

The Alton Eagle seems to doubt our recent account of the table moving at Mayville. The Eagle man intimates that the story was a result of the midnight supper and says that he once knew a man who saw the ghost of his mother-in-law after partaking of a hearty midnight meal.

The precocious youngster had arranged another trap for his mother as youngsters of all kinds have a way of doing without fully appreciating the point they are scoring. "Maama," said the boy, "did you tell Lizzie to say you were not in when Mrs. Jones called?"

LABOR LEARNING FROM MORGAN.

Labor unions are going to school to J. Pierpont Morgan. The lesson they have learned to date is, if you are going to make a combine make it a big one.

Both of these manifestations have come to the surface in Portland in the past few days. One of them is in the form of a movement to get all railroad employes into one organization which would supersede the separate brotherhood of the engineers, conductors and trainmen.

Will these combinations do what is expected of them? It is to be feared that they will not—neither the capitalistic, nor the industrial nor the labor organizations. The most that may be hoped for is that they will for a time preserve a sort of balance between the various agencies of production and distribution.

The great financial combinations that control the railroads and so many of the industrial forces of the country are not on a basis that promises permanence. They are largely underwriters' schemes and when they have paid promotion profits, hard times will probably sweat the water out of them and they will be ready for a new deal.

Had To Conquer Or Die. "I was just about gone," writes Mrs. Rosa Richardson, of Laurel Springs, N. C., "I had consumption so bad that the best doctors said I could not live more than a month but I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery and was wholly cured by seven bottles and am now stout and well."

I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for a number of years and have no hesitation in saying that it is the best remedy for coughs, colds and croup I have ever used in my family. I have no words to express my confidence in this Remedy.—Mrs. J. A. Moore, North Star, Mich.

FAVORS THE PORTAGE.

Here is the way the portage appropriation bill looks to the Salem Sentinel:

The people of Eastern Oregon favor an appropriation of $150,000 by the state for a portage railroad past The Dalles of the Columbia and have compiled a strong statement to show how the enterprise would benefit the interior producers.

They say that the railroad merger has been fighting and will continue to fight the opening of the river by locks or boat railway.

They argue that a state portage will solve the problem and save the producers $1,500,000 annually and will increase the population of the state more than any other one thing.

The country effected by an open river produces 40,000,000 bushels of grain, 80,000 head of cattle and horses, 521,330 head of sheep and hogs, 3600 cars of fruit, 16,000,000 pounds of wool, 2,405,000 pounds of hides, 367,000 tons of hay, all valued at $30,000,000.

An open river will save to the producer on the above tonnage $1,500,000, and in five years, double that amount.

The comparatively small amount necessary to construct this portage is a mere bagatelle compared with the saving, and the state owning and operating the same will get its money back in a few years.

This is not legislation for the benefit of any particular class or section. Every dollar saved to the products of the soil of Oregon is distributed equally to its entire population and every dollar saved in the transportation of Oregon's products, extends the boundaries of its developed territory.

The opening to navigation of these eight miles of the Columbia river would give an unbroken length of about 450 miles of the Columbia and Snake rivers that could be navigated, and thus provide water communication with tidewater and furnish transportation facilities in regions that now have practically none.

Mr. Wheeler Got Rid of His Rheumatism.

During the winter of 1892 I was lame in my joints, in fact all over my body, that I could hardly hobble around when I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. From the first application I began to get well and was cured and have worked steadily all the year.—R. WHEELER, Northwood, N. Y.

The Bugle Song.

[Written for the Globe.]

He went away to the war that day, To the swinging bugle song; All stanch and true in his suit of blue, And sturdy, brave and strong;

Mid the tramp of feet and the loud drum beat, And the ringing of the cheers, There were none to see such a one as he Who could not see for tears.

And back again came the marching men, With the bugle singing still; Yet the music's surge was a sighing dirge, All sad and slow and shrill;

For a woman wept and a soldier slept In a dreamless, silent sleep; And the bugle sang had a measure wrong For the buglers sometimes weep.

And the bugle's lure while the hills endure, Will call them to the line, And the music's strains on the hills and plains, Still echo far and fine.

But the smile of blue and the sabers too, And the worn and battered caps Will tell some maid what the bugle played When it sighed the song of "Taps."
