myself; let us four have a fight." Prince Bismarck and Bancroft, the historian, at one time minister to the court of Berlin, were one day dining with Herr von der Heydt, who prided himself on the quantity and quality of the food which he furnished to his guests. In those days (1868) Bismarck was still in possession of his wonderful appetite. Bancroft, at first amazed, became at last anxious on seeing his friend twice partake largely of the first courses. "Dear Count," he remarked with a world of anxiety in his voice,

"I believe there is more to come." "I should hope so," replied Bismarck, joyfully; and renewed his terrifying practice at the next course.

It was once usual for Highland shepherds to take their dogs into church and leave them outside the pews. Two shepherds at enmity sat on opposite sides of the alsle one Sunday, and, soon after the sermon began, the dogsone a collie and the other not-seemed to enter into their master's quarrel. The shepherds' egged on their dogs in undertones, and soon there was a real fight in progress. Most of those in the immediate neighborhood craned their necks over the pews to see how the encounter was coming out, and not a few were standing up. The minister's patience was ultimately exhausted, and so be called to his "heavers" and said: "Ah, weel, my britherin, I see ye are more interested in the dog-fight than in my sermon, and so I'll close the bulkeand I'll bet half a crown on the collie!" Capt. He was perfectly willing to oblige, but at home he had not been permitted to wet his feet. No," he answered innocently, with an ngaging smile, "I should not mind, but ny mother does not allow it." The skipper was a rough old sea-dog, who did not appreciate obedience unless it was rendered to himself, and his reply was a stunning blow that flung the boy to most people. They can understand how the plano strings are tightened and loosened. But changes in the pitch of pipes queer them. It isn't strange either, for the average organ has five kinds of tuning Of course the pitch Finds of tuning. Of course, the pitch depends on the length of the pipe. The pitch may be raised by shortening the pipe or by stopping the open end. A number of the wooden pipes are stopped by wooden alides. Handles are attached and the pipe is tuned by moving the slides up or down. Other woods have set in the top a plece of metal which is rolled or bent over partially to stop the pipe.

"Ribbon strips are cut in the sides of the tall metal pipes and rolled down. These break the column of air and act the same as cutting off the top of the pipe. Another kind of pipes, the reeds, are on a different principle. The length of the reed controls the pitch. A wire presses tightly against the reed and is moved to lengthen or shorten the vibrating length."-New York Sun.

TUNING A PIPE ORGAN.

It Takes Two or bree Days and Is a Nerve-Trying J b.

"The misuse which many pipe organs suffer is a wonder to me," said a veteran organ tuner and builder, "Church organs cost from $1,000 to $10,000. They are very sensitive to changes of temperature and yet many are beated and chilled once a week all winter and allowed to get damp soaked in summer. The same people who neglect an organ will take good care of a plano costing a tenth or twentieth as much.

"An organ is a good deal like a human being when it comes to changes Another Case of Womb, of the thermometer. Sudden drops put a man out of tune and it's the same with the instrument. It needs an even, moderate temperature during the winter instead of a roasting on Sunday and a freeze the rest of the week. In summer a stone or brick church gets damp. A slight fire once a week will keep the organ dry.
