Mr. Frizzell and son, Porter, of the Mitchell country, were in Condon Monday, having brought to town a big load of hides and taking back a load of provisions. Port Frizzell is remembered by many in this city for excellence in athletics while a student at the University of Oregon and having starred on the Multnomah football team. He has been visiting his parents for two or three weeks and left Tuesday for Mexico where he is employed by a mining syndicate. Mr. Frizzell said that there was quite a change in the Mitchell country since the county had been voted dry and that the majority of the people of that region were already endeavoring to get acquainted with the new method of drinking which goes in effect July 1st.

Dr. Kennedy, of Arlington, was in Condon Monday and Tuesday making arrangements for the music during the three days' celebration. Our band consists of both ladies and men and a special orchestra will furnish good music for the dances." A violin player from either Portland or Walla Walla may be secured to complete the orchestra. It is possible that a choir will render patriotic selections at the exercises to be conducted at the skating rink which will be decorated for the occasion.

Why the Will Cost More.
Five years ago a certain man made a will. Last week he made another one. The same lawyer drew up both documents. For writing the second will the lawyer charged twice as much as for writing the first one.
"Why this difference?" asked the client. "Have you attained such prominence in the legal profession in the last five years that you are justified in doubling your fees?"
"Not at all," said the lawyer. "There was twice as much work on this will as on your old one. You see, at that time you were a married man and your will was short, for with the exception of a few minor bequests everything was left to your wife. Changes in your domestic relations have made another will necessary. You are now a bachelor or a bachelor's equivalent, a childless widower. It is much harder to write a will for a man of that type than for a married man. The man with a family usually gives away everything; he possesses in three or four clauses, but the bachelor divides his property among so many relatives, friends and dependents and consumes so much time in doing it that the lawyer is justified in charging him double the usual fee." — New York Press.

The Waiter Explains.
He was one of the very few commercial travelers who cannot adapt themselves to their surroundings, and as a chronic hotel grumbler he is known from east to west. The waiter was possessed of an optimism unusual for one weighted with the responsibilities of his position and served the soup, fish and roast with equanimity and poise. At the dessert the traveling man waxed irritable and sarcastic.
"Look here," he said. "This pudding is on the bill of fare as 'ice cream pudding' and there isn't any ice nor is there any cream in it."
The waiter in a tone of great patience replied:
"That's all right, sir. There's nothing in names. If we serve you with Washington pie it's no sign there's a picture of the capitol on every piece, and when we bring you college fritters there isn't a fern's tuffin in advance thrown in. Any cheese with your pie, sir?"
