J. E. VAGNER, F. K. W. W. OVERLANDER, C. R.

Condon Camp No. 36 W.O.W. meets in Armory Hall the first and third Thursday evenings in each month at 8:00. All visiting neighbors are cordially invited to attend.
W. F. ALLEN, Counsel Commander
W. B. KINLEY, Clerk.

In an editorial this week the Morning Oregonian suggests a re-organization our system of courts. The plan, as proposed by the Oregon, contemplates the establishment of a circuit court in each county which will have jurisdiction of all cases now brought in both the county and circuit courts and the limitation of the jurisdiction of the county court to that of a commissioners' court for the transaction of county business. Considering the fact that the county judges are seldom learned in the law and the great inconvenience that is occasioned by the present system of large circuits the plan is undoubtedly a good one and we believe it will meet with the approval of the press and people of Oregon in general.

Harmony was hardly the distinguishing characteristic of the meeting of Oregon Equal Suffrage Association held in Portland last Saturday for the purpose of electing officers for the ensuing year. Two tickets were placed in the field by rival factions and of course the natural and logical result was a bitter fight. Stinging epithets and bitter words were used and the defeated faction threatens to withdraw from the Association. About the only cry that wasn't set up was that of graft but there is still plenty of time for that when we remember that the woman suffrage movement is, comparatively speaking, a new thing in Oregon. Well, anyway it is better for the husbands of the delegates that they were in Portland fighting among themselves, instead of chewing the rag with their spouse in their own sweet, happy home.

We acknowledge on two or three different occasions calls from representatives of patent medicine companies who desire to advertise in this paper. When they announce their mission they are always told politely but firmly that it would be useless to talk further about the matter. Usually this has been sufficient and they bid us good day, but this week it was not enough for a neatly dressed young man who, of course, had the usual story of a good proposition and knew that we were making a great mistake by not at least giving him a respectful hearing. We were asked point blank why we refused to run patent medicine advertisements in our paper and replied that we did not propose to make this paper a medium for imposition upon the public and had no respect for a man who made such a proposition to us. We regret that these advertisements have found a place in our patent sheets but assure our readers that they are there through no fault of our own and hope that it will not be long before we can make arrangements to have them discontinued.

After reading for some months a paper entitled "The Appeal to Reason", or more commonly known as "The Appeal to Passion", the writer has come to the conclusion that the Socialist party stands for anarchy, crime, riot and about everything that is opposed to good government and good morals. It seems to be the teaching of this party that a man should be a lazy, indolent human parasite, hating everything and everybody except himself, and having a deep rooted contempt for law and order. These germs of socialism, which are nothing more or less than the seeds of discontent, have been sown broadcast over the country by the Appeal to Reason, the Hearst newspapers and other yellow curs in the field of journalism, for the sole purpose of advancing the pecuniary or political interests of the proprietors, and still there are intelligent men and women who will tolerate this class of publications.

There seems to be considerable doubt, after all, whether denatured alcohol will prove such a boon as has been predicted for it. We are told that the product will be manufactured by large establishments, and that forty cents a gallon is as cheap as the consumer may expect to buy it. Perhaps it won't hit Rockefeller as hard as the people hoped it would.—Telegram.
