

Scrofula
Few are entirely free from it. It may develop so slowly as to cause little or no disturbance during the whole period of childhood.

It may then produce irregularity of the stomach and bowels, dyspepsia, catarrh, and marked tendency to consumption before manifesting itself in such catarrhal eruption of glandular swelling.

It is best to be sure that you are quite free from it, and for its complete eradication you can rely on

Slow Healing Sores
With rich, pure, strong blood one is never troubled with sores or ulcers. A cut or any injury to the flesh heals in a few days, nature supplying the healing balm in the form of healthy, new blood; but when the circulation is tainted with poisonous germs, humors or any effete matter, a slight scratch or abrasion of the skin becomes a festering sore, tiny pimples grow to be boils, swollen joints and inflamed glands often break out into offensive, slow healing sores.

Sores and ulcers are most often caused by poverty of the blood and a weak and slow circulation, brought on by long continued sickness, malarial poisoning, torpid liver, the use of mercury, or whatever is calculated to destroy the vitality of the blood and break down the constitution.

I became afflicted with a severe sore leg and from the knee to the foot was one solid sore, which was very offensive. I spent over $1,000 on two trips to Hot Springs, and local physicians treated me to no purpose. I had about decided to have my leg amputated, when a friend induced me to try E. W. Grove's Tonic. I began to take your medicine, and in the short space of seven months it has completely and thoroughly cured me. My leg is a witness today as to what E. W. Grove's Tonic will do when taken regularly. The sore has healed entirely and my health has improved wonderfully. I have already gained 20 pounds.

Nothing so quickly or surely restores lost strength and vitality to the blood as S. S. S. It is an antidote for the severest forms of Blood Poison, as well as the irritating humors that cause the eruptions and sores that sap your life and so greatly disfigure you. S. S. S. is the only guaranteed purely vegetable blood purifier. It contains no mercury, potash, arsenic or other hurtful drug. It cleanses the blood and purifies the circulation, thus ridding the system of the impurities that keep the sores feverish and painful. At the same time your general health improves under the tonic effects of S. S. S., and the skin becomes soft, smooth and healthy. If you are troubled with boils, carbuncles, sores or eruptions of any sort, write our physicians all about your case; don't risk your own judgment when you can get medical advice from experienced doctors free. Book on Blood and Skin Diseases to all who desire it.

THE "BUSINESS DOCTOR."
Employed by the Large Department Stores in New York.

A unique calling has developed itself in this city. It may be called that of the business doctor. The business doctor is a man who goes to business houses and is allowed to examine thoroughly the whole working of the "machine." He finds out, for example, how the letters are opened and distributed, how orders are executed, how many people are employed, what is the exact nature of the work they do, what are the wages they are receiving, and so on.

In the case of a large concern he may need a week to get a full possession of the facts, and he charges at least $50 a day for his work. When he has completed his investigations he draws up a report, and adds to it a number of practical suggestions. His object is to prevent waste, and especially to check the constant tendency in working expenses to rise year by year without any compensating advantages.

One of the largest department stores in the city employed the services of a "doctor" recently. He found that the partners came down about 10 and opened the letters together. As their correspondence was enormous, the opening of the letters necessitated a waste of much valuable time. He therefore advised that a woman who was paid a salary of $1,000 a year should be engaged to open the letters before the partners arrived, and sort them, allotting each partner his own letters, so that when he came down to business he might deal with them immediately. This recommendation was adopted, and has been found to save a great deal of precious time, as was intended. He also advised the rearrangement of the duties of the assistants. Some were receiving too much, others too little.—New York Evening Post.

Pony and Rattlesnake.
A California farmer, who has three small children, owns a pony which is their constant companion. They have ridden him, rolled over him, fed him, and have come to consider him as one of the family. When the children went on an expedition and did not want to ride, the pony went along as if he had been a pet dog. A San Francisco newspaper tells the following story of the pony's presence of mind:

One day the three children went on a nutting expedition, and while they gathered the nuts, the pony grazed nearby. Suddenly, almost beneath the feet of the nut gatherers, there was an ominous whir, and they saw with horror a huge rattlesnake coiled ready to strike.

The children huddled together, too much frightened to move, but as the deadly head went back, there was a quick trample of hoofs, a rush through the bushes, and the pony appeared. With his four little sharp hoofs brought together he shot up into the air, landed squarely on the snake's coil, and was off again before the wicked head could strike.

The interruption had released the frightened children from the charm, and they ran a short distance away, and stopped to witness the contest. The rattler was wounded, but full of fight, and coiled again, and again the pony landed on him and got away safely. This time the snake's body was nearly severed in two places, and the snake was conquered. The pony walked round it, and, apparently satisfied, gave a cheerful whinny and returned to his grazing.

Had Fun with the Parson.
A clerical friend of mine told me a capital story of a Yale man who was the stroke or of his crew and the chief athlete on the football field.

He entered the ministry and spent years in missionary labor in the Far West. Walking one day through a frontier town, a cowboy stepped up to him and said:

"Parson, you don't have enough fun. Take a drink!"
The minister declined.

"Well," he said, "parson, you must have some fun. Here's a faro layout. Take a hand in the game."
The minister declined.

"Parson," said the cowboy, "you'll die if you don't have some fun."
And he knocked the parson's hat off his head and hit him a whack on the ear.

The old athletic spirit rose; the science which had been learned in the college gymnasium and forgotten for a quarter of a century was aroused, a blow landed on the jaw of that cowboy that sent him sprawling in the street.

The parson walked over him as if he had been a door rug, picked him up and dusted the side of the house with him and then mopped up the sidewalk with his form.

As the ambulance was carrying the cowboy off he raised his head feebly and said:

"Parson, what did you fool me for? You are chock full of fun."—New York Times.

A Dream Dispelled.
The woman was standing in the doorway, shading her eyes with her hand. She called across the garden:

"You, Innocence Williams. Come in, honey, outen that hot sun. You'll burn yer little cheeks as brown ez a berry. Come in, Innocence!"

One would have expected to see a fairy-like creature rise, as from the heart of a violet, and drift dreamily over the flower beds. But instead, a gaunt, tall figure, with face browned and bonneted, shambled toward the house, dragging a dead rattlesnake by its rattles.

It was Innocence Williams. "Thar, mammy!" she explained, tossing the snake over the palings. "That makes ten I've kilt since the fust of June!"—Atlanta Constitution.

The Bright Side.
"It is said that lobsters will be extinct in 25 years," remarked Hilland.

"Oh, well," replied Malket, who is very fond of lobster. "Let us not worry about it. Let us look on the bright side. We may all die before that time."—Pittsburg Chronicle Telegraph.

There are 14,000,000 Smiths in the world, according to a statistician. About half of them are of the feminine persuasion, and most of the other half are named John.

Sick Women
Mrs. Valentine Tells How Lydie E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Cured Her.

Happiness will go out of your life forever, my sister, if you have any of the symptoms mentioned in Mrs. Valentine's letter, unless you act promptly. Procure Lydie E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once. It is absolutely sure to help you. Then write for advice if there is anything about your case you do not understand.

You need not be afraid to tell the things you could not explain to the doctor—your letter will be seen only by women. All the persons who see private letters at Mrs. Pinkham's Laboratory, at Lynn, Mass., are women. All letters are confidential and advice absolutely free.

Here is the letter:—"It is with pleasure that I add my testimony to your list, hoping it may induce others to avail themselves of the benefit of your valuable remedy. Before taking Lydie E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I felt very badly, was terribly nervous, and I tired, had sick headaches, no appetite, gnawing pain in stomach, pain in my back and right side, and so weak I could scarcely stand. I was not able to do anything. Had sharp pains all through my body. Before I had taken a bottle of your medicine, I found myself improving. I continued its use until I had taken four bottles, and felt so well that I did not need to take any more. I am like a new person, and your medicine shall always have my praise.—Mrs. W. P. VALENTINE, 508 Ferry Avenue, Camden, N.J.

$5000 will be paid if this testimonial is not in ten days.

Waiting for His Man.
A preacher riding down a ravine came upon an old mountaineer hiding in the bushes with his rifle.

"What are you doing there, my friend?"
"Ride on, stranger," was the easy answer. "I'm a-waitin' for Bill Johnson, and with the help of the Lawd, I'm goin' to blow his damn head off."

A Sarcastic Lawyer.
The late Henry W. Payne, of the Massachusetts bar, was once defending a charity case, in which a boy of 15 was charged with arson. He made a strong case to prove the defendant an idiot. After a charge from the judge, which was practically an order for acquittal, the jury brought in a verdict of guilty. The judge asked Payne if he would move for a new trial. "I was for your suggestion," was the answer, "but I am oppressed with the gravest doubts whether I have the right to move for a new trial. Your honor, I have already asked for and received for my idiot client the most precious heritage of our English and American common law—a trial by a jury of his peers."

Payne had an old quarrel with the Supreme Court, and never lost an opportunity of showing his contempt for that body. Once, riding from Boston to Cambridge with a load of law books, he was accosted by a young Harvard man with the remark: "You have quite a load, Mr. Payne. Law books, I suppose?" "Oh, no," was the answer, "only Supreme Court reports."—New York Tribune.

The Poor City Boy.
Oh, the city boy is bundled
In his heavy overcoat,
With his costly leather leggings,
With a silk lining round his throat,
And he slides upon the sidewalk
Where the ashes have been spread,
And imagines he is happy
On his bright new sled.

There's a bill that's high and sloping,
In the country, far away,
Where a boy who wasn't bundled
Fit to smother used to stray,
With the swiftness of the lightning
Down the gleaming hill he sped,
And no ashes ever grate
'Neath his home made sled.

Oh, I pity the poor city
Boy who never gets beyond
The narrow, ash sidewalk
Or some hampered little pond,
Ah, the bill was high and sloping,
And the way was clear ahead
Where a country boy went coasting
On a home made sled.

First of the Vanderbilts.
The first of the Vanderbilts in this country was Jan Aertsen Van der Bilt, a Holland farmer, who came to the new world in the first half of the seventeenth century, and who settled in the neighborhood of Brooklyn, about 1650.

As the name indicates, the family belonged originally to either the village of Bilt, a suburb of Utrecht, or the parish of Bilt, in Frisia.

"OPERATIVE WORDS" IN LAW.
What They Mean in Legal and Business Transactions.

"Operative words," said a member of the District bar, "are of the utmost importance in legal documents and in business affairs."

"Probably the most seriously important operative word in human affairs is composed of but three letters, and it appears in print thus: 'Yes.' When she says 'yes' to a man it means that she transfers her heart and hand, and formerly all of her property, to him who asks her to do, etc. This little word establishes the most important contract of society, and while this contract may afterward be dissolved by mutual consent, if one of the contracting parties demurs and backs out a suit for damages is open to the other."

"In auction sales the property put up in anybody's name the auctioneer says 'gone' or 'sold' and the hammer drops. No matter how the sale is regretted, or how much the parties would like to retract it, it stands and the court will sustain it."

"In a will they are 'give, devise and bequeath.' Real property is 'devised' and personal property 'bequeathed.'"

"In a note the borrower must 'promise' to pay, and in a bond he must 'bind' himself."

"In some States in a deed certain words are necessary to convey real estate. The courts have held generally, however, that the word 'grant' will carry a good title. In New York, for instance, the operative words constitute quite a formula, and are 'grant, bargain, sell, assign, transfer, set over and convey.' That's the old form. Now the words 'grant and release' are sufficient."

"In a lease the word 'let' must be used. They have an odd formula in New York, used for centuries, probably, consisting of 'grant, demise and to farm let' and it applies to all kinds of property. In a quietclaim deed the word 'quietclaim' must be used.—Washington Star
