

NEW MINISTRY BEING SELECTED

Portugal is Quiet While Genuine Mourning is Felt for Dead Ruler and Son.

POLICE MAKE MANY ARRESTS OF SUSPECTS.

Over 200 Placed Under Arrest Since Saturday in Effort to Locate Plotters Against Royal Family—Fears of Immediate Uprising Have Been Dispelled—Franco's Political Prisoners Will Soon Be Released—England's Interference Unnecessary to Preserve the Dynasty.

Lisbon, Feb. 4.—The bodies of the king and prince lie in state in the Chapel Necessidades of the palace. Many masses have been said for their souls. The general mourning appears to be genuine.

In adjusting the cabinet to meet the coalition's views, such rapid changes have been made that only three of the ministers chosen yesterday remain.

The new members are: Manuel Moreira, minister of finance; Minister of Justice Henriques; Minister of Marine Augusto Decastillo; Minister of Public Works Bernardino.

Over 200 arrests have been made since Saturday of suspects in the plot against the royal family. The police lack details of the plot but adhere to the opinion that the editor of the leading revolutionary paper was the head of the organization which now is almost certainly known to have planned the extinction of the dynasty and the establishment of a republic.

Fears of the immediate uprising have been dispelled by the decision to reestablish the constitution as soon as the public safety permits. The suspended newspapers will then be permitted to resume and many of Franco's political prisoners will be released.

Marcos Several, the Portuguese ambassador to England is expected to reach London tomorrow with detailed information for the British government, and it is understood, will show that English interference is unnecessary to preserve the dynasty.

Boni was the first witness and admitted that he spat in the prince's face because the latter insulted him, but denied that he hit or kicked the prince after he fell.

Boni's brother, Jean, followed, and said the prince tried to whack Boni with his cane, but lost his balance and fell. Other witnesses were a motley crowd and told varying stories, one persistently referred to Boni as the "little bald man" which made the court wince.

CHIEF OF POLICE SEEKS TO RID CITY OF REDS.

Chicago, Feb. 4.—Chief of Police Shippy conferred today with Corporation Counsel Brundage on ways and means to stamp out the colony of anarchists in Chicago. The chief declared that recent events duplicate the exact preliminaries to the Haymarket riots.

"When refused they defied the police and riot followed. There shall not be another riot while I'm at the head of the police department."

PORTUGAL SILENT FOLLOWING TERRIBLE DEED OF ASSASSINS

Boy King, Don Manuel II, Takes Throne and Premier Franco Still the Ruling Hand.

If Regicides Believed the Death of King Carlos and the Crown Prince Would Set Fire the Flames of Rebellion, Upset the Government and Establish a Republic They Have Grievously Erred — House of Braganza Has Paid Toll for the Folly of Its Head and Apparently the Dynasty Has Saved the Throne—People Prepare to Mourn—Queen Amelia Seeks Rest in Sleep—Single Battalion of Infantry at Oporto Revolted Upon Hearing News of Assassination, But Soldiers Are Quickly Subdued—Hundreds Would Welcome Republic—Franco Still Dictator and Government Rests Completely in His Hands—Story of Terrible Calamity.

Lisbon, Feb. 3.—Portugal, robbed at one blow of a king and crown prince by the bullets from the carbines of a group of assassins, is quiet today, a monarchy still under the rule of the boy king, Don Manuel, II, and the premier Franco.

If the regicides who let fly the fatal volley believed that their act would set fire the flames of rebellion, upset the government and establish a republic, they have been grievously mistaken.

The house of Braganza has paid its toll for the folly of its head and apparently the dynasty has saved its throne. Lisbon is quiet today as it was last night. The shops are re-opening. Passengers are seen on the street cars. Flags are at half mast. Decorators are beginning to shroud the public buildings in black.

At the royal palace the attendants state Queen Amelia sleeps. Exhausted by her 18-hour vigil at the biers of her husband and her first born she was carried to her bed late last night and gradually slipped into a deep sleep.

Stunned at the work of the assassins the kingdom has followed the lead of the capital city and remained quiet. At Oporto a battalion of infantry revolted upon hearing the news of the assassination and declared for the republic, but the loyal troops arrested the mutineers without a fight. This is the only news of any trouble occasioned by the blow that struck the ruling house.

There are without a doubt, hundreds of people in Lisbon and the kingdom who would welcome a republic, but the disaffected ones are without a leader, without a definite plan of action and without the power of working in co-operation.

Franco, the premier, is still the dictator of Portugal. The government now rests completely in his hands and in this hour he looms up trunk, head and shoulders above his compatriots and his enemies.

It is him to whom the friends of Portugal look to rebuild the wrecked structure of her prostrate government.

Powerful as he is, Franco is faced by a problem in the reconstruction that will tax all of his undoubted genius for government.

His cabinet has fallen him. By a large mass of the people he is held in distrust. The new king fears him as the inspiration of those stern measures that aroused the anger of the people and which culminated in the assassination.

He may be compelled to resign. England, it is said, wants the dictatorship of Franco done away with. King Edward advised Carlos to put away his powerful advisor long ago, but Carlos, too weak to rule alone, feared to take the step that would mean a long and desperate battle with the forces of both the progressives.

It is believed that a portion of the English fleet is now en route from Vigo, Spain, to Portugal to be ready to intervene in case of a rebellion. Positive information comes from London that such an order has been issued.

Spanish Cruiser to Scene.

Madrid, Spain, Feb. 3.—The cruiser Princess of Austria has been ordered to Lisbon to protect the Spanish colony in case of revolution.

King Carlos of Portugal and the crown prince Louis Philippe, were assassinated late Saturday. The king's second son, the Infant Manuel, is slightly wounded, but Queen Amelia, who strove to save the crown prince's life by throwing herself upon him, was unhurt.

A band of men waiting at the corner of the Prado de Commercio and the Rue de Arsenal suddenly sprang toward the open carriage in which the royal family were driving to the palace and, leveling carbines which they had concealed upon them, fired.

The king and crown prince, against whom the attack was directed, were each shot three times, and they lived only long enough to be carried to the marine arsenal nearby, where they expired. Almost at the first shot the king fell back on the cushions dying, and at the same time the crown prince was seen to half rise and then sink back on the seat. Queen Amelia jumped up and threw herself toward the crown prince in an apparent effort to save his life at the risk of her own, but the prince already had received his death wound. The police guard fired upon the assassins and killed two of them. A third was captured and is believed to have committed suicide in prison.

The royal family were returning from Villa Vicosa, where they had been sojourning, and were on their way from the railroad station to the palace. A strong guard was in attendance, because of the recent uprising in the city, and the discovery of a plot to assassinate Premier Franco and overthrow the monarchy. But the band of murderers had selected the most advantageous spot for their crime, for they were concealed until the vehicle had come into the Prado de Commercio, a large square.

Before any of the guard were aware of what was happening the assassins leaped to the carriage and instantly a fusillade of shots rang out. In a moment all was terrible confusion—the king and crown prince being shot street without the slightest chance to save themselves. Police guards sprang upon the regicides, the number of whom is somewhat uncertain, and killed two and captured another, the one said to have committed suicide in prison. It is charged that one of the murderers was a Spaniard.

The bodies of the king and crown prince were removed from the arsenal in two closed carriages to the royal palace, the late residence of the king, and escorted by municipal guards, mounted.

Crime Cunningly Arranged.

The details of the murders show that they were cunningly arranged. The fact that the royal family were returning from Villa Vicosa had been made public in advance and the authorities had arranged what they considered an effective guard along the route which the royal carriage was to take. The trip from Villa Vicosa was without accident.

The king and his family returned at the end of a day of greatest excitement in the city, on account of the wholesale arrests and the continual discovery of new depots of arms and bombs. A great throng was grouped about the Barriere railroad station and the neighboring streets, when the members of the royal family disembarked for the purpose of driving across the Tagus in the limits of Lisbon.

The carriages awaited them before the landing stage and the king and queen and the two princes entered the leading carriage, which started immediately, wheeling into the Prado de Commercio. Suddenly the sharp crack of a carbine startled the assemblage. Then the air was filled with a succession of sharp reports and the king was seen to jump up and reach for his throat, then to drop back on the cushions. The crown prince almost simultaneously was seen to collapse and fall toward the side of the carriage, while the queen, driven to frenzy, was seeking to save the crown prince and the Infant Manuel by shielding them with her body.

PLOT WAS TO KILL ENTIRE MINISTRY

ROYAL FAMILY WAS MARKED BY ASSASSINS

London Financial Circles Feel Effect of Portugal's Misery—Queen May Lose Mind, Say Physicians—Franco's House Was Attacked But Mob Repulsed—Censorship of News Gives Rise to Contradictory Reports at Lisbon.

London, Feb. 3.—There was a slight depression in the market today due to the Portuguese affairs. Portuguese securities fell two points.

Physicians fear for the sanity of Queen Amelia, it is said, she constantly declaring she wants to follow her husband. It now seems certain that it was plotted to kill the entire royal family and ministers at the same time.

Franco's house was attacked but the assassins were repulsed. If a coalition government formed to succeed Admiral Amiral will probably be chosen premier by the young king.

The censorship on news gives rise to many contradictory and uncertain reports as to the exact happenings at Lisbon.

TO BREED BISON-CATTLE.

Experiments for the Government by "Buffalo" Jones of Topeka.

The cross-breeding of buffalo with cows and of Persian sheep with domestic sheep has been undertaken by "Buffalo" Jones of Topeka. He is conducting his experiments under the direction of the Agricultural department in a forest reserve of 40,000 square miles near the Grand Canyon in Arizona, says the Kansas City Star.

The house agricultural committee is holding hearings on proposed appropriations for the bureau of animal industry of the agricultural department, and Mr. Jones made a statement before the committee in support of some of the proposed expenditures.

In the forest reserve is a herd of about 100 buffalo which Mr. Jones said were in splendid condition. For breeding purposes he had shipped to the reserve several fine Galloway cows. The cross is a large animal with the long hair of the buffalo. The hides, he said, were as valuable for robes as those of the buffalo. The flesh is no coarser than that of cattle. Mr. Jones informed the committee that he would proceed with his cross breeding experiments until he had demonstrated that the breeding of buffalo and cows was entirely practicable.

He also said that his experiments in breeding Persian sheep with domestic sheep had proved successful. The result of this breeding is a sheep which, he says, has a finer flavor than that of the domestic sheep because it is free from the pronounced mutton taint, to which many persons object. The wool is finer than that of the Persian sheep and Mr. Jones predicts that it will be more desirable for wearing apparel. There was no doubt, he believed, that the cross would be more valuable for both its wool and flesh.

Agricultural department officials are following the experiments by Mr. Jones with interest. Recently the bureau of animal industry has devoted much attention to experimental cross breeding and this year Secretary Wilson recommended an increased appropriation for this branch of the agricultural department's work.

PROVES BRYAN'S CLAIM IS FALSE

Representative Townsend Prevents Larceny of Campaign Material.

ROOSEVELT NEVER STOLE NEBRASKAN'S TREASURY.

Bryan Not the Father of Anti-Trust Regulation and Rate Regulation, Declares Michigan Man and Gives His Proofs—Bureau of Corporations Makes Annual Report—Sensational Blow to Organized Labor—Senator Piles Urges Loan to Exposition.

Washington, Feb. 3.—Heading off the possible larceny of campaign material, Representative Townsend of Michigan, spokesman in the House on railroad rate matters, today attacked the democratic and pleased the republican brethren by arguing from facts in history that Bryan is not the father of anti-trust legislation and railroad regulation and that therefore Roosevelt has not purloined the Nebraskan's policies.

"Every little while I hear some democrat say the rate bill, the anti-trust law and the enforcement of them are of democratic origin, that the republicans have stolen democratic thunder. I make the claim hostile and shall dispute that either is democratic."

Townsend then went over the legislative history of the nation to show that such republicans as Sumner, Garfield, Grant and Sherman were the real pioneers of railroad rate regulation.

Report of Bureau of Corporations. Washington, Feb. 3.—"It is not the existence of industrial power but rather its misuse that is the real problem," says Commissioner Herbert Knox Smith, of the bureau of corporations, defining in his annual report the bureau's observation and the government's attitude toward the corporate companies. The general administrative supervision of interstate corporations is recommended.

The report details the results of Elkins law on 30 indictments. Several investigations directed by congress have been begun including the International Harvester, the alleged so-called lumber combine, the cotton combine, and the matter of patents. The investigations of the steel and tobacco industries have been continued.

GOVERNMENT WINS CASE.

Cattlemen Grazed Animals in Black Hill Natural Forest and Draws a Fine.

The fourth important case won by the government upon the question whether it is a crime to violate the regulations of the secretary of agriculture has just been decided in the United States district court, held at Deadwood, South Dakota, where Robert B. Bale was found guilty of grazing trespass on the Black Hills National forest and fined $100 and costs. Mr. Bale at once paid the fine and was released.

The defendant is a stock owner residing south of Rapid City and has been grazing about 150 head of cattle in and adjacent to the Black Hills national forest for some years. When the range in the national forests was put under administration in 1904 and the grazing fee system introduced, Mr. Bale refused to secure a grazing permit or to remove his stock from the forest.

After repeated efforts on the part of the local forest officers to persuade Mr. Bale to remove the stock, he was finally arrested and in August, 1904, was indicted by the United States jury at Deadwood. The trial of the case was delayed over two terms of court by an effort to have the case tried at Deadwood instead of Sioux Falls and the case was not presented to the jury until September 4. The court was prompt in overruling the defendant's demurrer attacking the constitutionality of the grazing regulations and in reaching a decision the jury was only out 15 minutes.

RESEEDING OF U. S. FORESTS.

Government Will Start Out With Six Experiment Stations.

The government has planned a series of scientific reseeding experiments on several of the national forest ranges next spring and summer to determine under what conditions and in what manner those portions of the range which have been seriously damaged by over grazing may be restored to their former productive-ness, says a Washington dispatch.

Probably six experimental stations will be tried at first so located as to secure typical conditions.
