Appreciation For Florence Nightingale, the Ased Heroine of the Crimean War. Ladies, Beware the Itinerant Fortune Teller.

The greatest of living Englishwomen, Miss Florence Nightingale, has just been decorated with the Order of Merit by King Edward, who by this act shows himself entitled to be called Edward the Tactful. She was the heroine of the Crimean war, doing what no woman before had done—went to the front, organized hospitals and nursed the sick and wounded soldiers. She was thus the pioneer of the Red Cross movement. The English people raised a fund of about $250,000 as a testimonial of their appreciation, but Miss Nightingale, who is a woman of independent means, requested that it be devoted to found a home for the training of nurses. This institution is named in her honor. She is a lady of grace, which is merely an auxiliary position. In the Order of St. John of Jerusalem. Decorations are lavishly bestowed on the feminine sprigs of royalty and on peeresses and honorables in the various orders in the gift of royalty, but merit is seldom so honored. The Order of the Royal Red Cross, with which Miss Nightingale has also been decorated, is, however, bestowed on many women who have done self devoted work in nursing, but it is also given to royal and titled women whose claim to the honor is a little difficult to understand. Miss Nightingale is one of those who think women ought to have the ballot.

Miss Matilda Stevenson knows more about the Indians of the southwestern United States than any other person living. Her husband, the late Colonel James Stevenson, was the pioneer investigator of these peoples and one of those who in 1870 originated the bureau of ethnology at Washington. During her husband's lifetime she acted as his assistant, but since his death she has been employed to continue his investigations by the bureau he helped found. Mrs. Stevenson was the first to suggest that the present Indian inhabitants of Mexico, Arizona, etc., are descendants of the mysterious ancient cliff dwellers of that region.

Because her mother was foolish enough to have her fortune told by a woman gypsy a little Chicago girl was kidnapped by a band of nomads and kept for some time in hope of a ransom. She was discovered by a shrewd and observant farmer, who took measures that eventually restored her to her parents. The child when taken home was half clad and in her bare feet, suffering severely from cold. She had been poorly fed and collapsed as the result of ill treatment and exposure. It is safe to say that her mother will never again have her fortune told by a gypsy nor permit one to come upon her premises. If other mothers were as wise, many of the mysterious disappearances of children and property would be successfully guarded against. The average itinerant fortune teller is not to be trusted either with regard to his predictions or his or her good intentions.

Mrs. Sarah Grand said recently, "It has been stated that there has never been a female Shakespeare, but there has been only one male Shakespeare."

Mrs. Humphry Ward has been elected president of the English Society of Women Journalists. Unlike many women of lesser mental caliber, Mrs. Ward never disparaged journalism or the journalist. In fact, she herself has frequently contributed to the London Times and to other newspapers.

In New Zealand, that paradise for women, Miss J. A. McKegg, after due examination, has been given a certificate as a marine engineer. She is qualified to manage a vessel propelled by gas, oil or electricity. Miss McKegg is the first holder of such a certificate in New Zealand.

Mr. Richard Le Gallienne, who wrote so feelingly of "The Quest of the Golden Girl," is the husband of that Mrs. Le Gallienne who is to pursue the quest of the golden loul's d'or via a millinery shop in Paris.

Miss Edith De Lis is the latest American prima donna to make a success abroad. She was a great hit at Covent Garden, the home of opera in London. Tosca and Elsa are her most admired roles. Miss De Lis is a protegee of Mme. Schumann-Heink. She has studied abroad with Jean de Reszke, but most of her training was received in this country. MARY DALE.

Feminine Guides.

Travelers coming home from Europe say that clever girls on the other side are taking up the vocation of professional guide. They are to be found especially in Germany, where their pleasant manners, neat dress and accurate information make them welcome substitutes for the too often unreliable male guides. Moreover, the girls speak English and French fluently.

The Teddy Bear's inventor. Of course the inventor of the Teddy bear is a woman! Mrs. Richard B. Chew is the lady. Although a Kentuckian by birth, she now lives in Washington. She is a graduate of a law school and an all round accomplished woman.

Announcement of W. J. Edwards on a Statement No. 1 Platform.

I hereby announce myself as an independent candidate for the office of Joint Senator for the Eighteenth Senatorial District, comprising the counties of Gilliam, Sherman and Wheeler, for the election to be held on June 1, 1908.

If elected I will, during my term of office, work faithfully for the best interests of all the people all the time. I have faith in the people, and believe in the will of the people, and therefore, during my term of office, if elected, I will always vote for that candidate for United States Senator who has received the highest number of the people's votes for that position, at the general election, next preceding the election of a Senator in Congress, without regard to his politics, or my individual preference. I am not allied to any clique, combination or faction, and I desire that the people shall say whom I shall vote for for United States Senator.

I solicit the votes of the people of all parties who believe in Statement No. 1; or in other words, of all voters who believe in "Government of the people, by the people and for the people." W. J. EDWARDS.

Announcement of James E. Burdette for District Attorney for the Eleventh Judicial District.

I hereby announce myself as an independent candidate for the office of District Attorney for the Eleventh Judicial District comprising the counties of Gilliam, Sherman and Wheeler for the election to be held June 1, 1908.

If elected I will during my term of office work faithfully for all the people, I will wage war on criminals, friends and foes alike, without regard to politics, position or station in life.

As to my qualifications, I will say that I am a graduate from the law department of the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, graduating in 1903 and have been engaged in actual practice ever since that time.

I am not allied to any clique, combination or faction of any kind or sort, but am independent in the fullest sense of the word.

I solicit the votes of the people of all parties who believe in a "Government of the people, for the people and by the people" and hereby pledge myself to carry out the wishes of the people, if elected.

JAMES E. BURDETTE.

Ye GLOBE "devil" is leading a strenuous life these days! Here is the reason: Last Saturday the managing editor left on an important business visit to Eastern Washington, Sunday the boss of the establishment concluded to have a siege of mumps, consequently we are holding down three jobs on one man's pay so if the GLOBE is a little "shy" on news this week we ask our readers to overlook the shortage.
