

FARMERS VS. RAILROADS.

The farmers of Lincoln county Washington, in the Big Bend country, are arranging for a conference between themselves and Presidents H. C. Harriman and Melton of the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and O. R. & N. railroads with a view to securing a fairer and more equitable freight rate than that now prevailing. The farmers have figured out that the railroad companies get more for hauling a crop of wheat in their cars for one of two days, while transporting it to market, than the farmer gets for his full year's work of plowing, seeding, harvesting, threshing, sacking and hauling the same crop from the farm to the railroad station. They argue further that the farmer has to take all the chances on poor crops and low prices, and he has to stand the loss while the railroad companies continue to charge their full rate for hauling. The farmers argue, and rightly too, that this is not fair, and they hope to be able to convince the railroad presidents, if they can be persuaded to attend the proposed conference, that the present rate of 12 1/2 cents per bushel on wheat and the prohibitive rates on potatoes, fruit, vegetables, baled hay, straw, etc., is a detriment not only to the farmers but to the railroads themselves. The farmers show good judgment in approaching the proposition in this way. The railroad companies care not a straw about the prosperity of the farmer beyond the point of mere existence and ability to continue to produce crops for the railroads to haul to tidewater; but if these wide awake farmers of the Big Bend can convince the railroad magnates that a lower rate will mean a largely increased production of wheat—which is now produced and shipped on a very slender margin—and of potatoes, fruit, vegetables etc., which cannot now be shipped at all because of excessive freight charges, they may be able to gain some concessions. If the farmers can prove that there is more money for the railroads in a low rate than a high one, the low rate may be established. This matter has the same interest for the farmers of the state of Oregon as for those of Washington. Every producer is, in a sense, at the mercy of the railroad companies who are in a position to levy whatever tribute they like on his products and necessities and it is time for the farmers and producers of Oregon to begin to study these questions as their Washington neighbors seem to be doing and prepare to meet the conditions which the railroad combinations and mergers are fast bringing about. If the farmers can gain a point by conferences and on the mutual interest plan, well and good, they should go after and get everything along that line possible, but if they still fall short of justice they will have to resort to legislation and in this particular the people of Oregon are in better shape to get what they want than their neighbors across the line. Oregon now has the initiative and referendum system and if the farmers want certain legislation enacted which will protect them from excessive freight rates they should see to it that such laws are enacted. If on the other hand, the legislature should enact laws favorable to the railroads and oppressive to the producers the producers should see to it that such laws are rejected by a referendum vote.

The railroad companies are looking out for the railroad companies first, last and all the time. The farmers must look out for their own interests or they will find themselves coming out of the small end of a very small horn in the near future. There are but a few railroad magnates as compared to the number of farmers and if the latter would only wake up and take an interest in their own welfare they could bring the transportation companies to terms in a jiffy. This will not be done, however, until the farmers learn to study out plans for their own benefit and, adopting the best plan, all unite in going after and securing what they want.

Didn't Marry For Money.

The Boston man, who lately married a sleek, rich young woman, is happy now, for he got Dr. King's New Life Pills which restored her to perfect health. Infalible for jaundice, biliousness, malaria, fever, and ague and all Liver and Stomach troubles. Gentle but effective. Only 25c at Condon Pharmacy.

Eastern Oregon is after immigration but not of the class that recently "emigrated" from Salem, in Marion county, to the vicinity of Vancouver Washington. Our neighbors across the river can have all such Willamette valley products and welcome.

There was more fine violin and guitar music floating around on the midnight zephyrs last Thursday night and the editor's home was again favored with artistic renditions of some of the sweetest old melodies that ever charmed a mortal ear.

Owing to circumstances over which we have no control the editor of this paper will not attend the coronation ceremonies at Westminster Abbey. The circumstances have nothing to do with knee breeches and other court harness, as we think our form would show up well in such togs, and be too cute for anything. The only trouble is that our lumbago has not yielded to treatment as readily as Ed's has and we fear the sea voyage and standing around on one foot rubbering at the ceremonies would be too great an effort for us. Sorry old boy, accept our most sincere regrets.

A majority of the people of Oregon have voted for T. T. Geer to indicate that he is their choice for U. S. senator. While there is nothing legally binding on the members of the next legislature to ratify that choice yet the GLOBE is of the opinion that they are morally bound to do so for the reason that the principles of a representative government are at stake in this proposition. The members of the legislature are chosen to represent the people of Oregon. The people have indicated on the official ballot that T. T. Geer is their choice for U. S. senator. While he is not the GLOBE's choice by any means, this paper believes he should be elected because he is the choice of a majority of the people. Every person who believes in the election of United States senators by direct vote should impress upon their senators and representatives-elect that they are expected to abide by the will of a majority of the people and elect the man whom the people have chosen. It is the principle not the man in this case.

Oregon cannot longer be accused of being in a political rut. They have elected a democratic governor, a republican legislature, and have adopted as a constitutional amendment "direct legislation."—Prosser Record.

Read It in His Newspaper.

George Schaub, a well known German citizen of New Lebanon, Ohio, is a constant reader of the Dayton Volkszeitung. He knows that this paper aims to advertise only the best its columns, and when he saw Chamberlain's Pain Balm advertised therein for lame back, he did not hesitate in buying a bottle of it for his wife, who for eight weeks had suffered with the most terrible pains in her back and could get no relief. He says: "After using the Pain Balm for a few days my wife said to me, 'I feel as though born anew,' and before using the entire contents of the bottle the unbearable pains had entirely vanished and she could again take up her household duties." He is very thankful and hopes all suffering likewise will hear of her wonderful recovery. This valuable liniment is for sale by Condon Pharmacy.

The French Case.

The trial of E. L. French, of Mayville, charged with selling obscene matter through the mails, was concluded in the U. S. circuit court at Portland last week.

French was charged with sending obscene matter through the mails addressed to the late Mrs. J. K. Fitzwater, of this place. The letters are said to have contained an obscene poem relating to a member of Mrs. Fitzwater's family and the threat that if a certain large sum of money was not left at a specified spot near Mayville at a certain time that the poem would be published. A number of such letters had been mailed at the Mayville post office addressed to different people and the post mistress at that place finally set a watch which resulted in the arrest of French. It is understood he will ask for a new trial on the plea that the deposition of Mrs. Fitzwater, which was admitted as evidence in the late trial was not proper evidence.

How to avoid Trouble.

Now is the time to provide yourself and family with a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It is almost certain to be needed before the summer is over, and if procured now may save you a trip to town in the night or in your busiest season. It is everywhere admitted to be the most successful medicine in use for bowel complaints both for children and adults. No family can afford to be without it. For sale by Condon Pharmacy.
