COST OF THE POT WAS HIGH.

Gambler Won It, but Carries a Scar as a Remembrance.

"This scar which you see on the back of my right hand has a history, and whenever I look at it I drift back mentally to the earlier days of my life," said the old gambler, "and cannot suppress a feeling that somehow men are often forced into channels which are not exactly what they would like. While not altogether smothered with regrets I feel that this is true in my own case. When I recall the series of bright things that have happened, the moments and hours and days spent with congenial spirits, the spicy bits of narrative which have marked the progress of many evenings—but why mention all these things now?"

"I am drifting on to the closing hours and I guess after all the old man's chief delight is in memories of things and happenings of the earlier times. Coming back to the war on my hand, I paid rather dearly for it. It is a pity that I cannot weave around this experience a bit of romance which would lighten the color of the yarn and give brilliancy to the lines. But this is simply a gambler's story and, while not exactly prosaic, it does not take on any of that prettier coloring such as one finds, for instance, in Conan Doyle's story about how the major lost one of his ears. He gave up his ear to save a woman. I got the scar reaching for an ordinary scar in a game of cards and no large stake at that."

"It was many years ago. That feverish impulse to gamble was just getting into my blood. One night I fell into a game with a crowd of men, all of them but one strangers to me. The game had not progressed far before I became aware of the fact that I was playing against two card sharks. Luck was my way on the last round and my hand called for the stake. But one of the sharps was bent on getting my last penny, and he threw down a better hand than mine and one which I knew he had faked. A quarrel began and I reached out for the stake, covering the money with my right hand. As I did so one of the sharps whipped out a long-bladed knife and stabbed at my hand. The blade passed through my hand and into the table. Hand, money and all were planned to the table, and until my friends came to my rescue I was in a helpless condition. My friend pulled the knife out and released me. I got the stake and the scar which you see on the back of my hand is part of that, which I made for it. The excitement and novelty of the experience intensified the gambling impulse which had fevered the blood and tissue of my nature, and since that time I have been a helpless and hopeless gambler, enjoying the usual fortunes of the man who spends his life in this strangely fascinating world."

"Well, talking about names, said the oyster, "I like May better than Mary."

"You do?" replied the plain lobster.

"Of course. Now, if it was the month of Mary it would shorten my vacation fearfully."

"You have been in many fights, I suppose, Pat?" said a landlord; one of his tenants. "Oh, a great many, yer honor!" replied Pat, unaffectedly. "And I suppose you fight grimly—you never give in, I mean?" "I always fight till I die," said Pat.

Storing Coal Under Water. Certain kinds of coal deteriorate rapidly in the ocean air and Lord Charles Bressford has expressed the belief that the total loss may reach 50 per cent. Store under water is the remedy of an English experimenter, who, noting the fine quality of coal dredged from a harbor, has kept Monmouthshire steam coal under sea water two months with a loss of less than 1 per cent of heating power.

My Hair

"I had a very severe sickness that took off all my hair. I purchased a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor and it brought all my hair back again."

W. D. Quinn, Marshall, Ill.

One thing is certain—Ayer's Hair Vigor makes the hair grow. This is because it is a hair food. It feeds the hair and the hair grows, that's all there is to it. It stops falling of the hair, too, and always restores color to gray hair.

U. S. SENATOR FROM SOUTH CAROLINA Recommends Pe-ru-na For Dyspepsia and Stomach Trouble

Ex-Senator M. C. Butler.

Catarrh of the Stomach is Generally Called Dyspepsia—Something to Produce Artificial Digestion is Generally Taken.

Hence Pepsin, Pancreatin and a Host of Other Digestive Remedies Has Been Invented.

These Remedies Do Not Reach the Seat of Difficulty, Which is Really Catarrh.

Ex-U. S. Senator M. C. Butler from South Carolina, was senator from that state for two terms. In a recent letter to The Peru-na Medicine Co., from Washington, D. C., he says:

"I can recommend Peru-na for dyspepsia and stomach trouble. I have been using your medicine for a short period and I feel very much relieved. It is indeed a wonderful medicine besides a good tonic."—M. C. Butler.

The only rational way to cure dyspepsia is to remove the catarrh. Peru-na cures catarrh. Peru-na does not produce artificial digestion. It cures catarrh and leaves the stomach to perform digestion in a natural way. This is vastly better and safer than resorting to artificial methods.

Peru-na has cured more cases of dyspepsia than all other remedies combined, simply because it cures catarrh wherever located. If catarrh is located in the head, Peru-na cures it. If catarrh has fastened itself in the throat or bronchial tubes, Peru-na cures it. When catarrh becomes settled in the stomach, Peru-na cures it, as well in this location as in any other.

Peru-na is not simply a remedy for dyspepsia. Peru-na is a catarrh remedy. Peru-na cures dyspepsia because it is generally dependent upon catarrh.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peru-na, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

HOLLAND CHARITABLE WORK.

Church and Private Institutions Exe- in the Aid Granted.

A recent report of the minister of the interior of the Netherlands is of particular interest, giving complete statistics of the amount expended in charitable work in Holland, says the Revue Scientifique. This matter is regulated in Holland by the law of June 28, 1854, which recognizes four sorts of charitable institutions—those which are administered by the state, the provinces or the communes; those which belong to a church and are for the purpose of assisting the poor of the parish; the institutions founded by lay bodies or private individuals, and mixed institutions which are directed by the public authorities, together with the church or private individuals. In all of these cases there is a distinction made between assistance given to those who are ashamed to ask and are sought out.

In an average year the assistance at the homes of the indigent amounts to a little more than 14,000,000 francs, of which 9,000,000 is in money and the rest in provisions, the whole being distributed among about 185,000 poor. In this total of expenditures the part played by public funds is 5,000,000 francs, the rest being almost entirely furnished by the churches, the private institutions distributing hardly 500,000 francs. The churches distribute more money than the public institutions. The poor who do not apply for assistance are almost exclusively cared for either by the churches or private institutions, as the public officials do not possess sufficient initiative to seek out the sufferers. The amount distributed to these "ashamed" poor represents an expenditure of some 1,300,000 francs, which is divided almost equally between the private and lay institutions and the churches.

The distribution of provisions and fuel reaches the modest total of 270,000 francs distributed among 15,000 poor. The source of most of this assistance is the private institutions, the public granting but little more than 13,000 francs to 500 poor. The explanation of the relatively modest part played by the government lies in the specification in the law mentioned above that public assistance shall be granted only to the other agencies are inadequate. The charitable institutions of Holland are public, 3,400 supported by the number about 5,000, of which 1,900 church and 450 are private.

A traveler has made the observation that coffee-drinking people are very s.l.d. in given to drunkenness. In Brazil for instance, where coffee is grown extensively and all the inhabitants drink it many times a day, intoxication is rarely seen. The effect is not only noticeable among the natives, but the foreigner who settles there, though possessed of ever such a passion for strong drink, gradually loses his liking for alcohol as he acquires the coffee-drinking habit of the Brazilian.

Germany has a pay wedding, at which the bride receives her guests with a basin before her in which each person entering deposits a jewel, a silver spoon or a piece of money. In some parts of Germany the rule is that the expenses of the marriage feast shall be met by each guest paying for what he eats or drinks. The prices paid for viands and drinks are high, and the young couple often make a handsome profit out of their wedding realizing a sum quite sufficient to start them nicely in life.

A writer in Power tells us that in the best steam engines only six to fifteen per cent. of the coal burned actually produces power that can be used; the rest is a dead loss. Where does it go? To begin with, twenty-two per cent. flies up the chimney in smoke, five per cent. is wasted by radiant heat from the boiler; one per cent. drops through the grate; ten per cent. is consumed in pumping water into the boiler, while fifty-seven per cent. goes off in steam after passing through the engine. The rest is accounted for by leaks and waste heat.

The centre of the mother-of-pearl industry is Singapore. The shell oyster is six to ten inches long, the larger ones weighing as much as ten pounds. It is found on hard-bottom channels between islands, where the current is strong. In gathering it a diver takes with him a bag of coil rope one-fourth of an inch in diameter, made in large meshes, which, while suited for holding the shell, does not impede his traveling along the bottom. The apparatus for diving has not been introduced in the Philippines, although Manila shell brings the high price of a dollar a pound.

Giving Definite Information. Next door to Alderman Klug's office in the Ninth ward is an Italian shoemaker. A lawyer called at the alderman's office the other day. The alderman was not in. The lawyer went to the Italian.

"Do you know," asked the attorney, "where Alderman Klug is?" "Yes," said the Italian.

"Then where is he?" asked the attorney. "He is out," was the reply.—Indianapolis News.

Miss Alice Bailey, of Atlanta, Ga., tells how she was permanently cured of inflammation of the ovaries, escaped surgeon's knife, by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I had suffered for three years with terrible pains at the time of menstruation, and did not know what the trouble was until the doctor pronounced it inflammation of the ovaries, and proposed an operation. I felt so weak and sick that I felt sure that I could not survive the ordeal. The following week I read an advertisement in the paper of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and was in excellent health. I decided to try it. Great was my joy to find that I actually improved after taking two bottles, and in the end I was cured by it. I had gained eighteen pounds and was in excellent health."

—Miss ALICE BAILEY, 50 North Boulevard, Atlanta, Ga.—$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

The symptoms of inflammation and disease of the ovaries are a dull throbbing pain, accompanied by a sense of tenderness and heat low down in the side, with occasional shooting pains. The region of pain sometimes shows some swelling.

OLD INDIAN BATTLE GROUND. Tokens of Peace and War Found in the Kennewick Valley, Washington.

Where the great steel bridge of the Northern Pacific railway spans the Columbia river, half way between Spokane and Seattle, Washington, and near the confluence of the Snake and Columbia rivers there was fought sixty years ago a battle to the death between two Indian tribes, probably the Cayuses and the Wallahwallis or the Chihlhis, which latter tribe was a reckless and thieving one.

Great Irrigating Ditch Completed. The railway company has recently completed a great irrigating ditch 25 miles long and 20 feet wide that is turning this valley adjacent to the west bank of the Columbia from a sea beach plane into what a few years hence will be an orchard and garden spot 20 miles square, with a climate peculiarly adapted, it is said, to raising all sorts of vegetables, berries, peaches, apples, plums, cherries and alfalfa. In the tearing up process an old Indian battle ground has been found on the same spot where Lewis and Clark, the pioneer explorer, pitched their camp and from which they pushed their way up stream to the mouth of the Yakima river in the year 1805.

Famous Generals Fought There. This is all historic ground as at a later date Grant and Sheridan and other noted army officers were stationed in this vicinity—Grant in 1852, Sheridan in 1855-6, both of them taking part in repelling Indian irruptions. In this old battle ground, and first by means of a well, there was unearthed recently, skeletons, flint rock rifles, Indian beads, brass badges bearing date of 1846, broken hatchets, spear heads, elk teeth and a piece of cloth or matting spun from threads of weeds or hemp. Everything went to show that this part of the Kennewick valley was at one and the same time an old Indian battle and burying ground, as it is now known that the Indians congregated here in great numbers on account of the mild climate, especially during the winter months when in the inclement weather of the higher altitudes drove them into more hospitable regions.

Once a Strong Trading Post. How many residents of Washington state know that the junction of the Wallawalla and Columbia rivers was, prior to the visit of Lewis and Clark, the site of a Hudson Bay company post, Ft. Wallawalla, now known as Wallula, and that on their eastbound trip on April 29, 16, Lewis and Clark crossed the Columbia river here and encamped about a mile from the Columbia, at the mouth of the "Wallawalla" river.
