LUXURIES FOR SERVANTS.

Private Baths and Fultes in Some of the Newest Houses. The new palaces built in this city very year do not supply luxuries for their owners alone. The employes are also looked after and provision is made for their comfort to a degree never known anywhere else.

In one of the new houses on an uptown street near the avenue the man servants quarters consist of three small rooms on the top floor. Adjoining them is a small tiled room with a shower and plunge bath and sprays. In the same room are three basins in order that the men may all wash simultaneously if they want to.

Downstairs adjoining the entrance hall is another sleeping-room for a man servant, and it has as much light and air as any in the house, in addition to having a private bath.

The rooms for the woman servents of a bathroom. In addition to these apartments there are two rooms and bath to be used by any servant who happens to be ill. These two rooms are so situated that a servant in them may be quarantined so completely as If out of the house. Adjoining the nursery and separated from it only by a dressing-room is the "Why, he's our leading vegetarian." apartment of the head nurse, which is, of course, supplied with its private bath. Near the room of the mistress of the house is the room of her maid, and it has the same conveniences as > the others. Thus are the servants of the wealthy housed. When it is taken into consideration that these rooms are kept in order and supplied with everything needful by the housekeeper, the lot of the household servant in the United States seems more desirable than ever.

Most houses in which a large staff of servants are employed have also a sittingroom for their diversion. Of course, not all of the new houses built now have such an equipment as this one. It is intended for a young couple married only a year ago. The bride's mother gave it as her wedding present, and it will cost $600,000 when completed.-New York Sun.

THE SAMURAI AND JIU-JITSU.

The Most Wanderful System of Athletics Known in the World. More than twenty-five hundred years ago there sprang into existence, in Japan, an order of knights who were known as the samural. To them was imparted all the learning, the polite breeding, and the forms of superiority allowed to bear arms.

As there could not always be war on hand, and as it was considered beneath the dignity of the samural to go into your differences with your husband?" you that, by following your kind aday any ordinary callings, it came about asked the kind lawyer. "No way at all, sir," answered the woman. "When always thin and delicate, and so weak much idle time on their hands. Being to athletic feats. One among the samural conceived the idea of learning, by practice, the location of every sensitive nerve and muscle in the body, After that he discovered all the Joints of the bones that could be selzed in such a way as to give momentary power over the muscles of an adversary. He practiced with his fellow samural, and thus by degrees was developed the most wonderful system of athleticknown in the world. The Japanese call this work jiu-jitsu. The deft pressures applied in the practice of jlu-jltsu produce only momentary pain but do not really injure the muscles or nerves. In all other things the Japanese are the most polite people in all the world; so it follows that even in their fighting they have developed a humane yet effective method of self-defense. They do not strike out with the clenched fist, and seek to bruise, as do the Anglo-Saxons in their boxing contests. A knowledge of the jiu-jitsu enables one almost instantly to convince his opponent that it is useless to fight. There are now schools of jlu-fitsu verywhere in Japan. Every soldier, sailor, and policeman is obliged to perfect himself in the systm. A Japanese policeman, possessed of the art, has known single-handed to reduce to submission and to take to the police-station four sturdy sallors of a foreign Asiatic squadron.-St. Nicholas.
