FAIRBANKS AT CEREMONY.

Magnificent Building Erected by Washington Formally Opened.

Portland, June 3. — The bonds of friendship existing between the two greatest states in the Northwest were even more firmly cemented yesterday at the Lewis and Clark exposition, when the magnificent Washington State building was formally dedicated with ceremonies second only to the opening day exercises of Thursday. The spirit of friendliness which binds the two states together in the great task of developing and upbuilding the Northwest was exemplified by the eloquent addresses of the speakers who represented both the state of Washington and the state of Oregon, Vice President Fairbanks, the personal representative of the president, honored the Washington delegation by his presence and delivered a short but very pointed and appropriate speech.

The condition of the weather was perfect before and during the ceremonies, but immediately after the close of the exercises dark and heavy clouds appeared on the horizon, giving the impression that the unfavorable weather had been delayed because of the respect the elements held for the great state of Washington. Long before the commencement of the exercises, which were held at 11 o'clock, Washingtonians, Oregonians and visitors from all parts of the United States began to assemble in anticipation of the dedication. By the time the hour arrived for the opening of the ceremonies the exposition grounds east of the Washington building were crowded with people.

Hundreds of them were from Washington, and it is said that there was not a city in the state, no matter how it ranked in importance with its sister cities, that was not represented at the dedication. There were visitors from even the remotest portions of Washington, who traveled many miles on horseback to reach a railroad which would take them to Portland. The delegations from Spokane, Seattle, Tacoma and Walla Walla were particularly large, the most prominent public men being in attendance.

QUOTES HISTORIC INCIDENT

Russia Cries for Punishment of Nebogatoff for Surrendering.

St. Petersburg, June 3. — Feeling in the admiralty against Rear Admiral Nebogatoff continues to run high, the majority of the naval authorities being deaf to the appeals of the few who insist that the admiral's action in surrendering his warships should not be condemned until the circumstances become fully known. The majority say they could forgive anything but surrender and point to the precedent in the case of the Russian ship Raphael, which, in 1829, during the Russo-Turkish war, struck its colors to three Turkish ships which surrounded it. Nicholas I meted out a terrible punishment to the officers and crew of the Raphael, ordering that all of them should be shot after their exchange and directing that, if the ship should ever be recaptured, its infamous history should be blotted out by the total destruction of the vessel. The Raphael, strange to say, was recaptured 34 years later at Sinope during the Crimean war, a son of the captain who surrendered her taking part in the battle, and to this son fell the task of executing the dead emperor's orders to destroy her. Many naval authorities claim that the emperor should reserve the same fate for Admiral Nebogatoff.

PACIFYING EAST SAMAR.

Removal of Corrupt Officials May End Rebellion.

Manila, June 3.—Brigadier General George M. Randall will sail for the United States on June 15. Brigadier General Carter, commander of the department of the Visayas, now engaged in the pacification of the natives on the east coast of the island of Samar, has 16 companies of infantry and 12 companies of scouts operating in the field, with four more companies of infantry under orders. The uprising of the natives in this quarter is not against the government. They have rebelled on account of the corrupt practices of native officials and hemp agents, who have been underpaying the men for their products.

Sailors Mutiny in Battle.

London, June 3.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Times wires that he had obtained from high authority a report that Admiral Nebogatoff's sailors mutinied in the battle and threw the admiral and many of their officers overboard. He states further that the sailors found their officers in the cabins and hoisted a white flag, surrendering to the Japanese. It is said that eight men of Nebogatoff's squadron were hanged for mutiny while the squadron was still in the Red sea.

Wicked Wind Betrayed Him.

Tokio, June 3.—A telegram from Sasebo says that Admiral Rojstevsky stated in an interview that he hoped to clear Ten island in a fog, but a sudden southwestern gale cleared the fog and revealed the presence of his fleet.

OPEN TO THE WORLD

Centennial of Lewis and Clark Formally Observed.

GREAT THROUG ATTEND OPENING

Military Pageant, Addresses by Nation's Dignitaries and Festivities Inaugurate the Exposition.

Portland, June 2.—The Lewis and Clark Centennial exposition is open. Portland is playing host to the world.

Yesterday, the opening day, will find a bright place in the history of the nation, marking as it does, the starting point of an enterprise that means the greater upbuilding of the West and Northwest; new trade relations with the Orient; closer trade relationship between the Pacific coast and the Atlantic seaboard, and the hundreds of attendant and incidental benefits that will accrue to the country.

The opening ceremonies and demonstrations were on a scale commensurate with the greatness of the day. They were carried through without a hitch of any consequence. Old exposition attaches, who have attended the important world's fairs of the past decade, declared they had never before beheld so pretty or so effective an opening.

The attendance passed even beyond the most sanguine official expectations. Crowds, such as have never before lined the streets of Portland, saw the great military pageant that preceded the opening exercises. Standing room on the three miles of streets was at a premium. And when the parade was at an end this ocean of humanity turned its tide on the exposition grounds.

Across Guild's lake on the peninsula a section of artillery tolled off the presidential salute of 21 guns, the dark blue smoke from the cannonading lifting slowly above the government's palace and adding enchantment to the peaceful grandeur of the inspiring landscape to the north.

This salute brought on the opening exercises. All of the speakers were enthusiastically received. Especially cordial was the reception accorded the nation's representatives. The exercises were marred by no unpleasant incident. So orderly was everything that the heavy detachment of policemen and guardsmen were not put to the necessity of issuing a single admonition.

It was exactly 12 o'clock to the dot when President H. W. Goode, of the exposition, called for order. It was hardly 2 o'clock when President Roosevelt was informed by wire that all was ready. The president was in waiting for the message at the White house. The great crowd leaned forward in a state of high nervous tension waiting for the first peals of the government chimes, which were to have been President Roosevelt's first response. But, luckily, the chimes failed to work, and after a full minute of breathless waiting, the assemblage was informed by Mr. Goode that the president had sent his greeting. At the same time he declared the exposition formally opened and extended a greeting to all the world. President Roosevelt's congratulatory telegram was then read and received with tremendous applause.

There was apparently almost as many people at the fair grounds last night as were present at the opening exercises. Although the exhibits buildings were closed, the exposition by night seemed in every particular as great an attraction as during the open hours of the day.

When darkness fell upon the heights that raise beyond the fairy city the reason was plain.

As a feast for the eye the spectacle was incomparably beautiful. The fireworks which were a feature of the evening, were beautiful in the extreme, but they paled before the splendor of the electricity.

Admissions 39,577.

As nearly as could be estimated by Chief of the Department of Admissions F. B. Davison the total admissions at the Lewis and Clark exposition yesterday was 39,577. This estimate was announced last night after the gates had been closed to the public and reports from the three entrances had been counted. Mr. Davison says that his estimate is not absolutely correct and that he will not know the exact number of admissions until today. He says, however, that his estimate will not vary more than 200.

Two Revenue Cutters Here.

There are two revenue cutters now in port. The Russ arrived shortly after dusk last evening and dropped anchor in the stream above the Burnside street bridge and just astern of the cutter McCulloch. The Russ was on her way from Seattle to San Francisco, when she received orders at Port Townsend to stop at this city. She will remain here for some time and will then proceed south.
