for your suggestion," he said, "but I am oppressed with the gravest doubts whether I have the right to move for a new trial in this case. Your honor, I have already asked for and have received for my idiot client the most precious heritage of our English and American common law—a trial by a jury of his peers." The judge then ordered the verdict set aside.

Haydn had a peculiar way of determining the time in which a piece of music should be sung. On one occasion, a female singer in high esteem at court had been appointed to sing one of Haydn's compositions. At the rehearsal she and the conductor differed as to the time of the music. The matter was to be settled by referring it to Haydn himself. When called on to decide he asked the conductor if the singer was handsome. "Very," was the reply, "and a special favorite with the Prince."

Not long before his death Henry W. Paine, of Cambridge, one of the most brilliant lawyers of his generation, became interested in a case, as a matter of charity, in which a lad of some fifteen years was charged with arson. Paine defended the boy and offered conclusive evidence that he was, to all practical purposes, an idiot and totally irresponsible. Nevertheless, the jury in the case, after a charge from the court which was virtually an order for acquittal, brought in a verdict of guilty. The presiding judge then addressed a plumber who was sent to the house of a stock broker to execute some repairs was taken by the butler into the dining-room, and was beginning his work when the lady of the house entered. "John," said she, with a suspicious glance toward the plumber, "remove the silver from the sideboard and lock it up at once." But the man of lead was in no wise disconcerted. "Tom," said he to his apprentice, who accompanied him, "take my watch and chain and these coppers home to my missus at once. There seems to be dishonest people about this house."

Anthony Hope Hawkins believes very much in men of letters standing by each other, and he has worked tremendously hard to help on the fund which the Authors' Society of London is trying to accumulate, from which pensions are to be paid to authors whose literary merit has not brought them a corresponding income, and who view increasing years with fear. Recently an unfortunate writer, who visited Mr. Hawkins at his rooms in Buckingham street, by the Embankment Gardens, exclaimed on leaving with something in his pocket: "Oh, sir, I feel that Providence must have sent me to you!" And the reply came with a twinkle in his benefactor's eye: "Let us hope, however, that Providence will not acquire the habit of doing so."

LISZT'S "YOUNG BEETHOVEN."
A Reminiscence of Rubinstein Half a Century Ago.
Dr. William Mason was a pupil of Liszt's, and while studying at Weimar met many famous musicians, including Rubinstein. In the Century he tells of his first meeting with the "young Beethoven," as Liszt called him. Liszt sometimes left Weimar for a few days in order to be present at or conduct music festivals. On one of these occasions, early in June, 1854, I remained alone at home on account of slight illness. As Klindworth had gone to London for concert-playing and piano-forte teaching, I had moved into a suite of rooms in the Hotel zum Erprinsen. As a matter of interest to pianists I here note the fact that these identical rooms had been occupied by Hummel several years previously.

On the afternoon of the day on which Liszt left with his cortege the young water came to me, saying that a young man who had just arrived was in the cafe inquiring for Liszt and seemed disappointed on learning of his absence. "I told him," said the waiter, "that you were the only one of the family here. Will you see him?" I assented, and in a few moments he ushered in a young man about 24 years of age, of strong features and with a great shock of dark hair, who introduced himself as Anton Rubinstein. I explained to him that Liszt had gone away for three or four days to conduct a festival, and that I could not say precisely when he would return; but in the meantime, if I could make him feel at home, I should be very glad.

After some conversation he asked me to play. I remember very well how he looked sitting on the sofa, and the position of the piano in the room. I played, but he did not. I had a suspicion that he was inveigling me without any intention of allowing me to take his measure. He sat there in a gruff Russian way, like a bear, and perhaps my imagination helped to produce this impression. Rubinstein was already quite well known as a child prodigy, but of course not nearly so famous as he afterward very much attention during Liszt's absence, but then, he did not allow me to ramble about all the time; nor did I hear him play before Liszt came back. When Liszt returned, Rubinstein was immediately invited to take up his residence on the Altenburg. I remember that there, one afternoon, he played many of his own compositions. His playing was full of rush and fire, and characterized by strong emotional temperament. He had a big technique and revealed in dash and fire. His touch was hard, and lacked the mellow and tender beauty of tone which distinguished it in later years.

STRIKING POWER OF FANCY.
Camille Flammarion Cites Several Interesting Cases.
Camille Flammarion, in his recent book, "The Unknown," alludes to the power of imagination. "The power which imagination is capable of exercising over life itself," he says, "has long been established. The experiment performed in the last century in England on a man condemned to death, who was made the subject of a study of this kind by medical men is well known. The subject of the experiment was fastened securely to a table with strong straps, his eyes were bandaged, and he was then told that he was to be bled from the neck until every drop of his blood had been drained. After this an insignificant puncture was made in his skin with the point of a needle and a siphon was arranged near his head in such a manner as to allow over his neck stream of water to flow over his head and fall with a slight sound into a basin placed on the floor. At the end of six minutes, the condemned man, believing that he had lost at least seven or eight quarts of blood, died of terror."

A somewhat similar experiment was also tried in England during an epidemic of smallpox. Leading physicians came to the conclusion that fright was helpful almost as many as the disease, so they applied to the government for permission to experiment on a condemned criminal. The criminal, it is said, was promised a pardon if he survived the ordeal of sleeping in a bed with a person who had just died of smallpox. The man consented. The result was that in the morning he was found to be suffering from smallpox and of this very disease he died a few days later. Yet the bed in which he had lain and the sheets and blankets on it had been purchased expressly for this very purpose and had never before been used.

AN EDITOR'S EXPERIENCE.
ARMY LIFE CAUSES PHYSICAL AND MENTAL DISABILITY FOR MANY YEARS.
Rescued From Death by Reading an Advertisement—A Journalist of Note Advises His Readers and Friends.
From Farmer & Dairyman, North Yakima, Wash.
In 1883, I entered the regular U. S. Army and was assigned to Co. "E," Sixth Infantry, then stationed at Fort Douglas, Utah. My boyhood days had been spent on a farm in Kentucky, but I had not been accustomed to manual labor for several years previous to entering upon active military duties. The constant and excessive daily drills, sleeping in tents and general exposure of a severe winter, brought on a peculiar nervous trouble, which soon incapacitated me for all garrison work. The post surgeon ordered me to the hospital and diagnosed my case as muscular rheumatism. My lower limbs seemed to be dying—losing all sense of outward feeling. The most excruciating pains made me almost wild with misery and I could not stand alone. My appetite was ravenous, digestion perfect, lungs strong and general health good except for this distressing disability. After several days' treatment with no change, the surgeon concluded I had heart failure. He prescribed tincture of digitalis, and gave me several ounces of this without any effect, except that I kept getting worse. In the fall of 1884, I was discharged on surgeon's certificate of disability, and began the difficult task of existing and trying to regain my health in a strange land, surrounded by unsympathetic people. My condition continued to grow more alarming. I was compelled to use a heavy staff to prevent falling. All attempts at manual and mental labor were made under exasperating difficulties. I seemed about one-half dead. My weight was less than 140 pounds, though I was over six feet in height. I tried electricity with no avail. Several local physicians gave me treatment which was not effective. Many well advertised remedies for nervous debility were taken with no satisfactory results. I read all the medical authorities obtainable, and finally found my symptoms under the head of Locomotor Ataxia. The author said there was the cure for the disease, and I believed him. He recommended a mixture of iodide of potassium and sarsaparilla, as a possible aid to existence. I took several bottles of this formula and double the strength. This failing, I made up my mind to die as soon as possible. There was no comfort, pleasure or happiness in life which knew nothing but pain.

One day I read the experience of a man who had been afflicted with Locomotor Ataxia, and cured by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I bought one box and tried the remedy, following the directions very closely. This had a little effect, and I procured a half dozen boxes, and took them before I was convinced that a cure was possible. I began with one pill after each meal, in a few days I took two, and finally used one box a week. My pains gradually disappeared, color came to my flesh, I could walk, run and jump, and actually dispensed with a cane. Words cannot portray my feelings. Today I weigh 200 pounds, am perfectly healthy and feel 20 years younger than I did 10 years ago. Journalists and all brain workers are liable to afflictions such as I suffered. To all such I would advise the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People in connection with cold water bathing, morning and evening. I will cheerfully answer any and all questions asked by those afflicted.

A specific for all forms of weakness is obtained in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. The blood is vitalized and becomes pregnant with the elements of life. The nervous system is reorganized, all irregularities are corrected, strength returns and disease disappears. So remarkable have been the cures performed by these pills that the name spread to the far ends of civilization. Wherever you go you will find the most important article in every drug store to be Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Urque Temples.
Mayallpuram, India, is graced with seven of the most remarkable temples in the world, each of these unique places of worship having been fashioned from solid granite boulders. The "Hevasa-Goda-Cla," the largest of the seven, is three and a half stories high, its outlines resembling those of an Atlantic steamship. The inside of the boulder has been chiseled away until the walls do not exceed eight inches in thickness. The two floors above that of the foundation are each about a foot in thickness, and seem as solid as the rock of ages. The upper stories are reached by a spiral staircase, carved from the same piece of granite.

New Mexico the Great Sheep Country.
To-day the seat of the sheep-rearing industry of the union has shifted from the middle west to the plateau region between the Rockies and Sierras. Ohio is still doing very well in the business, with nearly 3,000,000 head, but she has dropped from first to fourth in the list of mutton-producing states. New Mexico is at the head, with more than 4,000,000; Montana has nearly as many, while Wyoming leads Ohio by a few hundred thousand head. Idaho closely follows Ohio in rating. Oregon, California and Texas each has about 2,500,000 sheep.

A Question of Color.
A young clerk at the Oliver-Finnis Grocery Company received a slight scratch the other day, and the manager called out to the negro who does chores around the store to go and get some flesh-colored court plaster. The negro started off down the street at a lively pace, but in a few minutes he came back with about three times the amount of speed he used in his departure, and running breathlessly up to the manager, asked: "Do you want white or black flesh colored?"—Memphis Scimitar.

Freight and Passenger Earnings.
Taking the United States as a whole, only a little over one-fifth of the total earnings of railroads are derived from the passenger traffic. A large proportion of American railway lines are conducting their passenger traffic at a loss, while others are merely paying expenses and deriving no profit proportionate to the investment and the volume of business done.

A bulletin of the New York Zoological Society reports that the experiment of decorating the walls of the bird-house with paintings of landscapes has had at least one interesting result—the cranes have several times tried to walk through the walls.

The Chinese Situation.
The cause for the present Chinese entanglements is the abuse of the Chinese immigrants by the foreign powers. Another great revolution comes from the abuse of the stomach. Overtaxed digestion produces constipation, indigestion, dyspepsia and flatulency. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the best medicine to take. It prevents nervousness or sleeplessness. Don't fail to try it.

Professor Lloyd Morgan, in a recent address, stated he had found that young chickens, taken straight from the incubator, could swim very well, the power of swimming being perfectly instinctive.

If the flowers in your window box seem blasted, or are of a faded, sickly color, cover the earth around the roots about half an inch deep, with pulverized charcoal. The roses that blossom in the next few days will have a fine, lively red color. Charcoal always gives great vigor to the red or violet colors of flowers. White petalonia becomes varied with red or violet tints, violets become covered with irregular spots of a bluish or almost black tint, but yellow flowers are insensible to its influence.

The Small of the Back
That is where some people feel weak all the time. They are likely to be despondent and it is not unusual to find them borrowing trouble as if they hadn't enough already. The fact is their kidneys are weak, either naturally or because of sickness, exposure, worry or other influences. "I am thankful to say," writes J. L. Campbell, of Syracuse, N. Y., "that Hood's Sarsaparilla has cured me. For many years I was troubled with backache. At times I was so bad I had to be helped from the bed or chair. I am now well and strong and free from pain." What this great medicine did for him it has done for others.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

An ingenious table intended for the use of invalids who are confined to the bed, has been devised. It is so arranged that it can be raised or lowered, and can be increased or decreased in diameter, to overlap the side of the bed. By pressing a knob it can be converted into a reading-desk, and spring clips are provided for holding the reading matter in position. The mechanism of this table is so easily worked that an invalid can operate it without assistance.

Giraffe skins have become extremely valuable because of their scarcity. Ten or 15 years ago it was common enough for a hunter in South Africa to kill 40 or 50 of the animals in a day. At this rate they were rapidly being exterminated, and now a giraffe skin is worth anywhere from $20 to $50. It is a great mistake to make a large tea biscuit. Properly speaking, a tea biscuit should not be more than two inches in diameter and proportionately thick when baked. This gives a delicate, moist, flaky biscuit which will be cooked through before the outside crust has become hard or over brown.
