J. E. VAUGHN, F. S. W. W. OVERLANDER, C. H.

W. B. KINLEY, Clerk. W. F. ALLEN, Consul Commander

A slap on the back, a stereotype political smile, a superabundance of conceit and deceit are the only requisites of a cross roads politician, but Senatorial timber is usually hewn from better trees.

The proposed Grange fair at Mayville should receive the hearty support and earnest co-operation of every intelligent citizen in the county. All efforts in the past to hold a fair at Condon have proved of no avail, and the people of Mayville are to be congratulated upon their enterprise.

Jonathan Bourne was elected U. S. Senator at Salem Tuesday on the first ballot by an almost unanimous vote. His election is a wonderful triumph of the plain people over the political bosses, and is a grand forward step that will never be retraced in Oregon. And from what we know of Bourne's wonderful energy and resourcefulness, the people of Oregon will never regret their part in his election.—Fossil Journal.

The fact that Chancellor Day of Syracuse University continues his war upon the so called persecutors of the rich, would seem to indicate that the public prosecutors throughout the country have made it mighty uncomfortable for the corporations.

We learn from an editorial in the last issue of the Times that individuality denotes egotism and envy. In other words, if an editor would be successful and respected among the people of his community, he must prostrate himself at the feet of a political boss.

Reports from New York would seem to indicate that Chas. E. Hughes, the newly elected Governor of the empire State, is making an enviable record for himself. He appears to be his own political boss and unlike the majority of successful candidates has kept every pre-election pledge. Numerous reforms have been proposed by the Governor and he has selected for all important appointive positions men of unquestionable ability and integrity. During the few brief months of his incumbency he has come to be regarded by friends and enemies alike as one of the strongest characters in the history of New York state politics.

Senator Bailey of Multnomah county would amend the direct primary law by making the Statement No. 1 pledge apply to party candidates only. The people of Oregon have worn the direct primary clothes but a very short time and as far as we are able to learn, public sentiment is not overwhelmingly in favor of putting any patches on the garments.
