PORTLAND AND THE PORTAGE

A doubt as to the sincerity on the part of Portland towards the opening of the Columbia river to navigation has several times been expressed in these columns and now that the matter has been taken up by the legislature, the attitude of the Oregonian and Telegram may be taken as evidence that our doubts have not been without foundation. As soon as the matter was taken up at Salem the papers above named began to teem with advices from Washington regarding the bright prospects of something about to be done by the government towards opening the river. While they have not come out openly as being opposed to state action they have been diligent in inventing excuses and in placing the subject in its worst light. It may be safely asserted that the Oregonian influence is not for an open river at this time but we will hope that on this question at least, the Oregonian does not represent the views of the Multnomah delegation in the legislature or the business men of Portland. Time will tell how near right this doubting Thomas has been.

Since the above was written we are pleased to note that the Oregonian has changed its attitude on the portage proposition and comes out in a strong editorial urging the building of the road. It is still filled with misgivings as to whether the road will amount to much when built but it insists that the road must be built. We congratulate the Oregonian on having finally gotten in line for this forward step which means so much for the great Inland Empire.

NO AMENDMENTS THIS YEAR.

The resolution to amend the constitution changing the time of holding the state elections from June to November, was turned down by the legislature at Salem a few days ago. The reason given is that the constitution prohibits any amendment to the constitution being proposed by a legislature while another amendment is pending. As there are other amendments pending at this time a majority of the members took the ground that the resolution was out of order. It is to be regretted that this is so as the present plan of holding two elections every presidential year only entails an additional burden of expense on the state which is altogether useless. It is to be hoped that as soon as practical such a resolution will again be introduced and that the constitution will be so amended.

TRANSPORTATION OF THE INSANE.

The bill providing that insane persons shall in the future be conveyed to the Asylum by trained attendants of that institution rather than by Sheriffs or their deputies, as has been the custom in the past, has been reported favorably by the senate and should by all means become a law. Legislation of a similar nature has been attempted at former sessions but has invariably been defeated by a strong lobby of sheriffs who are naturally averse to giving up this lucrative graft. There has been good money in this job for the sheriffs in the way of mileage and fees as it was shown by the supporters of the measure during a discussion in the senate that fully $12,000 will be saved to the state by the adoption of the new method. From a standpoint of humanity, however, the arguments in its favor are still greater. It is of the utmost importance that insane persons should have the care of persons who are trained in that particular line of work and especially during the trying trip from remote parts of the state to the asylum and the proposed law is intended primarily to remedy the abuses of the present system. The sheriffs will no doubt bring strong pressure to bear to defeat the bill but the legislators should, in this case take a strong stand in its favor in the interests of both economy and humanity.

I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for a number of years and have no hesitancy in saying that it is the best remedy for coughs, colds and croup I have ever used in my family. I have not words to express my confidence in this Remedy.—Mrs. J. A. Moore, North S. ar, Mich.

GRANGER AGAINST GRANGER.

The Linn county Grange at a recent meeting, held at Albany, passed vigorous resolutions asking the State legislature to refuse to appropriate any amount of money for the construction of a portage road at the falls of the Columbia. This action is a good sample of the sort of fraternal feeling which exists among the horny handed, honest farmers of the country. The portage, if built, will primarily and particularly benefit the farmers and stockmen of Eastern Oregon, Eastern Washington and Idaho, and will release them from their present industrial bondage to the transportation companies which condition has been brought about by unjust and exorbitant freight charges. Water transportation will be the salvation of the farmers of the Inland Empire and will add most wonderfully to their prosperity and comfort. The Linn county farmers care nothing whatever about this, however. It is a matter of supreme indifference to them whether their brothers in the Grange in this portion of the state prosper or go broke. All that they can see in the proposed portage is the addition of a very few cents to their individual taxes and to avoid that they are willing to retard the development of this portion of the state and deny to the farmers here the same boon which they were granted years ago when the obstructions in the Willamette, at Oregon City were removed. The selfish spirit has surely become a predominant factor in this world and it is not all confined to Wall Street or among the trust magnates or the professional politicians. The Linn county Grangers surely have their share.

Mr. Wheeler Got Rid of His Rheumatism.

During the winter of 1898 I was lame in my joints, in fact all over my body, that I could hardly hobble around when I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. From the first application I began to get well and was cured and have worked steadily all the year.—E. WHEELER, Northwood, N. Y. For sale by Condon Pharmacy.

J. J. Hill, president of the Northern Securities Co., predicts a great financial crisis which he says may come in a year or perhaps may be deferred until the next presidential election. He naturally lays the blame of the approaching panic at the door of the labor unions. Of course the over-capitalization of the trusts, in Mr. Hill's opinion will never bring on a panic. The good trusts are all right, he thinks, but the bad working men who created all the wealth of the trusts are a hard lot.

Had To Conquer Or Die.

"I was just about gone," writes Mrs. Rosa Richardson, of Laurel Springs, N. C. "I had Consumption so bad that the best doctors said I could not live more than a month but I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery and was wholly cured by seven bottles and am now stout and well." It's an unrivaled life-saver in Consumption, Pneumonia La Grippe and Bronchitis; infallible for Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Hay Fever, Croup or Whooping Cough. In the County of Multnomah, State of Oregon.

A LITTLE HORN BLOWING NEEDED.

The following from the Spokesman Review is to the point and is worthy of the careful consideration of Condon citizens. If ever a country town needed a representative commercial organization Condon needs one at this time.

"A useful force in all the cities and towns of the northwest is the local commercial organization which is made up of the wide awake and enterprising citizens, willing and eager to do something for the community. They may be called chambers of commerce, boards of trade or commercial clubs—the aim and the object is the same, and they can accomplish great good for the locality from which the membership is taken.

A good deal that has been done by the many thriving places in the northwest would never have been done had it not been done by some sort of organization among the business men. Individual effort is of value, but it can secure the best results only when well directed and it is this essential direction that is obtained through organization of the business men into a commercial body. Energies that are unused or wasted where a community has no organization working for its advancement may be utilized to the most effective purpose if there is cooperation in the form of some local body of business men. This has been demonstrated in many cities and towns in the northwest where the commercial organizations have become the most potential agencies for progress and upbuilding.

Every locality must "blow its own horn" a little; it must let the world know of its resources and attractions; it must show strangers what it has worth seeing and what inducements it offers to the visitor seeking a new home. It can give a welcome to capital and secure new industries; it can unite scattered efforts into one large effort that brings results. All of the chambers of commerce, boards of trade and commercial clubs may not be doing all that they should be doing for the communities they represent, but they all have possibilities in the matter of advancing local interests. If they are made up of bright, energetic men, and are wisely directed, they can be of inestimable value to the localities they represent."

AUGUST BUCHLER, Prop.

Of the product of this well-known brewery the United States Health Reports for June 28, 1900, says: "A more superior brew never entered the laboratory of the United States Health reports. It is absolutely devoid of the slightest trace of adulteration, but on the other hand is composed of the best of malt and choice of hops. Its tonic qualities are of the highest and it can be used with the greatest benefit and satisfaction by both old and young. Its use can conscientiously be prescribed by the physicians with the certainty that a better, purer or more wholesome beverage could not possibly be found."
