

What are Humors?

They are vitiated or morbid fluids coursing the veins and affecting the tissues. They are commonly due to defective digestion but are sometimes inherited.

How do they manifest themselves?
In many forms: cutaneous eruptions, skin rashes or eczema, pimples and boils, and in weakness, languor, general debility. How are they expelled? By which also builds up the system that has suffered from them.

Hood's Sarsaparilla
It is the best medicine for all humors.

Contradictions.
"Well, Digby, I'm surprised! You're getting gray!"
"Yes, yes; I've got lots of gray hairs and precious few of them."

DOG WORKS MIRACLE.

HE SAVES A FAMILY FROM THE POORHOUSE.

Not Only That, He Also Paid Rent, Filled the Table, Provided Medicine for a Sick Woman, and Put Shoes on His Master's Feet.

This is a story of a dog that saved a man and his wife from the poorhouse. The dog paid the rent, bought medicine for a sick woman, kept the table going for a month, and even put shoes on his master's feet.

Flash is the name of the dog, and he is a fox terrier. How he performed these remarkable things is best told by his owner.

"My wife and I came to Chicago about four months ago from St. Louis," he said. "We had been married only a short time when I lost my position as a drug clerk. I tried for two weeks to get work at any kind of employment, but I was unable to find anything to earn a dollar a day. So we decided to pick up and come to Chicago. Upon our arrival here we got three rooms for $7 a month and settled down to housekeeping as soon as the furniture arrived."

"It was right after the holidays that we landed here, and I found the drug business even slower in Chicago than it was in St. Louis. There were a few advertisements in the papers from day to day for drug clerks, but it was always my luck to be too late. After the second week I began to answer any kind of an advertisement of help wanted. Being a stranger in the city I had difficulty in looking up places, and I was slow in getting to addresses because I did not want to spend any money for car fare. When I arrived here I had less than $80, and the little pile was growing smaller day by day, and by the end of March our money was about gone.

"Now I'll tell you about the dog. He is one that my wife raised from a puppy. I wanted to sell him to a friend in St. Louis when I left, but the wife wouldn't listen to it. She said she wouldn't come to Chicago unless Flash came with her. He is a pedigreed fox and is worth $25 of anybody's money."

"It was election day, the 2d of April—I will never forget it—that my wife tied a blue ribbon round the dog's neck and told me to take him out and sell him. We were late broke and she thought I could get at least $10 for the dog. She cried a little when I left home, and it seemed as if the dog knew what was going on. I brought him down to Madison and Dearborn streets, and I wasn't there two hours before I sold him. He is such a pretty marked little fellow that everybody who passed stopped to look at him. I set a price of $10 on him, because I knew nobody would pay more than that. More than fifty persons asked me the price and when I would tell them they would walk away, saying, 'he's a nice dog, but I don't care to pay that much.' I finally came down to $5, because the wife was sick and in need of medicine, and I thought best to get it as soon as possible. A woman with gold-bowed spectacles bought him and took him home, and I don't know where she lived, and I don't know to this day."

"The second day after that the dog returned home. Where he came from or how he got back I don't know. My wife was so glad to see him that she forgot her sickness for awhile. She was fondling the dog and talking baby talk to him when the thought occurred to me to take him out and sell him again. 'Maybe he'll run away from his next master and come back to us again,' I said to the wife, and we both laughed heartily. I took the dog down town in the afternoon and had no trouble in selling him again for $5. The next morning before we were up he was back at the little flat on Center avenue. He seemed to understand why he was being sold, and he expressed his approval of the scheme by laughing and talking. That may sound strange to some people who do not understand dogs, but it is a fact that dogs laugh and talk just the same as human beings."

"During the month of April I sold the dog seven times, getting $5 for him each time. If it hadn't been for him we certainly would have been compelled to apply to the county agent for relief. The wife was in need of medical attention, and it is probable she would have had to go to the poorhouse. The $55 I got for the dog paid the rent and all other expenses, besides buying a pair of shoes for me. I got a position the first of May, and I guess we will have smooth sailing from now on. All the money in the world would not induce my wife or myself to part with the dog, who really saved us from the poorhouse."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

PLAYED HER LAST CARD.

How Her Many Vexations Finally Came to an End.

One explanation is that she was not in a good humor when she took the card. She had seen a big man beating a little horse and when she had protested after the manner of an excited woman he had told her to "Gwan an chase yourself," and when she got a policeman he would make no arrest until she had agreed to make a complaint and she had not gone forty feet before she rushed this rash pledge to appear in the role of a prosecuting witness.

The car started as soon as both her feet were on the steps and her voice was sharp when she told the conductor that every passenger had to make a run and jump to get aboard. For her part she wished that electricity had never been harnessed. People needed eyes in the backs of their heads these days.

Owing to her agitated frame of mind it was not unnatural that she should hand the conductor a plugged quarter, says the Detroit Free Press. He was at first disposed to pocket the coin and the implied reflection on his ability to look after the interests of the company, but her curt request for the right change was her undoing.

"This is no good to me, madam," he said, quietly; "it is plugged."

Being address as "madam" when she does not enjoy that felicity may have tended to break her up still more. At any rate, she announced that she had

Excess of Women in Norway.

In consequence of emigration, there is a greater preponderance of women in Norway than in almost any other country in Europe. The census of 1891 showed that there was an excess of women over men of almost 70,000, while in 1876 this excess amounted to only 43,000.

The Limit.
Buster—I am having awful luck. I am now down to my last dollar.
Dedbrook—Fahaw, that's nothing! Wait till your are down to the last dollar of your last friend.

Just Like Dick.
Easyman—Your brother Dick did me out of $10 last night.
Miss Wearie—That's just like Dick. He's always doing some ridiculous thing.

Revised in Time.
"Miss Strong," he began, "will you be mine? That is to say, er—"
She had knotted her fair brows in a frown.
"Er—that is, may I be yours?"
"Yes," she said, with a smile.

Wild Life in the House.
"Have you ever had any trifling adventures, Penelope?"
"Yes. Once I stood on the arm of a couch to fix a window curtain, and the couch shot across the room with me."

His Share.
"What we want to do," said the worried man, "is to take money out of politics."
"Well," answered Senator Sorghum, "I have done my best in that direction. I have taken four or five thousand dollars out of it up to the present time."

To Prevent Talk.
Towne—You forgot to tip the barber just now, didn't you?
Brown—Oh, no! I always tip him before he begins work on me, and I give him to understand that the tip is intended for "hush money."

A MONTANA GIRL.

She Was Pale and Bloodless, But Now Has a Good Complexion. Her Ailments Gone.

From Florence, Ravalli county, Mont., comes a cheerful letter, the writer of which is willing to tell how she obtained the rich glow of health that thousands of women are envious to possess. Before she found the right remedy she was in that pale, emaciated condition which doctors call anaemic, and which, if neglected, inevitably means early death. Miss May Smith, whose address is given in the first words of this article, says:

"About five years ago I became ill without apparent cause, and I grew worse until I was completely run down. The least exertion would bring on a very severe pain in the pit of my stomach. At other times I would have a pain in my head, something like neuralgia. My kidneys were very weak and my limbs always felt tired. I was troubled with shortness of breath and I had a pale, bloodless appearance. There was a smothering sensation about my heart, which would beat heavily, with fits of palpitation. For three years I was under the care of two doctors, neither of whom seemed to detect the nature of my trouble. They treated me for dyspepsia, ulceration of the stomach, gastritis and neuralgia, but without good results."

"Two years ago, when I saw an advertisement in a St. Paul paper of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, I bought a box and began taking them. They helped me so much that I kept on with them until I had taken five boxes altogether, and became well and strong again. I gained in flesh and they gave me a healthy color. I have great faith in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and take them every spring and fall as a blood medicine and for the general building up of my system."

"I have recommended Pink Pills to many people who are suffering much as I was, and they have all been benefited. My younger sister, whose skin is pale and transparent, is now taking them to restore her color."

Signed, MAY SMITH.

Lopped It Off.
Towne—Has he sent you a check for your services?
Brown—Yes, but it isn't for the amount I expected, although I sent him a bill.

No Suggestions.
"I must say," remarked the physician, "your husband is in a bad way. Any arrangements you may want to make—"
"Oh, doctor," she cried, "I could never think of marrying again."

Sorrows of Research.
"Did you succeed in finding any illustrious ancestors?"
"No, but I scoured up a lot of kin folks that I didn't want to know at all."

Evolution Again.
"Advertisin is one er de fua' laws of nature," said Uncle Eben. "A hen's business is layin' eggs, an' ev'ry time she completes a transaction she stahts right in to cackle."

Too Much.
The Young Man—I suppose, sir, that when I become formally engaged to your daughter you will admit me as a member of the firm.

The Father—Well, I don't know. I don't feel as if I could afford the expense of both of these things just now.

Why a Woman

Is Able to Help Sick Women When Doctors Fail.

How gladly would men fly to woman's aid did they but understand a woman's feelings, trials, sensitivities, and peculiar organic disturbances. These things are known only to women, and the aid a man would give is not at his command.

To treat a case properly it is necessary to know all about it, and full information, many times, cannot be given by a man to her family physician. She cannot bring herself to tell everything, and the physician is at a constant disadvantage. This is why, for the past twenty-five years, thousands of women have been confiding their troubles to us, and our advice has brought happiness and health to countless women in the U. S.

Mrs. G. H. CHAPPELL, whose portrait we publish, advises all suffering women to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it cures her of inflammation of the ovaries and womb; she, therefore, speaks from knowledge, and her experience ought to give others confidence. Address Mrs. Pinkham's Laboratory, Lynn, Mass.
