

THE CONDON GLOBE

THURSDAY, JULY 17, 1902.

A summer zephyr, gentle as an Eastern Oregon breeze, did business in town Monday afternoon.

The discovery of Merrill's dead body may be accepted as evidence that Tracy, outlaw though he is, is more truthful than some newspaper correspondents.

Traveling men who make all parts of the Northwest say that Condon is the most talked of of any inland town in Oregon this summer.

That young King of Spain should be laid, not too gently, across his mother's knee and spanked until he would be obliged to take his meals standing for a week.

The claims of Oregon Indian War veterans will have to take their regular course in the Pension Office. This was reasonably to be expected, though many hoped it would be otherwise.

The lesson of "waiting" has in this case, been well learned. It can only be hoped that each of these beneficiaries of tardy pension legislation will live many years to enjoy the quarterly stipend.

A Poor Millionaire Lately starved in London because he could not digest his food. Early use of Dr. King's New Life Pills would have saved him.

AJAX.

John Smith was a caller at the Palmer ranch Tuesday. Dan Cameron, of Shuttler Flat, visited at the Palmer ranch Monday and Tuesday.

To Measure Hay.

The following is the rule used by the government in measuring hay that it buys. We publish it as being of interest to many of our readers:

To find the number of cubic feet in a stack of hay, first measure the distance from one side of its base over the top to base of opposite side; measure distance across the bottom; subtract the distance to base from the top and divide the remainder by two. This gives the height of the stack. Measure length of stack and multiply length breadth and height together and the result is the number of cubic feet in the stack.
