

Mr. Bryan gets off the following rather good story in the Commoner:

THE DAY WE CELEBRATE.

Today is the day we celebrate with a clash of cymbals and a roll of drums; with the crash and rattling of millions of fire-crackers and the outburst of thousands of patriotic orators; with every conceivable outward demonstration that we are not lacking in that patriotism which fired our forefathers and caused them to rebel against an unjust King, at the cost of a bloody and bloody war, to expel his armies from American soil and set up for themselves a republican form of government—a government for the people, by the people and of the people.

But is the patriotism of today the real article when compared with the kind that filled with zeal the souls of the revolutionary fathers? Is it of the same fineness as that which inspired the pen of the writer of the Declaration of Independence? Do we, as average, representative Americans, on this 125th birthday of the republic love our country most because it is a republic, or because it still affords fairly good opportunities for acquiring possession of the elusive, a mighty dollar? These are questions which every American should ask himself and ponder on today and his answer should be withheld until the noise and din and powder smell of the celebration is over and the spasmodic spell of star-spangled, patriotic exuberance, which the day always arouses has subsided. The spirit of commercialism is all around us in the very air we breathe and it is little wonder that even the natal day of the republic should be more or less tainted with its influence. Is it not true that a large majority of the celebrations which will be held all over this broad land today are prompted more by a desire for gain than by a desire to honor the founders of the republic or the republic itself? It may not tickle our patriotic vanity to say so on this occasion, but there are few who will argue that it is not true.

We should think of these things once in a while and what more propitious time can we find than the Fourth day of July, A. D. 1901? So from out the hurry and bustle of the day which will be largely given over to the beating of drums, the clashing of cymbals, the waving of flags, the utterance of patriotic sentiments and the absorption of peanuts, beer and red lemonade, let us steal a little time in which to meditate on the objects for which our forefathers strove when they fought and won the Revolutionary battles and set up a form of government which they thought about perfect and which their descendants today profess to think about perfect. A few moments of such meditation, of honest self-communion on the many questions of the hour which so vitally affects the destinies of the republic by every intelligent citizen would be of more value to the country than all the noise and dust and smoke and music and red fire and red liquor etc. etc. that ever happened.

But the trouble is the great American people can hardly ever find time for such tame pursuits. The above enumerated attractions are too much for them.

The East Oregonian says that Pendleton, with a population of 5000, will spend $1,800 on her Fourth-of-July Celebration and asks if any other town in three states will do as well. Yes, Condon according to the last census has a population of only 230 and she will spend today about $500 in the entertainment of her guests. But then Condon is a mighty big little town.

Mr. Bryan gets off the following rather good story in the Commoner: The complaint which republicans make about the weight of silver recalls a story told on a Boston man who was arguing against the white metal. He said: "No one likes to carry silver, it is too heavy. Now suppose I gave my wife fifty dollars to go down town and buy something, say a spool of thread or any article of small value, and the clerk gave her back forty-nine dollars and the change in silver, she wouldn't want to carry that much," and turning to his wife he said: "Would you like to carry that much?" She replied with a good deal of feeling "Oh if I could only get fifty dollars to spend I would be willing to carry the change in any kind of money." If any gold bug doubts the truth of this story let him try the experiment on his wife.

Summer complaint is unusually prevalent among children this season. A well developed case in the writer's family was cured last week by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy—one of the best patent medicines manufactured and which is always kept on hand at the home of every family. This is not intended as a free puff for the company, who do not advertise with us, but to benefit little sufferers who may not be within easy access of a physician. No family should be without a bottle of this medicine, especially in summer time—Lansing, Iowa Journal. For sale by Hudson Pharmacy.

OSCAR MALEY took his niece Lenna Farrar to Condon Sunday. Miss Minnie Adlard visited her friend Miss Lenna Farrar Thursday. Mr. Wm. Adlard and family visited his parents here Wednesday. Grandpa Palmer was confined to his bed one day this week with a very bad cold.

Con. Schott was in this part of the country the first of the week gathering horses. Nearly every one from this part of the woods will go to Condon on the Fourth.

Mr. Lloyd Leslie who has a home-stand in the Jump of Joe country was a caller at Ajax Saturday.

Geo. Smith went to Condon Sunday to practice base ball as he is to help the Condon team play on the Fourth.

Walter Farrar came down from Alville Thursday to inform his sister Miss Lenna that she was wanted for Goddess of Liberty on the Fourth at Condon. Torsv.

Heartburn. When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, heartburn is likely to follow, and especially so if the digestion has been weakened by constipation. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food thoroughly. Let six hours elapse between meals and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, in lieu of that you have eaten to much, take one of the Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the heartburn may be avoided. For sale by Hudson Pharmacy.

Entire Family Missing. One of the strangest disappearances ever recorded is that of the Kelly family, who left Georgetown, Colorado, by train in May, 1900, for Baker City, Ore. The family consisted of E. F. Kelly, his wife and three sons, aged respectively 20, 17 and 14 years. They had with their outfit three gray mares and one sorrel mare with a sorrel colt. Their two wagons were of Springfield, Mo., make.

About the 9th of June, 1900, the family camped about 25 miles west of Rawlins, Wyo. for several days on account of sickness of one of the boys. Since that time no trace whatever of their whereabouts has been discovered. Two older boys of the family, Ray and Roy Kelly, remained at home at Georgetown, and as the time passed and they received no letters from their parents they became alarmed and started instituting a search. In November last Ray Kelly arrived in Baker City after having traveled by bicycle over the direct route that the family would have traveled if they had continued on their journey.

Roy Kelly, the second son, who left Georgetown when the family started over the plains to Oregon, recently arrived in Baker and called on the Democrat. He said that he and his brother had never for a moment relaxed their efforts to discover the whereabouts of their parents and brothers from the first time they became alarmed regarding their safety. Being members of the I. O. O. F. and Workmen of the World, they enlisted the help of these orders in their search, and had received the assistance of nearly every paper in the inter-mountain region in giving publicity to the fact that information was desired, but no tidings have been forthcoming. What to do next he does not know, and he is about to give up in despair.

How a family of five people, all nearly of mature age, could so effectually disappear as if the earth had swallowed them up, is beyond explanation, unless they were murdered and their bodies cremated. Then it would seem that their effects, the wagons and horses, would be a sure means of detecting the murderer. Certainly it is the most unaccountable disappearance ever heard of and it looks as though it will ever remain so.

The Best Liniment for Strains. Mr. F. H. Wells, the merchant at Dear Park, Long Island, N. Y., says: "I always recommend Chamberlain's Pain Balm as the best liniment for strains. I used it last winter for a severe lameness in the side, resulting from a strain, and was greatly pleased with the quick relief and cure it effected." For sale by Hudson Pharmacy.

Pullman Ordinary Sleepers. The tourist travel between the East and the Pacific Coast has reached enormous proportions in the last few years, and calls for a special class of equipment. To meet this demand the Pullman Co. has issued from its shops what is technically called the "Pullman Ordinary Sleeper." These cars appear similar to the regular sleepers being built on the same plan, but not furnished with the same elegance. They are equipped with mattresses, blankets, sheets, pillows, pillow-cases, towels, combs, brushes, etc., requiring nothing of the kind to be furnished by the passenger. Each car has a stove for making tea and coffee and doing "light housekeeping," and each section can be fitted with an adjustable table. A uniformed porter accompanies each car, his business being to make up berths; keep the car clean, and look after the wants and comforts of the passengers. In each of the trains which are dispatched daily from Portland by the O. R. & N. Co. is to be found one of these "Pullman Ordinary Sleepers." This car attached to the "Chicago-Portland Special" goes through to Chicago without change, and the one in the "Atlantic Express" runs to Kansas City without change. Passengers in this car for Chicago change to a similar car at Grand.

Much of the first class travel is being carried in these cars, the rates being lower, and the service nearly equal to that in the palace sleepers. For rates and full information, including folders' write to A. L. CRAIG, General Passenger Agent, O. R. & N. Co. Portland, Oregon.
